WIDE INTEREST EVIDENCED IN OFF-YEAR VOTE

Candidates Throughout Nation Press Toward Climax

PREDICT RECORD VOTING TUESDAY

Roosevelt Heard Last Night; Hoover And Hamilton to Broadcast Tonight

(By The Associated Press) Candidates throughout the nation pressed today toward a thunderous climax to the most intense and vote-rousing off-year election campaign in national history.

The great popular interest reflected in predictions of an unprecedented ballot total Tuesday, spurred Republican and Democratic leaders in their efforts to turn the tides of victories in scores of apparently tight races.

President Roosevelt brought the national campaign of the Democrats to its peak last night by broadcasting an appeal for continued "liberal government."

Former President Hoover and National Chairman John Hamilton will speak for the Republicans tonight. Hoover's broadcast to a Spokane, Wash., Republican rally will be broadcast from 9 until 10 p. m. EST, over the Mutual network. Hamilton will speak over the Red network of NBC from 10 until 10:30 p. m. EST.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke from his Hyde Park, N. Y., home and as a citizen of his native state. He endorsed the Democratic candidacies of Governor Lehman and Senator Wagner, both seeking re-election, and Rep. Senate vacancy created by the death of Senator Joseph P. Kamp.

Only once did he discuss specific candidates outside of New York State. Then he spoke warm words of praise for the way Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan handled the Michigan automobile strikes in 1937. Murphy is opposed for re-election by Frank Fitzgerald, Republican nominee.

New York, Nov. 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's address last night in support of the New York State Democratic ticket was described as "devastating" to Republican chances today by National and State Chairmen James Farley.

"I believe it was the best speech I ever heard the President deliver," Farley said. And so far as Mr. Dewey and the Republicans are concerned it was devastating.

One Auto Stolen; Another Is Burned

Mrs. N. O. VanNortwick's automobile was pushed from the garage and stolen last night, and that of J. Hicks Corey, who lives only two doors from the VanNortwicks, was damaged by fire.

The belief was expressed that the same persons were responsible for both acts.

Mr. Corey was advised by his cook upon her arrival about 7 o'clock that his car was on fire. The upholstery of both the front and back seats was smoldering. Mr. Corey and firemen were at a loss to explain how the fire started unless a cigarette possibly tossed in the vehicle by a passer-by last night had smoldered in the upholstery all night.

When it was discovered that Mrs. VanNortwick's car was stolen, however, the theory was advanced that an effort had been made to steal Mr. Corey's car, but the ignition switch also locks the steering wheel and the would-be robbers were unable to make any headway. Mr. Corey lives at 305 Library street.

Mrs. VanNortwick's car had not been recovered this afternoon.

Freighter Taken

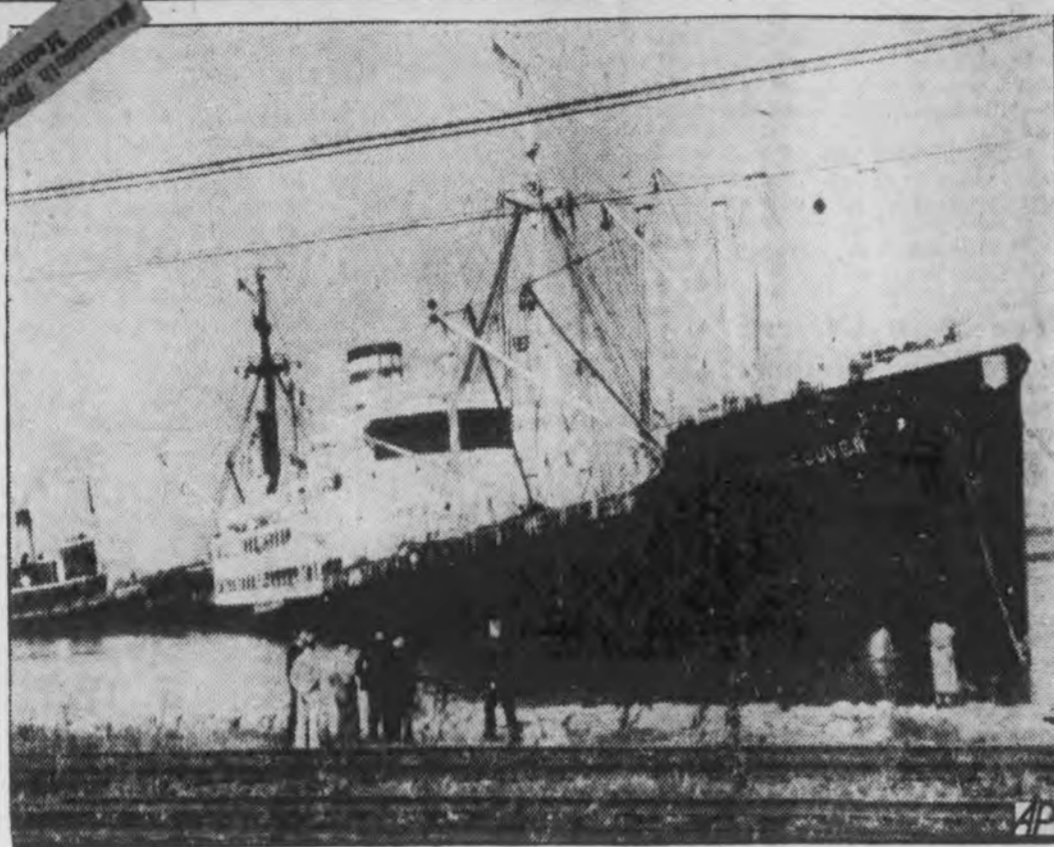

Emden, Germany, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Authoritative sources said today a Spanish government freighter had been captured in the North Sea by the Spanish insurgent auxiliary cruiser Ciudad de Alicante.

The crew of the merchant ship was said to have been imprisoned and the seized ship brought to port here with an insurgent crew.

(This is the second attack within a week by a Spanish insurgent man-of-war on a Spanish government merchant vessel in the North Sea.)

The freighter Carabanch, under charter to British operators, was bombarded and sunk by an insurgent armed auxiliary cruiser Wednesday within sight of England's east coast.

MYSTERIOUS BLAST SINKS GERMAN SHIP

With both hooks down to hold her in shallow water, the German freighter Vancouver here is shown sinking by the stern in the Oakland, Calif., estuary after a mysterious blast had ripped a hole five feet square below the waterline. Evidence of possible sabotage arose as six separate investigations were conducted to determine the cause of the explosion.

Prepare Exemptions Basis For Stemmers Of Tobacco

ANTI-CONTROL GROUP IN MEET

Talmadge assails Administration's Farm, Relief Policies

Raleigh, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Eugene Talmadge, former Governor of Georgia, brought a pastboard box of commodities to Raleigh today to show a farmer audience that while the United States was curtailing its production of tobacco, the nation was importing large quantities from abroad. Holding aloft a can of roast beef a rug and various textile products, all he said, made abroad, Talmadge asserted that "while our own laws forced our women into sewing rooms we American people buy products of the hands of women in Japan."

Talmadge assailed the administration's relief and farm policies in a speech at a meeting of the state anti-compulsory crop control association, attended by about 500 farmers.

Later the farmers adopted a resolution asking that the Secretary of Agriculture be asked to refrain from calling a referendum on crop control and expressing opposition to "any further compulsory crop control or any further compulsory legislation."

Miniature Chair On Display Here

A miniature hand-made, high-back straight chair, made by Greene Letchworth approximately 60 years ago for his first grandchild, Thomas Letchworth, was brought to the city today by Mrs. Charles McArthur of Bell Arthur, and left at the offices of The Daily Reflector to be placed on display.

Mr. Letchworth is known to have made at least five of these toy chairs, one for the first-born of each of his sons and daughters.

The chairs are hand carved and only wooden pegs are used. A regular split-bottom, common in that day, was used.

Cells Suggested For Prison Camp

The Pata County Grand Jury, in its report at the close of this week's session of Criminal court yesterday took notice of the recent escapes at the prison camp and recommended that the present type of buildings be re-built into cells on the inside, instead of the present dormitory style, which permits the too free intercourse between the prisoners.

The Grand Jury, of which J. Hicks Corey is foreman, reported that it had visited the county offices and "so far as we could determine" found them in first class condition. The books and records of the auditor's office were especially commended as a "fine example of capable and efficient work."

The full report follows: "We, the Grand Jury, have passed on all bills presented to us, and

Flat 50 Per Cent Exemption Refused by Administrator

Washington, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The wage-hour administration said today it was preparing a basis for determining exemptions for tobacco stemmers from provisions of the fair labor standards act.

Wage-Hour Administrator Eimer Andrews has refused to a flat 50 per cent exemption sought by tobacco dealers and has held that each exemption "as a handicap workers must be justifiable on its own merits."

The administration said M. D. Vincent, chief of the hearings and exemptions section, was drawing up a report on what tobacco men would have to show in the way of physical or other handicaps in order to obtain temporary exemptions.

The report will cover leaf tobacco dealers, packers and re-dryers in Virginia, North Carolina and Kentucky.

The administration said that during its discussions with tobacco dealers "it became apparent that the 15,000 stemmers laid off coincidental with the effective date of the wage and hour act would have been laid off anyhow, because the peak of the stemming period for flue-cured tobacco had been passed."

"The season for handling burley tobacco begins in the first week in December," the administration said, "and it was for this rush season that the exemptions were sought by leaf tobacco dealers."

No Final Figures In Drive Available

Due to any number of maladjustments a final Community Chest 1938 Campaign report is not ready it was learned today. Certain "follow up" work is being done in the mean time.

Concentrating all the solicitations into four days finds those having done the soliciting waiting until the four days are over to make their reports and some others were too busy through the days of the campaign to do their soliciting, so will do it in the near future. But all this makes a final 1938 drive report impossible.

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation has been authorized to purchase an additional 33,000,000 pounds of butter during the fiscal year.

END CRIMINAL SESSION HERE

Large Number Cases Removed from Calendar This Week

This week's session of Superior court was completed late yesterday afternoon after a large number of cases had been removed from the docket despite the fact practically all of two and a half days were devoted to a murder trial in which the jury was unable to reach a verdict and the usual procedure of withdrawing a juror was ordered and a mistrial declared.

The two defendants in the murder case were Tommy Morgan and Henry Edwards. The trial started Tuesday afternoon and was not given the jury until Thursday at the close of court. A few submissions were heard meantime, however.

The pair was accused of slaying Macon Jordan. The two contended the shot in self defense.

A. J. Jones, 19 and Paul Hill, Jr., 15—pleaded guilty to breaking, entering and larceny and were placed on probation. J. Sam Fleming and C. R. Fleming were freed of receiving stolen property knowing it to be stolen by a directed verdict.

After pleading guilty to irregularities in his funds at the State Bank and Trust company, J. R. Gaskins ordered to pay the costs of court and prayer for judgment was continued and the defendant placed on probation. Several of Greenville's most prominent citizens declared the defendant had a good reputation.

John Moore withdrew an appeal in an assault charge and the case was settled in Farmville court.

Richard Ross and Jarvis Tyson, Farmville Negroes, pleaded guilty to charges of mutual assault with a deadly weapon and each was given a 12 months sentence, suspended upon payment of costs and on further condition they remain of good behavior.

John "Geetch" Wesson, local Negro, conducted his own case on a charge of larceny from the person and was acquitted by a jury.

Johnnie Gray, pleaded guilty to breaking, entering, etc., and was given a two-year road sentence.

TO CONFER ON ANOTHER PLAN AID RAILROADS

Labor and Management to Consider Proposals

CHIEF EXECUTIVE TO GIVE SUPPORT

Heads of Major Lines Decide to Drop Proposal for 15 Per Cent Cut in Wages

Washington, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Railroad labor and management, their wage quarrel composed and a strike threat dispelled, will confer here Monday on proposals for legislation to rehabilitate the carriers.

President Roosevelt gave assurance of his support for an effort to "put through a constructive program of legislation at the next session of Congress."

Executives of the major roads decided yesterday at Chicago to drop their proposal for a 15 per cent wage cut. Nearly one million workers had voted to strike rather than accept it. J. J. Peley, president of the Association of American Railroads, notified Mr. Roosevelt that the action was taken because rail management officials "recognize the gravity of this situation and because they hope that out of it will come, through cooperation of all concerned, a sounder and more equitable policy."

Other developments included: The administration's decision to re-open the New Orleans navy yard, inoperative since 1921, gave fresh indications that the "temporary" Atlantic squadron created last September might become a permanent sea force.

Massachusetts went to the front in the race of four tax-hungry states which claim Col. Edward Green as their own when he died and left a $36,000,000 estate.

A special master recommended to the Supreme Court that Massachusetts be decreed as Green's legal domicile, giving it the right to collect a $4,947,008 levy if the court concurs.

Next Criminal Court Is Set For January

With the completion of a criminal term of Pitt Superior court here late yesterday afternoon, that tribunal wound up its criminal hearings for the year. The next session of criminal is scheduled for January.

A civil term, however, is scheduled for the week of November 21. Judge Dink James has announced that the regular session of county court scheduled for Tuesday would be held on Wednesday since Tuesday is election day.

Sum of Money Stolen From Sheriff's Clerk

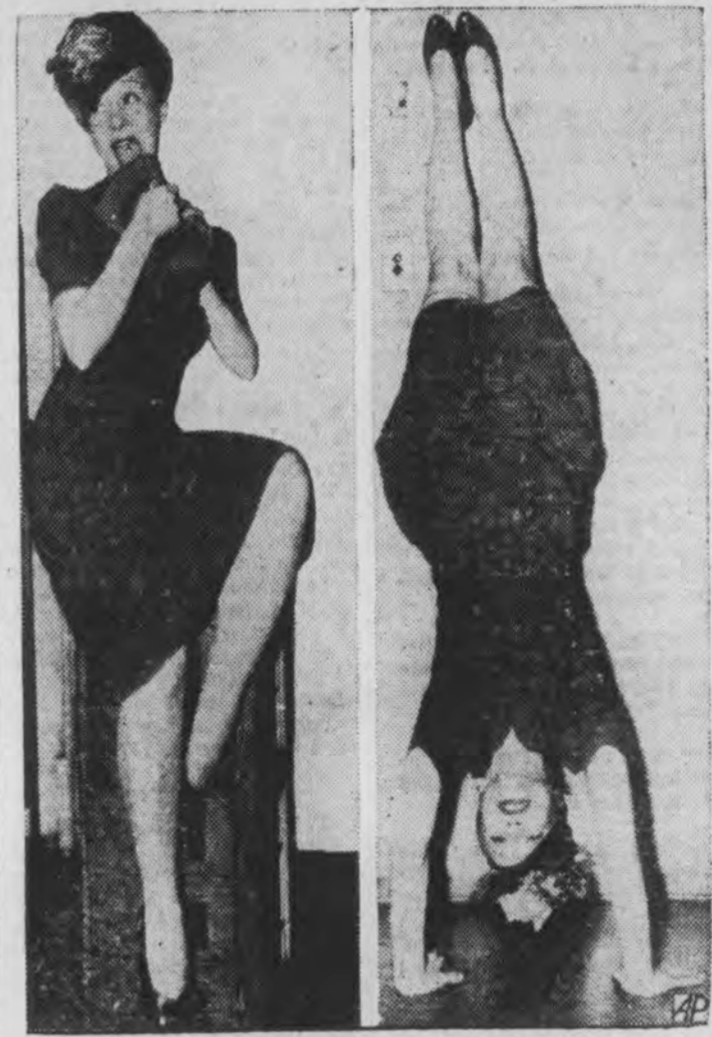

Sheriff J. Knott Proctor and his deputies had no further to go than to their own offices to investigate a robbery.

The officers yesterday were looking for clues into the theft of $59 belonging to Mrs. Otto Mahrt, desk deputy. Mrs. Mahrt reported she went out of the office to get change for a dollar and then went to a parked automobile. When she returned the $59 she left in a sealed envelope on her desk was missing. The money belonged to Mrs. Mahrt personally.

Weather For The Week

Rep. Cooley Addresses Pitt Democratic Rally

Congressman And Other Speakers Call For Big Vote

Congressman Harold D. Cooley, addressing a comparatively small crowd of Democrats at a party rally at the court house here last night urged every member of the party to go to the polls next Tuesday and cast his or her ballot.

Rep. Cooley declared that every Democrat should take pride in exercising his privilege of voting and added that "you owe it to yourselves, your family, your children and to your fine public servants" to get up early and go to the polls.

The speaker remarked at the start of his address that someone had apologized for the small crowd, but declared that did not bother him. "I like to talk to Democrats, regardless of the number," he declared, saying that he started his oratorical career before a one-man audience—a justice of the peace.

The Congressman brought his speech to a climax with a general discussion of farm program. "I do not know how you stand on control. I have never asked a farmer to vote for control, but I have no apologies to make for helping write the 1938 farm program."

Declaring that we hear so much about surplus, the speaker declared that we had no surplus crops—only an abundance. "I feel certain that there is someone, somewhere who needs ever loaf of bread that our wheat crop can produce and the warmth of every garment that can be made from our cotton crop."

He added that until this abundance can be distributed we must make some effort to let the farmer control his own business.

The Congressman said he did not think the bill was perfect, "nor would I say the Democratic record is perfect," but, he continued, something had been done to try to help the farmer. He assured his listeners that any suggestions would be given consideration. He said the farm control act was not administered as he thought it would be, but

ELECTION LAW IS EXPLAINED

Election Board Chairman Harrell Reveals Letter

J. H. Harrell, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Elections, today issued an interpretation of the election law as outlined in a letter from the Attorney General to Raymond C. Maxwell, executive secretary of the State board.

Chairman Harrell called attention to the hours of voting in next Tuesday's general elections. The polls will be open from sunrise to sunset. The new act providing for the polls to close at 7 o'clock, if sunset follows that hour applies only to primaries, he explained.

The registration books closed last Saturday, after only a comparatively few new registrations:

1. On the official ballot, if the voter desires to vote a straight ticket, or, in other words, for each and every candidate of one party for whatever office nominated, the voter can do this by marking in the circle below the name of the party at the head of the ticket.

2. If a voter desires to vote a mixed ticket, or, in other words, for candidates of different parties, the voter is required to make a cross mark in the voting square opposite the name of each candidate for whom he wishes to vote, on whatever ticket he may be. If a voter makes a cross mark in the voting square opposite the name of any one candidate, he must proceed to mark in the voting square opposite the name of every other candidate for whom he wishes to vote.

3. If a voter makes a cross mark opposite the name of any candidate on the Democratic ticket or on the Republican ticket, the mark in the party circle at the top of the ballot

HUNGARY GETS ANOTHER SLICE OF TERRITORY

Troops Cross Danube At Exact Scheduled Moment

ACTION CHEERED BY HUNGARIANS

Territory Awarded to Hungary by German and Italian Mediators last Wednesday

Budapest, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Hungarian troops crossed the Danube river on pontoon bridges exactly on the scheduled second today to start occupying another slice of dismembered Czechoslovakia.

While the rest of Hungary, which has awaited this movement since she lost the territory after the World War, called the day her "national resurrection." The soldiers entered the ceded area totaling some 4,875 square miles, at 10 a. m. (4 a. m. EST, north of Altenberg, Hungary. The first step was occupation of the town of Little Schuett, near the former Czech community of Doborogas.

Hungarian residents of the region came to cheer the regiment of infantry which was first to cross the improvised bridge.

The infantrymen were followed closely by cavalry and artillery units, while overhead a dozen Hungarian airplanes circled.

The territory was awarded Hungary by German and Italian mediators last Wednesday. The four-power peace of Munich September 29 and subsequent minorities concessions cost Czechoslovakia about 16,165 square miles, or which 10,885 square miles went to Germany, 406 to Poland and 4,875 to Hungary.

Revival Closes At Free Will Baptist

The fifteen-day series of revival services at the Free Will Baptist church came to a close last night with continued capacity audience. Rev. Chester Pelt, the evangelist and new pastor, spoke on "The Reality of Hell."

Rev. Mr. Pelt declared that "Men do not go to Hell simply because they are bad. Neither do they go to Heaven because they were good. Men go to Heaven because they receive Christ as their personal saviour, and they that go to Hell go because they reject Christ as their personal saviour. Christ himself said 'I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father but by me.'—John 14:6."

The evangelist took his message from Luke 16, 19-31. Special music was given by Mrs. J. C. Moyer of Snow Hill, and by the local quartet composed of E. D. Griffin, W. F. Owens, Chester Pelt, and S. M. Walters.

Thirteen additions to the church were made during the revival. Leaders of the church last night said they believe much good had been accomplished in the community. Appreciation was expressed for the co-operation shown by other congregations.

Rev. Mr. Pelt will continue as pastor and next Sunday evening at 7:30 will speak on the subject "Heaven." The public is invited to hear the services every Sunday night at 7:30.

Negro Arrested Here On Whiskey Charges

Caesar Green, local Negro, was arrested early this morning on a charge of possession of whiskey for the purpose of sale after officers reported finding about a gallon of the bootleg spirits at his home on Ford street.

Officers taking part in the search were ABC officer J. M. Ward, City Policeman E. O. McMullan and Bowser Dorsey.

Pioneering Big Election Factor Babson Says "Ham and Eggs" Proposal a Menace to National Security

Babson Park, Mass., Nov. 4.—Next Tuesday a new force in American politics will elect and defeat many candidates. From Maine to California the old age pension supporters will swing the balance in many a tight contest. Graft, dolos, and unneeded relief are a bad enough burden for the nation to carry. But the political exploiting of these fantastic pension schemes is a real menace to the nation's security. Every one of the ideas—from the original Townsend scheme to the current Ham-and-Eggs-for-California version—could give us a period of wild inflation and end up by bankrupting the nation.

Quoted Without Consent Armed, however, with quotations from prominent economists, the managers of these pension schemes build up a terrific following. I find, for instance, that I am quoted on the subject of increasing the velocity of money in the "Bible" describing "Life Begins at Fifty for Californians." So right here let me say that I have been quoted without my knowledge or consent and that I am 100 per cent opposed to the "Ham and Eggs" and similar pension schemes.

All voters have to do is to look at Alberta and Colorado. Aberhart was elected three years ago in Alberta and gives everyone $25 a month. The plan was a "bust" and the Province has been in trouble ever since. After a year's experience with her $45 per month system Colorado is now ready to quit. Revenues which should be going to schools, highways, hospitals, jails, and to the really needy among the aged are being paid to everyone over 65 whether needy or not. The

Schools To Have Student Patrols

The School Safety Patrol, composed of students at the various schools in the city, was organized here yesterday afternoon by F. E. Fox, safety engineer for the Carolina Motor Club, assisted by Corporal L. L. Jackson of the State Highway Patrol, City Motorcycle Patrolman H. E. Wooten, Superintendent of Schools J. H. Rose and members of the high school faculty.

Sixty-four boys were enrolled in the patrol, for which captains and lieutenants were chosen for each of the four white schools in the city. The 64 youths make up six complete patrols with half enough boys for an additional unit.

Mr. Fox said it was hoped the patrol would be extended to include the Negro schools at a later date. The School Safety Patrol had its inception at Chicago in 1921 with the announced purpose of protecting schoolmates at the curb, permitting them to cross only at intersections, and only during a lull in traffic. Patrol members are taught to direct pedestrian, not vehicular traffic.

The patrol was brought to North Carolina in 1922 by the Carolina Motor Club and now units are organized in most of the large cities of the state, and in many of the smaller communities. It is operating in 3,000 cities in the United States, with approximately 275,000 boys and girls enlisted for service. An estimated 10,000,000 children are protected every school day by patrol members.

The plan was welcomed here by city and school officials and the police department. The Board of Aldermen last night voted $100 to be Beautiful in every detail were the decorations used throughout the home. The rooms were lovely with vases of dahlias and chrysanthemums. The mantels in the living rooms were banked with English ivy and in the dining room a beautifully appointed table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with a crystal bowl of yellow button chrysanthemums with blue candles burning at either end. On the buffet and on the mantel were similar decorations.

The receiving line in the living room was composed of Dr. and Mrs. Simons, and the deacons and their wives, and in the den, where punch was served, were the members of the choir, officers of the church and teachers in the Sunday school.

In the dining room, ice cream, decorated cakes, mints and nuts were served, carrying out the effective color scheme of yellow and blue. About 250 guests called during the evening.

Seeing Through My Windshield

By ETHER NICK, H. D. A.

Falkland H. D. Club: The Falkland H. D. club met Monday night with Mrs. A. C. Fletcher. Reports were compiled for Achievement Day. Several items of business were transacted.

Achievement Day: The annual Home Demonstration Achievement program was held Wednesday in the Greenville Woman's Club building. Woodard, Miss Annie Carroll, Mrs. J. Brooks Tucker, Miss Inez Allen and club secretaries. Two 4-H girls—Mildred Edwards and Frances Earl McLawhorn also took part on the program. All club members co-operated to make the day a successful occasion. Decorating, lunch and courtesy committees helped. Recently K. W. Cobb, a Greenville tobaccoist, gave the home demonstration women a lot at Atlantic Beach for a vacation camp. This announcement was made on Achievement Day. All club members join in thanking Mr. Cobb. This gift is appreciated very much and committees have already been appointed to start building plans.

Farmville No. 2 H. D. Club: Announcements of gifts have been coming thick and fast this week. At the Farmville No. 2 meeting on Thursday afternoon, Mrs. J. R. W. Andrews. "Christmas Suggestions" is the subject this month.

Clean Show Offered By Delmore Brothers

The Delmore brothers and their Tennessee Barn Dance boys who will appear in person at the State Theatre Monday, present what is possibly the cleanest and highest class show of its type appearing in theatres. Their show has plenty of comedy but the best entertainers do not have to resort to low-grade jokes in order to entertain.

During the past seven years the boys have included one sacred song on every radio broadcast and this is also done in their stage appearances. One sacred song will be included in all of their appearances.

Y. W. C. A. Vesper Services.

Continuing a series of programs conducted by the members of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet, Miss Genevieve Eakes of Clinton, led vesper services in the "Y" hut at the college Friday evening, November 4.

She began her talk by reading verses from the 33rd Psalm praising God. "Have you ever stopped to think how much better it would make you feel to stop and praise people?" she asked.

We should help to encourage those who are weak and discouraged. It is disappointing for someone to go on serving people every day without ever a word of appreciation. Man is not just a physical being, but a spiritual one, and when this spirit is not fed, he becomes irritable and rebellious. She illustrated this statement by telling of a man who destroyed himself because he worked with someone whom he thought to be his best friend, yet who never seemed to appreciate what he did.

Praise is distributed as unevenly as wealth. The people who get barely enough to carry on their physical living, who struggle most to keep going, do not get any praise. They are just like the mothers who work and sacrifice for their loved ones, who hear their complaints, but seldom get a word of praise. "We should seek to praise those who work for us and love us," Miss Eakes continued.

Many people who work with God may be able to say that they started through a kind word of some minister or missionary who was interested in them. "Our Lord was a praiser who helped those who were downcast. He said even a cup of cool water given in His name should be praised," she concluded.

will not be counted but the voter must thereupon indicate by a cross mark opposite the name of every other candidate of his choice in the election.

4. If a voter desires to vote for a person whose name does not appear on the ticket, he can substitute a name by writing it in with a pencil or pen in the blank space provided therefor. If the name is written under the name of the candidate whose name was printed on the ballot, and the voter desires to substitute the name of the candidate written in for the name of the candidate printed thereon, the voter should strike out the printed name. If the voter desires then to vote for the straight ticket of the party, including the name of the candidate substituted, the voter may do so by making a cross mark in the circle at the top of the ticket of the party of the candidate for whose name the substitution was made. It is not necessary that the voter make a cross mark in the voting square opposite the name of the candidate whose name is written in, if the voter desires to vote the straight ticket of that party and makes a cross mark in the circle at the head of the ticket. If the voter, however, makes a mark opposite the name of the candidate so written in on the ballot, he should proceed to make a mark in the voting square opposite the names of all other candidates for whom he wishes to vote.

5. In substituting the name of a candidate by writing in the name on the ballot, no stickers can be used and the name cannot be substituted by a rubber stamp or any other way except by writing it in with pen and ink or pencil at the proper place on the ballot.

BREAKING A 33-YEAR-OLD RECORD, this free-legged pacer, Billy Direct, is the new king of the American harness turf since he did the mile in 1:55. BRITISH BLASH ARAB VILL AGE TO SILENCE SNIPERS

This dramatic radiophoto shows a great dynamite explosion by which British troops blew up 40 Arab houses on a hilltop in the village of Mir, Palestine, as a punitive measure against the Arabs for sniping. The blast was set off in the midst of British efforts to halt the bloody racial warfare between Arabs and Jews of the Holy Land.

SHORT SHOTS By HENRY AVERILL. Raleigh, Nov. 5—Revocation of 87 driver's licenses this week brought to 19,300 the total taken away in North Carolina under the revocation act. An unusual feature of the week's record: Two licenses were revoked for manslaughter. The licenses of only two women were revoked, the women and the manslaughter revocations went together. That is to say, the only two women whose permits to drive were taken away were the only two drivers of any sex found to have committed manslaughter. Driving drunk fell just slightly short of its usual tremendous percentage of all revocation causes, but still managed to do right well with 89 out of the total of 97, or something over 91 per cent. There were four cases of hit-and-run driving this week, one each of reckless driving, second offense, and of obtaining license by false and untrue statements. The women whose permits were revoked for manslaughter were Lucille Parrish of Raleigh and Mamie Liley of Asheville.

CHILD BRIDE TAKEN FROM MOTHER

A new home, a ragged doll and a stick of candy brought smiles to 10-year-old Rosie Columbus Tackett, child bride, after County Judge Edward Hill at Prestonsburg, Ky., ordered her sent to an orphanage or a private home following her marriage to Fleming Tackett, 34, a miner. Mrs. Grace Columbus, 200-pound mother of the girl, is shown (right) weeping as she heard the judge read the order.

Again, automatically, the law provides another 30 days, ending on November 28, during which final period no strike or wage cut can mar the smooth performance of railroad service. It's Worked So Far. The railway labor law has been forged through 40 years of trial and error by railway management and men. It was jointly proposed to congress by the roads and the workers themselves. From the start, it worked like a charm on every kind of railway labor dispute, save one—the kind hinging on the unionization of railway employees. So, in 1934, before the now famous Wagner act was passed, the Railway act of 1926 was amended to afford protection for bargaining railway employees, just as the Wagner act affords protection for employees in all other interstate industries. Not only does the law assure collective bargaining and elections for worker representatives, under supervision of the mediation board, but anybody who interferes with the process is risking $1,000 to $20,000 fine and at least six months in jail. Of 64 elements known to be present in the soil, 56 have been found in plants growing in the soil.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE OF FARM LAND. Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in that certain deed of trust executed on the first of April, 1927, by R. P. Singleton and wife, Addie O. Singleton, to the Raleigh Savings Bank and Trust Company, trustee, which appears of record in Book P-16 at page 435 in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County (The Raleigh Savings Bank and Trust Company having been removed and R. B. Lee having been substituted as trustee) and default having been made in the payment of the debt thereby secured and the owner of the note having called upon said substituted trustee to foreclose said deed of trust, the undersigned substituted trustee will on Monday, the 5th day of December, 1938 at 12 o'clock, M before the courthouse door in Pitt County, North Carolina, offer for sale and sell to the highest bidder for cash, the following described real property, to-wit: All that certain piece, parcel or tract of land containing 25.3 acres, more or less, lying and being on the old Washington and Greenville Road in Carolina Township, Pitt County, State of North Carolina, and having the exact courses and distances set forth in a plat of survey made by W. C. Dresbach, Surveyor, in February, 1927, and which plot is on file with the Atlantic Joint Stock Land Bank of Raleigh, the said tract of land being about two and one-half miles southeast from Stokes and about one mile East of Whichards on the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, being bounded on the North by John Robinson, on the board reported to the President that it found no ground for a wage cut.

What It Means: RAILWAY PEACE

By MORGAN M. BEATTY (AP Feature Service Writer). Washington—If you would understand the power of public opinion in the United States, have a look at this year's railroad strike that has not happened. The reason it has not happened is that public opinion is against it. In stopping the threatened strike, public opinion also has stopped a threatened wage cut. Public opinion means you, and you, and you. This peaceful state of affairs has been the rule in the railroad industry ever since Congress passed the little understood Railway Labor Act of 1926.

The Bar of Public Opinion. That law is so constructed that the American public is the final judge and jury in every labor dispute threatening to interrupt the services of the railroads. This year's strike that hasn't happened is a perfect example of how the public does its work. Here's how the act works in general: It makes it a criminal offense to interfere with the organization of employees into unions, or brotherhoods. That assures representation before the bar of public opinion for employees, and management. Every dispute goes through a painstaking series of conferences or hearings, or both, lasting 90 days or longer, before either the employees or the railroads can tie up the nation's basic transportation systems. At first glance, this rigamarole may seem a bit on the balmy side, but it's been found a practical way to give John Citizen every shred of available evidence in a railroad labor dispute.

For these conferences and hearings mean newspaper headlines and create discussion. John Citizen soon gets to know what's going on. And the idea back of the law was that if the public knew all the facts, it would decide the winner of a strike or lockout—and that therefore each side won't be very sure of public opinion before tying up transportation. Began Six Months Ago Here's what happened this year: by Denton and John Bunch. Training School. Jap Scott, Ledyard Ross, Haywood W. THE FOUR YEARS TERM

When the voters of this state go to the polls next Tuesday they will have the opportunity to vote for or against the constitutional amendment that would give sheriffs and coroners in this state a four years term of office instead of a two-year term. Already several of the constitutional offices are for the four years instead of the two years term, and it is our opinion that it would be far better if all the offices were for four years.

Experience has taught us that when a man is elected for a two years term he immediately has to begin laying his plans for the election two years hence, with the result that time and effort that should be used in the carrying out of the duties of office are necessarily devoted to the political angle of holding on to the office. The longer term, we believe, would result in more efficient service in office.

What is true of the county offices we believe likewise to be true in the case of state and federal offices. We believe that we would be far better off if all our officials including legislators and congressmen were elected for a term of four years, eliminating altogether the present system of off-year elections. Such a step naturally might work a hardship on the petty politicians who thrive on the biennial opportunity to suck the candidate for every nickel they can get out of them, but in the end we believe that more efficiency in office would be the result. No doubt the change in the present legislative term is a far off dream but at least our people have the opportunity now to vote to extend the terms of sheriff and coroner to conform to the four year terms of the other constitutional officers.

Chapter 33
The Shirt Is Patched
"I'm going after the sheriff of this county," said Kathleen. "I am over twenty-one years of age and not under the dictates of my father. You'll either give me my property or be arrested for theft."

forward with his sure step. Kathleen believed her heart waited with her, her breath waited. "I brought you some wires," said MacDonald.
"So nice of you," murmured Kathleen. The rose faded from her cheeks with her acute disappointment. Her eyes darkened. "Don't let me detain you."
"You're not." He sat on the stone wall as though grateful for the rest and lit a cigarette. "Go on read them. don't mind me."
"I don't," and won't!" she retorted answering both.
She ripped open the first wire.
DON'T MARRY THAT MAN!
BEATRICE GREGORY
She tore open the second.
ALL IS FORGIVEN. COME HOME. DON'T MARRY THAT AWFUL MAN!
MOTHER.

The bags taken from the car. Kathleen looked through one handbag and turned to Kit-Smyth. "Now, my power of attorney. You've stolen that from this bag. I think you've gone out about as far as you're going to go. No one in this county or in this state is going to listen to you when I've told my story. If we'd waited for you and your right-of-way, those men would have been dead. Come on, now, give it to me!"

She opened the third. It was much too long for a Scotchman to send as a straight wire, but evidently Angus Gregory wasn't feeling Scotch. With increasing delight his daughter read.
DEAR CHILD I AM PROUD OF YOU. THANK GOD YOU WERE THERE TO PUT THAT BOUNDER KIT-SMYTH IN HIS PLACE. YOU ACTED LIKE A TRUE GREGORY WIFE FROM BRIDGE CONVINCE ME HE HAS MISREPRESENTED EVERYTHING FROM START TO FINISH. REGRET MY HASTE IN REPLYING TO LAST LETTER. GLAD YOU DEFIED HIM. IF YOU WOULD LIKE PLEASURE OF DISCHARGING HIM WILL HOLD MY HAND WILL HERE NEW ENGINEER AM MAKING YOU HONORARY SUPERINTENDENT. YOU HAVE MARVEL POSITION. HAPPY TO ADVISE YOU THE BLASTING OPENED NEW VEIN RUNNING BACK AT RIGHT ANGLE TO OLD RIGHT-OF-WAY NO LONGER SUCH VITAL NECESSITY. TRUST I MAY DISCOUNT KIT-SMYTH'S WORD OF YOU BECOMING A MARDONALD TAKE MY ADVICE DON'T MARRY THE MAN WILL BE THERE WITH YOU SUNDAY. LOVE FROM YOUR PROUD FATHER DAY. LOVE FROM YOUR PROUD FATHER DAY.

Reluctantly Kit-Smyth reached in an inner pocket and withdrew the document. Kathleen looked at it to be sure it had not been tampered with. She moved her bags across the line onto MacDonald's property.
"Now go wire my father that his chance of claiming I was insane authorized and willful in turning The Golden Girl over to the rescue of the MacDonald miners is pretty slim. As long as he hadn't enough trust in me to write me, you can tell him for me, that I am no longer a Gregory and I'll appear against him if he tries to bring such a suit!"

"Fighting My Love"
SHE laid the wire aside and looked at "the man." It was ridiculous to admire anyone as much as she admired him. It was rather frightening to feel your lifetime's happiness depended upon him.
"Feel better?" He smiled at her and the world was suddenly righted, in focus, beautiful.
Kathleen handed him the telegram. He read it slowly his face reflecting the emotions each phrase produced. And when he reached the final line he said, "Ha! Hurrah for him. See, he's told you not to marry me. For the first time I have some hopes. I've never yet seen you do anything you were ordered to do."
"Yet?" questioned Kathleen.
"That's what I said. Now stay where you are." He reached out to draw her close, then his voice changed from triumph to seriousness. "Do you know dear, I've wanted to do this from the moment I saw you. I didn't know the desire to punish and to love were so involved. I fought it. I wasn't fighting you. I was fighting myself. I built up a love for you. I tried to build up a good strong hatred and it turned on me. You'll never know."
When Kathleen had use of her lips again she exclaimed, "What do you mean I'll never know? Do you think I wanted to love you? You stiff-necked MacDonald!"
They were at it again. Balmie carried around the rear of the house, saw MacDonald shaking Kathleen by the shoulders. Kathleen flaying at him with an old shirt a blood-stained shirt, a shirt that had been torn in two... and mended.

"No longer a Gregory... ha!"
Kit-Smyth jumped into his car and drove away.
Kathleen stood a moment. She had just renounced her own people. The MacDonalds would welcome her, but she wasn't ready to accept them as an alternative.
Was there no truly neutral ground in Neutrality?
Balmie's house! Wearily she made the several trips down. The old shepherd greeted her lovingly, escorting her each time she went for additional bags.
As Balmie had prophesied, the door was unlocked, there was firewood and tea in the cannister. As she brewed the tea and toasted old bread, Kathleen indulged in serious thinking. For the first time in her life she was truly alone. She believed Donald loved her and would ask her to become a MacDonald, not even in his delirium had he said anything of marriage. And she had thought her father loved her and believed in her.
Reaction from the dramatic tension of the previous days and nights set in. She sought Balmie's cot and for many hours turned and tossed. Perhaps she had been wrong in everything. She was young, her father was old and full of wisdom.
The next morning Kathleen carried her breakfast to the terrace. Bridget found her there.
"We saw smoke coming from the chimney," she explained. "We had no idea where you'd gone to. Kit-Smyth said you wouldn't be on Gregory property. Why didn't you come to us?"
"I couldn't, and this isn't Bridget's property. It's Balmie's. Bridget, how do I have the hearth about Balmie?"
Bridget nodded, her eyes troubled. "He's fine. He needed the rest perhaps more than anything. He sent for his mother last night."
Kathleen nodded. He had sent for his mother. He hadn't sent for her.
"That Awful Man!"

"I couldn't, and this isn't Bridget's property. It's Balmie's. Bridget, how do I have the hearth about Balmie?"

Kathleen nodded. He had sent for his mother. He hadn't sent for her.
"That Awful Man!"

THE men are being transferred to the MacDonald hospital today, those who aren't ready to come home. Kit-Smyth ordered them off the property. Doctor Cleveland and he had a peach of a row.
"What are you going to do, Kathleen? Hadn't you better come up with us?"
"I'll wait for Balmie, then I'm going on."
Bridget waited a few moments as though desirous of saying something. "Well, she stood up, 'I'll see you before you leave. Oh, she thrust forward a package she had been carrying. 'Mrs. MacDonald asked me to give this to you.' Kathleen barely heard her. Donald hadn't called for her. He hadn't sent word to her. Nothing else mattered. She could at least leave the scene with flags flying. She could at least greet Old Balmie in festive attire.
Balmie would like to see her truly feminine. In her bags, somewhere, there was a white ruffled dress embroidered in tiny yellow rosebuds. She'd don that.
She felt better after that; tied her curls back with a thin yellow ribbon and went back to the terrace feeling more in tune with the apple tree.
It was then she saw the package. It contained the other half of the blood-stained shirt; the half Old MacDonald must have worn. She would sew the two together and give the whole to Bridget. No matter what laws the Gregorys laid down, the people of Neutrality would no longer be divided.
The last stitch was taken, the thread mended when she heard someone come around the house. Donald MacDonald paused on the edge of the terrace to look at the girl who waited, then he walked asked, but without much hope.

"That won't be necessary. I must have something that can be taken into my room. There are at least half-dozen costumes in the attic. We're always having them in the army—costume parties. I mean we can look now or you like."
I followed her up three flights of stairs. The storage space was bare except for four or five trunks which stood in an orderly row against the wall. Elizabeth began to delve into one of these—a battered veteran with half-legible labels from all over the Orient plastered haphazard over its surface.
It was a strange collection that she lifted out and placed on the clean sheet which she had spread on the floor—a pith helmet, outmoded party dresses, a handful of old-fashioned hop cards, their small pencils dangling, a brilliant embroidered shawl which, when I lifted it, ran through my fingers heavy and fluid.
She delved once more and brought to the surface a suit of Chinese pajamas of a heavenly shade of peacock blue. I reached for them covetously.
"I'm sure they will fit you," she said, but with an odd note of doubt in her voice. "... And they're a lovely color with your red hair."
She paused and thought deeply. "You know the Chinese girls really wear them on the street, so they're not actually immodest... I know!" Her face brightened. She dove back into the trunk, explaining as she worked.
"A mandarin coat that you can wear with it, so you won't look as if you were just wearing ordinary pajamas." Finding what she sought, she held it up for my inspection—a lavish garment of heavy black silk, richly embroidered in gold thread.
"Of course it's a man's coat, but that won't matter. It will look ever so much better, don't you think so?"
There is really no explaining Elizabeth. She stepped boldly out of the nineties.
And that was why that warm night I was to wear the lovely blue pajamas almost entirely concealed under the hot black folds of the mandarin coat—a gorgeous, conspicuous garment whose damning, bloodstained appearance was to lead me before morning perilously near to a charge of murder.

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

The Characters
Katherine Cornish, myself, visiting Elizabeth on a mid-western Army post.
Elizabeth, the colonel's daughter.
Yesterday: On the train a girl stares at me. She seems strangely familiar.

Chapter Two
The Mandarin Coat
"I HOPE you don't mind Annie," Elizabeth was saying hurriedly when the kitchen door opened again. This time only the head came into the dining room, an expression of elaborate innocence on the aggressive face.
"I suppose you'll be wanting the car this afternoon?"
"Certainly," Elizabeth's manner was cold.
"All right. All right. I just thought if you wasn't using it I might run into town and do me week-end marketing..."
The head withdrew and indistinct mumbling could be heard.
"She's so provoking about my car," Elizabeth murmured indignantly. "Ever since I got it she's been better than to ask Father for his, but she can't seem to realize that I'm grown. She's been with tion, I couldn't for the life of me remember whether there had been anything strained in her words or manner. It was true that she had referred to Barney as Mr. Nelson, but that was like her.

I haven't really described Elizabeth yet. She was built proudly, like the ancient goddesses, tall and with lovely curves that she kept under rigid control. She bore herself royally, even in a rocking chair, and her fine flaxen hair was wound around her head like a coronet. She had good features, fine clear skin that was as innocent of make-up as a baby's, and blue eyes that were grave and honest. She wore no look of conscious beauty; and that, perhaps, is why so many who knew her looked on her and found her plain.
But I can't describe her better than to say that no one ever called her Betty.
Costumes
"THERE was something else I wanted to tell you," she pondered, a thoughtful line between her brows. The rocker creaked. "Oh, I know. Mr. Nelson telephoned last night—he's chairman of the hop committee—and said they'd decided to make it a costume affair. They thought being in costume might liven people up a bit."
"Is there any place in the village where I can rent something?"

Elizabeth thought the Mandarin coat would be a more modest costume.

us for years, of course—and since Mother died just after the war—and she thinks of herself as one of the family."
"Can she drive?"
"She says she can, but I'm sure I don't know what she learned, unless it was while her husband was alive. He was a sergeant in the regiment, you know—killed in action. Of course cars are very different now, and I don't suppose she realizes that."
"I never heard her so talkative before."
We sat on the veranda for a while, talking lazily and listening to the drowsy hush of the afternoon.
"I'm afraid you'll be bored here, it's so quiet," Elizabeth said apologetically.
"Although I protested the suggestion I could not know until later how great was her understatement. I was to be anything but bored.
Announcement Party
SHE rocked and smiled. "There's polo at four. It won't be a good game, but if you like we'll drive over."
"You said we're going out to dinner."
"Yes, Anne Carewe is entertaining before the hop. Did you meet her when you were here before?"
"Once. They had just come. She's the pocket-size Venus, isn't she, with the pansy eyes?"
"Isn't she lovely?" Elizabeth's tribute was a shade more serene than mine. She hesitated, went on, "Men find her very attractive."
"I know, I noticed that."
She rocked slowly, hands calm in her lap.
"I believe it is to be an announcement party," she said a shade too steadily—or was I imagining things?
You read that expression about your heart standing still. Mine certainly stumbled and took a long time about starting on. I don't know what I was thinking for a minute. Charlie was carefree, but I wouldn't expect him to get engaged to two girls at the same time—not in a rational moment. I wouldn't. But I had not been exactly rational since that queer experience on the station platform.
The rocker creaked. "Yes," she said calmly. "I'm almost sure that she and Mr. Nelson are engaged."
For a minute I wasn't thinking much about anything but my relief, so that afterward, when I thought back over the conversa-

PHANTOMS IN THE WYTHAYDEN

High School Grid Tilt Here Friday Ended 6-6 Deadlock

Superior punting and a determined Ayden line almost stymied the Greenville High School Phantoms at Third street stadium yesterday as the Tornadoes held the locals to a six-all tie in the second dod-dod for the Greenville gridder this season.
Ayden scored early in the opening quarter and then settled down with the apparently avowed purpose of holding the Phantoms. This they did with the exception of a touchdown in the third period. Neither team converted the extra point and the match was called a draw at the end of regulation time limit.
Ayden penetrated the Greenville defense by means of a forward pass from Quarterback White to B. McLarnon to rack up the first scoring of the game. After that Ayden was kept mostly on the defensive. Kinlaw for Ayden showed the fans some extra good punting. He averaged about 45 yards for each attempt, which is good in any old class of football.
Moving down the field in a determined effort to make a marker, the Phantoms pulled up to the Ayden three-yard stripe, from which J. B. Kittrell carried the ball over.
Greenville completed two passes and made eight first downs. Ayden made three first downs and completed one pass.
Score by quarters:
Greenville 0 0 6 0-6
Ayden 6 0 0 0-6
Starting lineups:
Subs for Greenville—Babcock, Peterson, Scott, Woodard, Webb, Moore; Ayden—F. Nobles, Fleming.
Next Friday—Armistice Day—the Phantoms will play Goldsboro at that place.

Most Valuable

Chosen the most valuable baseball player in the American League for the third time, Jimmy Fox, the Boston slugger, flashed his big smile at hearing the news upon returning to his home in Philadelphia from a hunting trip.

Red Grange Heads Pure-Oil Contest

According to reports from the Colonial Oil Company, distributors of Pure Oil Products, Red Grange is still as great an attraction in the sports world as he ever was. Although it has been thirteen years since Red finished his three years of college football (during which he gained over a mile in actual yardage on the gridiron), literally thousands of fans are participating in the big football contests he now features on his Thursdays and Saturdays radio programs.
Each week during the contest a free Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth 4-door sedan is given away as first prize for picking winners and estimating scores of sixteen of the next Saturday's games. One hundred and one additional prizes consist of 21 Philco radios (car or table models) 30 boxes of six pairs of either men's or women's Realsilk hosiery, and 50 Spalding Official Football autographed by Red Grange.
Entry blanks, attached to handy football score sheets containing lots of real football information, can be obtained from any Colonial Oil Company dealer.

he declared, "I believe those charged with this administration are dopeal of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, Civil Conservation Corps, Home Owners' Loan Corporation, Federal Housing Authority, Tennessee Valley Authority, Rural Electrification, even the Social Security, PWA and WPA. He discussed each briefly, outlining some of their advantages. "But," he continued, "we hear no criticism from the Republicans of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, because this agency took care of the big corporations."

The meeting was presided over by Dr. Paul E. Jones of Farmville, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee. Dr. Jones introduced Mayor M. K. Bount, who in turn presented S. B. Underwood Jr., president of the local Young Democratic club. Mr. Underwood introduced Rep. Cooley. All of the preliminary speakers urged a good vote at the polls Tuesday and Chairman Jones closed the meeting with a statement "never important to go to the polls and support our President, who is on trial. Saying that he realized that it was an 'off-year' election, he urged the Democrats to exhibit an interest lest they get out of harness."

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

Alligator or avocado pears are ripe enough to serve when the flesh yields slightly under gentle pressure of the fingers. To hasten ripeness, wrap the fruit in several thicknesses of paper and store in a room of moderate temperature. To retard ripening, place in the refrigerator.
Ice cream tarts make appetizing surprise desserts for luncheon. Bake pastry dough in rather deep pans. When ready to serve spread the pastry cases with tasty fruit sauce and then cover it generously with vanilla ice cream. Add a pinch of chopped chilled ginger milled with toasted pecans.

PIONEERING BIG ELECTION FACTOR

state is so poor now that the pensions have been cut to $7 and may shortly be stopped altogether.
Paradise for Poles
Politicians are asking furiously for details of these "pension" plans. The reason for such interest is obvious. The old-age pension racket is made to order for the politicians. The one great worry of the politicians is how to "take care" of his faithful workers. He cannot afford to let any of the "boys" around the desk. He cannot be too open about patronage. So here is the perfect setup. He can put any number of friends and relatives on the public payroll, via old age assistance, without anyone knowing about it. They do not even need

Gray-Hair' Line Rising

Why? Because the rate of increase of the population of the United States is declining. This means that the percentage of oldsters is mounting and will continue to mount from now on. In 1900 only 1 per cent of the population was older than 65. In 1920 this figure reached 49 per cent and in the last 18 years it has jumped to 8.5 per cent. This percentage will continue to mount very rapidly from now on. Furthermore, in respect to a percentage of workers—rather than of population—the proportion of people over 65 is much greater. Moreover, under the new Wage and Hour Law it may be increasingly difficult for old people to secure jobs.
In addition to the vicious economic aspects of the problem, there is a deeper implication. "Tommy Why Father and Why Mother" is one of the Ten Commandments. Dumping parents on the state is fundamentally undermining to our national character. There is no question that old folks should be taken care of. I think that the Federal Old Age Pension program is alright. Those who contribute toward their own old age assistance are entitled to such help. The idea of pension for reward of service is splendid, but certainly not as reward for indifference or waste.

An ultimatum to Washington. Irrespective of this, one thing is fundamental: If the additional burden of old age assistance is to be placed on industry, then industry must be helped to bear it. It is not more possible to get around certain fundamental economic principles than it is to get around the Multiplication Table. If the ox is to be given an additional load he must be given additional food. If more efficiency is to be expected from

(Continued from page one) appearance of the jail and inmates unquestionably show that those in charge of such matters are doing their work in a very able and efficient manner.

The County Home was visited and found in good condition, and excellently supervised. The inmates are well cared for, both as to food and treatment. The corn, hay and potato crops are excellent and will be entirely sufficient to supply the Home for another year. There are some seventy-five or more hogs being grown for meat and lard, which will produce more than enough for the consumption of the Home. In this connection, we might add, that we find that such surplus of meats, lard, and vegetables including potatoes, are being sold to the use of the County Jail, and that such food stuff bought from the County Home constitute a minimum of 31 per cent of the food stuffs purchased for jail use. All the milk, butter, poultry, and vegetables of all kinds (both green and canned) necessary for the use of the County Home, is produced on the County Home farm. In our opinion, those in charge of the conduct of the County Home are furnishing a fine example of ability and efficiency.

We find the Prison Camp in excellent condition, properly and efficiently managed. The prisoners are well cared for in every respect, and provided with plenty of food and clothing. From our observation and inspection of this camp, we feel that the superintendent of the Camp is doing a very creditable job. In this connection, we wish to recommend to those in charge that the young boys of this camp be segregated from the older and hardened criminal inmates thereof. We feel that it is an injustice to some reckless youngster, who may be the victim of the leadership of some older person in crime, that they be exposed to these older and sometime incorrigible criminals. Further in this connection, having in mind, the wholesale delinquency or escapes that have taken place recently, we wish to recommend to those in authority, that the present type of prison camp buildings, be re-built into cells on the inside, instead of the present dormitory style, which permits the too free intercourse between the prisoners.

As stated in our September 1938 report, that the lack of time precluded investigation and inspection of schools and school buses, but would be deferred to a later term, we now offer the following: The Grand Jury was divided into six committees of three members each, and prior to the sitting of this Term of Superior court, these committees made a thorough and complete inspection of every school, both white and Negro, with reference to condition of repair, water supply, sanitation, and further needs. These Committees also inspected every school bus in the county school system. We are filing with Mr. D. H. Conley, the county superintendent of public instruction with copy thereof to the Board of County Commissioners, Board of Health and Board of Education, a detailed statement of such condition of repair, water supply, sanitation, and further needs. We particularly recommend the purchase of additional necessary lands or grounds for the use of the white school in Grifton. A detailed statement of this recommendation is being furnished to the County Board of Education. We find a most excellent administration of the schools of Pitt County. Especially noticeable was the courtesy and efficiency of the officials and teachers in the system.

We visited and inspected all of the ABC stores, offices, warehouses and records, and find them to be excellently conducted and kept.

We made some suggestions and recommendations in our September report, which are again reiterated.

In submitting this report, we wish to express our appreciation to His Honor J. Paul Frizzelle, Judge presiding and the Hon. D. M. Clark Solicitor, and all Court officers for the assistance rendered, and the courtesies extended to us during this term of court.

Tobacco Firm On New Bright Belt

Raleigh, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Tobacco prices this week were firm on the New Bright belt, steady on the Old belt, and about the same as last week on the Middle belt, the Federal-State Departments of Agriculture reported today.

For Eastern North Carolina New bright markets a strong demand was shown for common qualities, with offerings principally common to fair quality leaf and smoking leaf. Offerings had a good volume of lugs and sales volume decreased sharply from the week before.

No season figures were given. Old belt tobacco markets had common to fair quality leaf and fair to good quality lugs as principal offerings, leaf continuing to predominate. Choice and fine quality grades had less volume.

Sales in the Old belt to October 29 were reported at 73,492,912 pounds at $24.24 per hundred pounds. Leaf grades were in good demand and the majority of such grades increased on Middle belt markets. Smoking leaf, cutters and lugs

The meeting voted to appoint a committee of three men for each polling place in referendum "to see that we get an honest election."

Calling for both court action and votes against the crop program in the coming referendum, Talmadge predicted that "if constitutional law is put up to that court in Washington (the Supreme court) they'll declare that law (the crop control measure) unconstitutional."

Last Word in Comfort--Remain Snug Abed While Mystery Control Operates Radio

Like to hear your favorite programs on the radio while lying in bed at night? Are there certain things you want from the airlines first thing in the morning? If so, it no longer is necessary to clamber from your snug retreat beneath the covers, manipulate the radio if it happens to be in the same room, or trot downstairs to tune in the required station and then back again to turn it off for the night. Philco has made this easy and pleasurable with Mystery Control, the amazing invention contained in the little portable box resting on the table beside the bed. A flick of the finger on the dial and stations are selected, programs shifted, volume controlled. Then when the urge to sleep grows too great, a slight pressure upon the slider and the program slowly fades out while you turn over to sleep. This control, which operates without wires, and, according to engineers, is destined to revolutionize radio and radio listening, can be carried about the house, or outdoors, and will operate the radio, even though walls intervene up to a distance of 150 feet.
