PLAN TO LEASE BRITISH GUANA FOR REFUGEES

At Least 10,000 Sq. Mi. Would be Used For Jews

CONSIDER AREAS IN EAST AFRICA

Jewish Relief Societies Unable To Take Care of Thousands Needy in Germany

London, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today of plans to lease at least 10,000 square miles in British Guiana to provide homes for German Jews seeking refuge abroad from the Nazi regime's anti-Jewish campaign.

The Prime Minister also disclosed that negotiations had made favorable progress for the settlement of Jewish refugees in Tanganyika, formerly German East Africa, and other territories in Africa.

Tanganyika now is held by British under League mandate and Chamberlain last week declared the British government was not considering its return to Germany to satisfy Chancellor Hitler's colonial demands.

Chamberlain's disclosure was made prior to the opening of a scheduled general debate on the question of minorities in Europe.

In Berlin Germany's 11-day anti-Semitic drive, which has deprived German Jews of virtually all freedom and reduced tens of thousands to destitution showed signs of abatement.

Window smashing and decrees will have eliminated by the end of the year all retail business owned by German Jews. One third of Jewish-owned stores will be taken over by non-Jews and the rest simply abandoned.

Present owners will not be permitted to salvage ready cash by sales or auctions. They have been told to "liquidate" and with few exceptions have been forbidden to operate their business during the time remaining before the decree wiping them out becomes effective January 1.

Jewish relief societies can not care for tens of thousands who apply for help and the doors of many still are closed. No foreign relief societies have been established in Berlin.

There was at least a temporary end to the wholesale arrests and a recent sharp decline in German exports may prove a momentary life saver at least for the Jewish export trade.

Grade 'A' Prisoner Leaves Pitt Camp

Sam Shadis, Sent Up from Elizabeth City, Walks Off With Only Three Months to Serve

Sam Shadis, grade "A" prisoner at the State prison camp in Pitt County "walked off" some time yesterday afternoon and Superintendent F. W. Jacobs said he had little doubt but what the man stole a car from Farmville and fled the county.

Shadis was a trusty at the camp and therefore was not locked up, was last seen about the camp about 4 o'clock. He was sent up from Elizabeth City for larceny of an automobile and driving while drunk. His two year sentence would have been completed in three more months.

Superintendent Jacobs said he was "satisfied" the convict stole the Cadillac automobile owned by A. C. Monk of Farmville, the vehicle having been stolen a short while after the prisoner was last seen at the camp.

With the escape of Shadis, three prisoners who have escaped the camp remain at large. Chesley Thomason, who leaped from a truck at the corner of Green and Third streets in Greenville, and Lloyd Witherington, who escaped while working with a crew near Falkland, are the other two at large.

The schools will not return to work until Monday. All business are expected to be at a standstill on Thursday in observance of the holiday.

Estimated 2,000 Die In Fire in Changsha, China

Three Officials Executed For Starting Conflagration

Eighteen Defendants Face Recorder L. C. Skinner Today

Edwin Gill To Be At Welfare Meet

Shanghai, Nov. 21.—(AP)—A five-day fire which razed Changsha capital of Hunan province, was reported today to have caused 2,000 deaths and brought the execution of three Chinese officials accused of starting the conflagration.

Commencing last Sunday, the fire started in anticipation of the city's capture by a slowly advancing Japanese column, reduced Changsha to ruins.

Chinese officials at Chungking, the temporary capital, declared the fires started both accidentally and through the "permeate zeal" of local authorities anxious to carry out China's "scorched earth" policy of leaving little of value to the invaders.

The Japanese still were 40 miles north of the city and Chinese army commanders reported Japanese attacks had been repulsed along the Yochow-Changsha railway.

At the same time Chinese said they had recaptured Thunyang, 20 miles east of Sienning, which is 50 miles south of Hankow. They said 500 Japanese had been killed in the engagement.

Louis Adams was convicted of drunkenness and ordered to pay the costs of court or serve 30 days.

Will Latham, Negro, was found guilty of having illegal whiskey in his possession and was fined $15 and court costs, or serve a 30-day road sentence.

Sally Price, Negro, was acquitted of a drunkenness charge.

Jake Copper, Negro, was acquitted of careless and reckless driving and hit and run.

Robert Harrington, Joe Langley, Joe Blow and Dolly Mae Blow, all Negroes, were acquitted of engaging in riotous and disorderly conduct and with assault.

Martha Langley, Negro, also was acquitted of assault with a deadly weapon.

E. D. Anderson was convicted of skipping a lodging bill and was ordered to pay the sum or serve a 10-day jail sentence.

Three residents of Winterville, route one, Fred and Alba Worthington and Miss Celia Worthington received injuries yesterday morning when the automobile in which they were riding was struck from the rear by a small truck driven by Preston Smith of Greenville.

Patrolman C. B. Williams, who investigated the accident, said Smith would be charged with reckless driving. The patrolman said Smith was driving too fast and when the Worthington car started to turn in at Red Oak church struck it in the rear.

FELT BRITAIN WOULD REFUSE TO TRAIN ARMY

Doubtful That Troops Would Aid France in Case of War

ICY ATMOSPHERE TO GREET PARLEY

Chamberlain and Halifax to Arrive in Paris This Week For Conferences

Paris, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Indications that Great Britain would refuse to train a large army to aid French troops on the continent in the event of war appeared likely today to lend an icy atmosphere to Premier Daladier's talks with Prime Minister Chamberlain this week.

Two days before Chamberlain is scheduled to arrive with Viscount Halifax his Foreign Minister, sources close to the government said that the British Premier again had indicated convictions that his country's large fleet and growing air force were a sufficient contribution to the British-French military cooperation.

Circles close to the foreign office reported the question of renewed efforts to facilitate the departure and resettlement of Jewish refugees from Germany would be discussed during the visit of Chamberlain and Halifax.

Discussions between the British and French ministers, it was ascertained, will deal chiefly with defense against a possible attack from the Fascist partners, Italy and Germany.

This was decided upon, politicians said, because it was felt that international protests against Nazi attacks upon Jews forced a temporary shelving of Chamberlain's project for further appeasement of Chancellor Hitler, possibly with colonial territory.

The French attitude has been that its army of approximately 700,000 men can not bear the brunt of a war against Germany and Italy.

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Nov. 21.—Exemption of homesteads from taxation to the extent of $300 would wreck the financial structure of local taxing units, the Classification Amendment Commission points out in the exhaustive report it made last week after months of studying the record.

On the other hand, the commission reported that homestead exemption can be granted if the matter is looked at solely in the light of its effect upon local finances.

On these phases of the question the report said: "At a $300 exemption level the one so far primarily advocated in this state the majority of counties would have to increase their county-wide tax rates less than 7 cents if all taxes were affected and less than 3 cents if debt service taxes are excluded. A serious problem is still created in specific places, and undoubtedly local tax levying officials would hate to make these increases when no additional governmental services are being provided, but it is fairly apparent that an exemption of $300 would not fatally prejudice the financial structure of most local units.

It would create stress and strains, but as a purely fiscal proposition its effects could be weathered by most units without fendering.

For that matter, it is possible that most units could weather the stress attendant upon some larger exemption, though, as the $1,000 level is approached it becomes increasingly apparent that such a strain would be placed upon local finances as to make the wisdom of such a step, under present conditions, very doubtful indeed.

"It may be said that looking solely at the effect of exemption upon local finances, the effect is not such as to necessitate the conclusion that no homestead exemption can be granted.

"On the other hand, should an exemption of $300 be granted, it would wreck the financial structure of most local units, the Commission points out in the exhaustive report it made last week after months of studying the record.

COURT TO RULE ON SIT-DOWNS

Agrees to Review Decision by Federal Circuit Court

Washington, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The Supreme Court agreed today to review a lower court decision that an employer may dismiss workmen who engage in a sit-down strike.

This ruling, by the Federal Circuit Court at Chicago, upheld the Pansteel Metallurgical Corporation of North Chicago in discharging employees who seized two buildings in 1937.

After retaining possession of the buildings for nine days the workmen were driven out by police with the use of tear and nauseating gas.

The court also reaffirmed a previous decision holding that the General Talking Pictures Corporation of New York City, had infringed on patents owned by the Western Electric Company and others for use in making talking pictures.

NEED HELP ON RIGHT OF WAY

Constitutional Aid Necessary to Solve Problem

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Nov. 21.—North Carolina is in danger of losing many tourists and resulting revenues therefrom unless Congress comes to its aid in straightening out the problem of right-of-way for the Blue Ridge Parkway through the Quail Inn, a reservation west of Asheville.

There has been no official statement of indication of the next steps contemplated by the State Highway Commission, but it is becoming increasingly apparent that simplest solution of the matter would be a special act of Congress authorizing transfer to the Federal Parkway service, either by condemnation or otherwise, of the necessary right-of-way from Soco Gap to Cherokee.

Up to the present completion of the parkway has been made impossible by refusal of the Cherokee Indians to agree to any sort of proposition whereby they would give the government the necessary 400 feet right of way through the reservation. Every effort has been brought to bear up them to exchange the right-of-way for even more valuable lands elsewhere, but so far without success.

The state, it seems, is prevented from acquiring the right-of-way through condemnation by refusal of the Secretary of Interior to grant it permission to institute proceedings, a permission which is necessary under the law.

The whole situation appears to be involved in a legal and political tangle so involved as to require drastic methods to unravel it.

The special act method was suggested by the Interior Department, and it seems likely that special efforts will be made to get such an act passed at the coming congressional session.

Many Germans interpret plans to settle German Jews in their former colonies as a move to prevent the return of such war-lost possessions to Germany.

One authoritative commentator declared "the Tanganyika step is an obvious attempt to prejudice the colonial question."

Oliver Jordan McKee, 62, of Leggett's crossroads section, died in the local hospital yesterday afternoon at 5:35 o'clock from injuries he received when he fell while making shingles in a swamp Wednesday.

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at the home of a brother-in-law, J. Edgar Ingalls, also of the Leggett's crossroads section. Burial followed in the Ingalls cemetery near the home. The services were conducted by Rev. M. A. Woodard, Free Will Baptist minister of Winterville.

Mrs. McKee is survived by his wife, Mrs. Malina Ingalls McKee; two sons, Milford LeRoy McKee of Bath and John Edgar McKee of the home place; one daughter, Mrs. John Haymon of the home place; two brothers, William McKee of Martin county and Willis McKee of Emporia, Va.; three half sisters, Mrs. Mack Lilly of Beaufort county, Mrs. Johnson Hodges of Old Fort and Miss Emily Leggett of Stokes. Seven grandchildren also survive.

The campaign has been carried into every nook and cranny of the state. Before the primaries candidates were sounded out on their views and were subjected to all the wiles and pressures that would be brought.

After the primaries nominees were besieged. Now that the election is over the P. I. C. has staged a series of district meetings all over the state at which "big shot" speakers have voiced their approval of the amendment.

One week's civil term of Superior court convened here this morning, but was recessed until tomorrow morning after several submissions and other business was disposed of. Judge Uther Hamilton of Morehead City, is presiding over the session.

Two North Carolinians were cremated in the cab of an oil truck near here Sunday when their heavy vehicle smashed into a train and burst into flames.

State Trooper, Dameron, who investigated, said the men had been identified as Ernest Keene, driver, of Four Oaks, N. C., and Arthur M. Brown of Winston-Salem.

Highway 301 was blocked for nearly four hours as the truck and its trailer burned.

The chief announced purpose of the proposed organization is to secure uniform retirement funds for employees of all municipalities.

Preliminary steps include the endorsement of the North Carolina League of Municipalities.

City Clerk J. O. Duval was asked to attend the meeting, but was unable to go because of the press of municipal business.

"ASK FOR THRIFTIES"

SOCIAL and LOCAL

Y. W. C. A. Services.

The Friday and Sunday night Y. W. C. A. services at the college were both conducted by students this past week-end. Miss Irene Mitcham of Goldsboro, a member of the "Y" cabinet, having led the Friday night service, and Lester Ridenhour, men's student government president, the one Sunday night.

"Love," was the theme of the talk given by Miss Mitcham at vesper services at the "Y" hut on Friday evening.

She began her talk by reading from the first chapter of John. "These verses are so familiar to us that when we hear them read they are just words being called," she began, "but they should be much more." Then, declaring that if we want a rich, full life, we must have in it the love referred to in John I, she went on to suggest three ways that we may show his love. "First, we must love God our Maker and Creator. Taking a scriptural basis for this, she quoted the first commandment. "And if you love God," she continued, "you must love Christ, God's gift to the world." Second, we must love the things for which Christ stands—all the things that make a righteous life. Christ was the light from which the Hebrew people failed to light their lives. It is necessary to follow the principles for which he stands.

Third, we must love our fellow-men. "This isn't always a very easy task," she said. "Yet there should be no snubbing when Mary passes, while when Jane passes we break our necks to speak to her because her father is rich."

There is much that students can do to create good will among large nations, but they can use their influence in their own communities. Miss Mitcham concluded by saying that we may live a full life in loving God, his Son and fellowmen and living by the principles for which he stands.

In discussing the treatment of mankind he said that one must not be selfish, for when he is selfish, he is harming not only himself, but his fellowmen also. Roland Page, a Negro singer, he said, was once told by his manager, that people would snub him because he was a Negro, but he must learn to overlook it, because anger and revenge are a great handicap. It is necessary for people to learn not to duplicate injury people have done to them.

Then he said "But you ask what you are going to do to people who have been unkind to you." When the Romans were persecuting the Jews, Jesus told the Jews to go another mile when the Romans told them to go one.

We must be trustworthy, he concluded. We want friends we can depend on. We also need dependable leadership.

College Play Presented. Local students contributed much to the success of the play, "Sunshine," given at the college Friday night by the junior class to raise funds for the junior-senior banquet next spring. The play was a comedy-melodrama in which two young people fall in love against a background of a sanitarium, in the midst of an odd lot of patients, one of whom helps foil a crook in his plot to get a fortune from one of the main characters. Miss Geraldine Harris acted well the part of Sunshine, a walf who has become head nurse in the sanitarium, finally, and who wins the love of the uncultured hero, played by Yates Mason of Atlantic. Harvey Deal again won laurels by his presentation of the character of a ridiculous old man, this time one who was a patient in the sanitarium and who was fond of his "tonic."

Ethel Gaston made a good neurotic old lady devoted to her parrot. Elizabeth Wilson, though a minor character in the play, added to its thrills by her playing of the "mental case" who imagined herself a detective and finally helped bring the crook to justice. Her maniacal laugh contributed especially to the creation of her part.

Miss Doris Burney of Lumberton, and Lindsay Whichard of Stokes, were a rather convincing pair of lovers; and Miss Blanche VanDyke of Henderson, as the woman who had more operations than anyone else in the sanitarium, and Miss Alice Allgood of Fayetteville, as her naughty little girl, worked well together. Miss Lucy Ann Barrow, LaGrange junior, made a very creditable first appearance here as a nurse, and William Ward James of Winterville, played the part of the villain. The play was under the direction of Clifton Britton who is also pres-

Clark Co., Inc., New York, Chicago, Indianapolis, Philadelphia, Kansas City, Richmond. 70,000 CHILDREN! Seventy thousand children are alive today because back in 1922 a few citizens with courage and vision determined that the dangers of the machine age must be met by education. This good news comes from the Center for Safety Education of New York University. With it comes another bit of information that should provoke real thought. In a publication entitled "A New Milestone in Safety Education," the Center says: "Traffic accident statistics reveal two age levels on which special stress in safety must now be laid. In the period from 1922 to 1937, the death rate for children of school age decreased by 13 per cent, the rate for adult groups increased by an average of 160 per cent, and for pre-school children increased by 35 per cent. This indicates that these two age levels—adult and pre-school—are vitally important and will be considered in studies conducted by the Center." What has been accomplished in the school classroom through safety education can and will be repeated in the home, on the streets and highways, in shop and factory, while the good work goes on with increased momentum and scope in our elementary and high schools. Such is the goal of the Center for Safety Education, which was established last July under a grant by one of the pioneers in the organized safety movement, the National Conservation Bureau of Casualty and Surety Executives. While the scope of the project extends over the whole field of safety education, the primary purpose is to train teachers to teach safety understandably, practically, thoroughly, and effectively. Shortly the nation's accident prevention forces will be reinforced by increasing battalions of men and women who have been trained to teach safe living. Thus America brings into play new and more effective weapons against that most ruthless of all public enemies—a killer who strikes at young and old alike, a wastrel who costs us more than $2,000,000,000 annually, a maimer who laughs at human suffering—the preventable accident. (Industrial News Review).

OFFER REPORT ON EXEMPTION (Continued from Page One) exemption of less than $1,000 be granted it must be conceded that its primary (though not exclusive) purpose is not to encourage an increase in home ownership, but to grant more favorable treatment than now prevails to present home owners and to those who become home owners regardless of exemption.

SHORT SHOTS By HENRY AVERILL Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Nov. 21—As an appetizer to his biennial report, energetic Secretary of State Thad Eure presented a collection of data about the State—its name, flower, toast, seal, etc.—which should be of real interest to citizens-at-large and of particular value to youngsters who haven't otherwise had an opportunity to learn these things. There's nothing of the "scoop" about them—they're all been told and retold, but they are things worth the retelling, so this column will today be dedicated to them. The Great Seal: The present Great Seal of North Carolina is a representation of the figures of Liberty and Plenty, looking toward each other, but not more than half fronting each other, and otherwise disposed as follows: Liberty, the first figure, standing, her pole with a cap on it in her left hand and a scroll with the word "Constitution" inscribed thereon in her right hand. Plenty, the second figure, sitting down, her right arm half extended toward Liberty, three heads of wheat in her right hand, and in her left the small end of her horn, the mouth of which is resting at her feet, and the contents of the horn rolling out. In the exergon is inserted the words "May 20, 1775" above the coat of arms. Around the circumference is the legend "The Great Seal of North Carolina" and the motto "Esse Quam Videri". The Motto: "Esse Quam Videri," translated "To Be Rather than to Seem." It is a little singular that until an act of 1833 the state had no motto since its declaration of independence. It was one of the very few without one and the only one of the thirteen original states that had none. State Flower: A number of reference books list the goldenrod. The oxeye daisy has been designated by an unofficial vote of the schools. No flower has been officially designated. The State Bird: The Carolina Chickadee was designated by popular vote in 1931 under auspices of the State Women's Clubs. The General Assembly on May 8, 1933, officially designated it as the state bird, but repealed its action seven days later. No bird is officially designated. The State Colors: There are no officially designated colors. Many generally accept the colors of the University of North Carolina—blue and white. The State's most famous toast: It is not officially designated, but was composed in 1904 by Mrs. Harry C. Martin, former resident of Raleigh, now living in Tennessee: "Here's to the land of the long-leaf pine The summer land where the sun doth shine; Where the weak grow strong And the strong grow great, Here's to down home, The Old North State."

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

The Characters

Katherine Cornish, myself, visiting Elizabeth on a mid-western Army post.
 Elizabeth, Colonel Wright's daughter.
 Adam Drew, acting commanding officer.

Yesterday: The strange woman is the girl I saw on the train. She loses consciousness and Adam sends me to the hospital where the others are waiting for news of Anne.

Chapter 15 'Who Is She?'

DOC MOORE'S glance went from face to face. His own was calm, professionally detached. "There's nothing anyone can do," he said.

The words lay in the room like the visible presence of death. Elizabeth groaned for a chair-back. Barney's face jerked, his eyes closed. He stumbled to the window and looked out into the darkness. Annie's hands twitched in her lap. Then she was beside Elizabeth, peering up at her with her little gnarled face that was like a withered, wind-fallen apple.

"You'd best be takin' me to—to her mother," she said.

Barney turned from the window.

"Shall I go with you, Elizabeth?" he asked gently.

Her pitiful eyes searched his face, seemed to mark the composure he had gained.

"No, you go on to the club—see what Major Drew wants. I'll be along in a few minutes."

Doc Moore was telling Annie that he would be in to see Mrs. Carewe as soon as he could. Then the three of them were gone, and I was delivering my message in a quick undertone.

He was already fumbling with the tapes of the surgical gown which he was wearing over his white drills.

"I'll ride with you—you can tell me the details," he said. "Turn your car around. I'll be right out."

He joined me in a minute, dressed once more for evening and carrying his emergency kit.

"Now tell me again," he directed as I headed the car down Officers' Row.

So I described once more my first sight of the girl on the stairs, the peculiar motions she was making and my finding her collapsed a few minutes later. He questioned me minutely about the color of her face, and was I sure there was foam on her lips? Then he made me describe in detail her actions when I first saw her.

"The aura," he murmured.

"What? Do you think she was poisoned?"

"No—that is, I'll have to see her, of course. Tell me, was she breathing when you touched her?"

"I—I didn't notice. You see, I thought she was dead—I took it for granted. You think she may not have been?"

"Possible—with a heart."

He was silent for a long minute. We finished past Elizabeth's car parked in front of the Carewe's quarters.

"Did you ever see anyone in an epileptic seizure?" he asked suddenly.

"Heavens, no. You—you mean that girl—that's what it was?"

"Sounds like it. That motion of the arm—the aura. Typical warning of the nervous system. She would know, you see, and try to summon help."

'Come If You Must'

THEN I should have stayed—instead of leaving her there.

"There was nothing you could do. It was all over by the time you reached her. Of course this is all speculation. I shouldn't make a diagnosis until I see the patient. By all means keep quiet about it. She may very well have seen something—nervous shock often brings on these attacks."

As we wheeled in at the curb I saw Barney mounting the front steps of the club. I drew Doc Moore after me to the door of the dressing room.

My luck held; we reached the balcony unseen. Adam was watching for us from a half-open door at the end of a corridor above the reading room.

"She's alive," he said in a low voice. "I found her room—she's staying here all right—and carried her in there. She's either unconscious or sleeping very heavily. She hasn't stirred."

Doc Moore brushed past him and entered the room.

I asked Adam the question uppermost in my mind.

"Who is she?"

"I found a letter addressed to Miss Ethel Curtis. Does that mean anything to you?"

I shook my head.

"The luggage was new and unmarked. The clothes look new, too, what there are of them. But I may as well show you the letter—is there enough light? I don't want to attract anyone up here."

"I can see to read it."

I took the envelope from his hands. It was addressed to Miss

Ethel Curtis, Hillside Sanitarium, A—, Illinois. The single sheet of paper was typewritten and unsealed, and began without salutation:

"Come if you must, but don't try to telephone me or see me. You owe me that much, at least. Go straight to the Service Club; you can't miss it, it's a white frame building. Walk in—the woman's room is on the left. There's a room—they're all vacant—and wait there until I come. It may not be until late Friday night—there'll be a dance. Better take some sandwiches. I don't want you wandering around the post. Keep under cover or you'll wish you had!"

"Then someone knows she's here," I said stupidly. "One of those—down there?"

"Probably. But not necessarily the murderer."

"Then why the secrecy?"

His smile was vaguely reassuring. "Let your creative imagination go to work on that. I'd say the possibilities are numerous."

"Doc Moore thinks she—it may have been epilepsy."

Adam's blue eyes sparkled in the semidarkness. "There's one of your answers," he said.

I was still thinking about that when the door of her room opened and the young doctor beckoned to Adam.

Their low-voiced murmur went on for some time on the other side of the door. Presently Adam appeared, looking intensely excited and drew me into the dimly lighted room.

Oddly Familiar

THE blinds had been closely drawn to prevent any telltale glimmer escaping to the street. The furnishings were cold and bare looking, but clean—a cheap chest of drawers, painted white, surmounted by a small, wavy mirror a bedside table, one chair, which held an open suitcase and the girl's discarded clothing; and the white iron bed, single size, ornamented with the insignia of the Quarter Master Corps.

She was lying very still, breathing heavily, in deep sleep.

"As Doc suspected, it was a convulsion," Adam explained in a low hurried voice. "She should sleep for a while. In the meantime Doc is needed back at the hospital—tell her what you told me about Anne."

Captain Moore looked apologetic. "I would have told you all a while ago, but Adam gave me instructions when we found she was still breathing. There's a chance in a hundred that we can save her."

"Anne? You mean she's alive?"

"By the best of luck the bullet missed the heart and the other vital organs; but there was internal bleeding. We had to explore, to see if she was still alive when I left her, but I'll have to go right back. Unfortunately I'm alone for the week end. The surgeon is in Chicago. There'll have to be blood transfusions; all of the orderlies have volunteered and they're testing the blood group now."

"I want this kept quiet, at least until I can get on with the investigation," Adam interposed hurriedly. "It may be for her protection—I don't know; anyway, that's the feeling I've got."

"This girl, here—I can't take her to the hospital," Doc Moore went on apologetically. "We're not equipped to take care of women—no nurses, no ward. And there's no other hospital in twenty miles. I've got Anne in the officers' ward, which was fortunately empty, and I've telephoned for a nurse; but I wouldn't dare put this girl in with her."

"I see; you want me to stay here with her until she wakes up. All right."

They both looked inexpressibly relieved.

"I'll be right at the foot of the stairs in the reading room," Adam said consolingly. "I've got to get these people's stories and let them go home."

"She'll be quite all right," the doctor assured me. "Just make her stay in bed."

I kept on telling him that I didn't mind the assignment, and finally they bowed themselves out. Adam stuck his head back in long enough to tell me that when she woke up I was to call him. I could come to the foot of the stairs and wiggle the curtains and he would know I wanted him.

Then the door closed and the room began to fill with the girl's heavy breathing.

I found I was still holding the letter Adam had shown me. I moved the suitcase to the floor, noticing that it was new and nearly empty, and sat on the hard straight chair under the light of the single wall bracket that flanked the chest of drawers.

Once more I read the typewritten note, but midway I lost the sense of the words, arrested by an oddly familiar idiosyncrasy of one of the letters—the tail of the y was almost obliterated.

COLLEGE TEAM DEFEATED 18-6

Pirates Go Down Before Appalachian Teachers

Coach Kidd Brewer's Appalachian State Teachers College gridiron contingent turned the steamrollers on Coach J. D. Alexander's Pirates in the Homecoming Day football festivity here Saturday afternoon and came out on the big end of an 18-6 score. A light shower frightened a few spectators from the field, but they returned.

Topping off the Hill Billy scoring was a play made by Don Gaffney, in the last three minutes of the game. Gaffney intercepted a pass on the 25-yard line thrown by Lester Ridenhour and intended for Shelton. He had little trouble in crossing the goal line for a touchdown.

Those Pirates surprised their opponents in the second play of the fourth period when they scored a touchdown. Playing the ball from the 19 yard line, Bill Shelton flipped a pass to Jack Noe, who guided his anatomy across the goal line.

Jack's successful scoring jaunt occurred in the left end division. Gaffney, the back who stole the show later in the game, also did some shining in the first phase of the contest. He advanced the ball to the 7-yard line after making a 25-yard run. The local entry was charged with being off-side, so the ball was pushed to the 2 yard line. You've guessed it. Gaffney did plunge through the line for a touchdown.

One of those "no good" touchdowns was made by Phil Hudson of the Mountaineers in the last part of the game. Philip crossed the goal line after exhibiting and good example of broken field running. Walter Latham, the referee contended a member of the Mountaineer aggregation did some holding. The ball then went back to the 10-yard line after a 15-yard penalty had been perfected.

A new crew of players faced the Pirates in the second quarter. Taking advantage of the weakening done by their "big brothers," Coach Brewer's second stringers got down to business and scored. The ball was pushed to the 6-yard line by George Corn and Henderson Baker, who used line-gaining tactics. Charging through the left end zone, Bob Brown tallied.

Although they failed to triumph over the Mountaineers, the Pirates played a nice game throughout. The visitors were considerably heavier than the locals. Their experienced corps of reserves also featured in keeping the locals tamed.

Bill Shelton's aerial attack showed decided improvement over previous contests. He used the passing procedure quite often, although many of them proved to be unsuccessful. If you haven't forgotten, it was a pass that gave the locals their only touchdown.

Lightning plays executed by the Mountaineers, which were held in check by Adrian Brown, Bill Dudash, Hubert Roberts and Walter Rogers, won immediate approval of the spectators who thronged the field. Brown and Roberts were Greenville entries. Joe Williams and Jack Moyer, Jr., also of Greenville, proved their playing ability during the time they were on the firing line.

Most of the ball carrying for the visitors was done by Hudson and Gaffney. Their playing was paralleled only by that of Melvin Fairley and Daugherty.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—At-tempts to rally the stock market be-cause of reports of a possible merger of aircraft met with faint re-sponse today and many recent fa-vorites shifted over an extremely narrow route.

Dealings were sluggish throughout, and near the fourth hour trends were slightly mixed with numerous issues unchanged.

Tension over foreign affairs ap-peared to have lessened and busi-ness news seemingly was helpful, maintained a somewhat skeptical attitude toward the market on their theory that last week's "correction" of the prolonged upswing might go a bit further.

Bonds and commodities were rather spotted along with the prin-cipal European securities markets.

TWO CONTESTS FOR ASSEMBLY

Against this must be set the fact that Governor Clyde R. Hoey has already placed himself on record as flatly and irrevocably opposed to an anti-diversion amendment. He tossed the slogan "It's as much a calamity to close a school as a road" into the verbal arena.

Thus potentially supported and op-posed, the amendment should set off more than the usual amount of legislative pyrotechnics; but it seems quite doubtful if it can be passed.

In rebuttal the city slickers will argue, with plenty of statistical sup-port for their position, that more than 80 per cent of North Caro-lina is over the main arterial high-ways. On the principal of the greatest good for the greatest number they will contend it is bet-ter to spend most of the revenue on these arteries of traffic than on the by-paths and pig trails of the hinterlands.

State Senator W. I. Halstead, of Camden county, last session intro-duced a bill providing a $25,000-000 bond issue for use on sec-ondary roads. It failed of passage, but the Senator will be back next Jan-uary and is certain to resume his fight for the roads, although per-haps not for such big bond issue. Recent bond authorizations have he says made it impossible under the Constitutional bonding limita-tions, to issue bonds to that amount but he promises a battle for the secondary roads, just the same.
