'LIBERALISM' TO BE PUSHED BY ROOSEVELT

New Deal Election Reverses Not to Alter Course

CHIEF EXECUTIVE HEARD IN STATE

Declaration That U.S. Most Powerful Democracy Seen As Warning Dictators

Chapel Hill, Dec. 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt served notice on the South and the nation at large today that he would go forward with a "liberal program" of government, despite New Deal election reverses.

Addressing a University of North Carolina student forum, he also declared that what America does or fails to do in the next few years "has a far greater bearing and influence on the history of the human race for centuries to come than most of us who are here today can ever conceive."

In an implicit warning to dictators, he asserted the United States not only the largest and most powerful democracy in the whole world, but many other democracies looked to use for leadership that world democracy may survive.

"You under graduates who see me for the first time," Mr. Roosevelt said, "have read (in) your newspapers and heard on the air that I am at the very least an ogre, a consorter with Communists, a destroyer of the rich, a breaker of ancient traditions. You think of me perhaps as the inventor of the economic royalists."

You have heard for six years that I was about to plunge the nation into war, that you and your little brothers would be sent to the bloody field of battle in Europe, that I was driving the nation into bankruptcy and that I breakfasted every morning on a grilled millionaire.

"Actually I am an exceedingly mild-mannered person, a practitioner of peace, both domestic and foreign, a believer in the capitalist system and for my breakfast a devotee of scrambled eggs."

He reaffirmed his faith in the political philosophy of liberalism by saying "you have read that as a result of the balloting last November the liberal forces in the United States are on their way to the cemetery, yet I ask you to remember that liberal forces in the United States have often been killed and buried with the inevitable result that in short order they come to life again with more strength than they had before."

"What I would emphasize is the maintenance of successful democracy at home," he said. "Necessarily democratic methods within a nation's life entail change the kind of change through local practices described by Mr. Justice Cardozo, the kind of change to meet new social and economic needs through recognized processes of government."

The President adopted as his theme contention by the late Supreme Court Justice Benjamin Cardozo that "we live in a world of change hence there can be no constancy in law."

Choruses Invited To New York Fair

The Greenville, Goldsboro, Snow Hill, and Ayden Symphonic choruses of the Eastern Carolina Symphonic Choral Association have been invited to sing in the National Westminster chorus in a great concert at the New York World's Fair.

The date of this gala concert is Saturday evening, May 27, 1939. These choruses have this great opportunity because they have affiliated with the Westminster Choral College, Princeton New Jersey through their conductor, Lewis S. Bullock, who is a graduate of the College.

Affiliated Westminster Choral choruses will come from all of the forty-eight states to form a great National Westminster chorus which will be conducted by Dr. John Finley Williamson, conductor of Westminster Choral, and President of Westminster Choral college.

This concert promises to be one of the big events of the Fair. Eastern Carolina is proud to have a part in it.

New Pitt Commissioners Begin Two-Year Term

WORK STARTED ON SEAL SALE

Annual Christmas Campaign Is Under Way All Fronts

The annual sale of Christmas Seals starts this week on all fronts with considerable activity in Greenville.

Amunition for the fight against tuberculosis in the form of the familiar double-barred cross Christmas Seals is being distributed throughout the city. The following appeal to all to join this army is made by the local committee.

"The well known writer Alexander Wolffcott truly said, 'The only kind of war there is any sense to is the bloodless war on tuberculosis. So silly of human beings to fight each other when their real enemies are stronger, more numerous and still unconquered.'"

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt county chairman, said there must be no armistice in the fight against tuberculosis until this disease has been completely conquered. Tuberculosis takes the life of one person every 7-13 minutes.

"If no one asks you to buy Christmas Seals, ask someone on the committee to sell you some," Dr. Ennett said. "Show your thanks for health by giving to this life-saving campaign."

Court Increases Power Of NLRB

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—The Supreme court ruled today that the National Relations board has supervision over a company operating in one state, but which sells its products to other concerns engaged in interstate commerce.

This decision, applying specifically to the Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., gave broad power, attorneys said, to the Labor board in administering the National Labor Relations act.

The opinion, delivered by Chief Justice Hughes, also held, however, that the board had exceeded its authority in directing abrogation of collective bargaining contracts between the company and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, an affiliate of the AFL.

Name Williams Chairman; Coward Retained at Auditor

The old Board of County Commissioners went out of office at noon today, but it was two hours later before the new board officially took office, leaving the county without any governing body for two hours.

J. N. Williams was unanimously chosen chairman of the new board. G. H. Pittman was elected vice-chairman. The finance committee will be composed of Commissioners House and Jolly and the county home committee, Porter and Pittman.

The post of county attorney went to S. O. Worthington, who received three votes, against two votes for Arthur B. Corey, Mr. Worthington will succeed F. C. Harding.

J. H. Coward was re-elected county auditor and tax supervisor. Miss Rosa Eatum and Miss Sammie Langsley, present employees of the office, were reappointed. H. L. Andrews was re-appointed county tax collector, and C. P. Pierce was named deputy collector.

Members of the old board of commissioners passed a resolution as one of their last official acts. The resolution congratulated the citizens of Pitt county in their choice of new members of the board, thanked all elected officers for their cooperation, expressed appreciation to the various appointive officers and their assistants for their work, commended the ABC board and thanked the people of the county for their interest in us and their splendid cooperation at all times in helping us as we have tried to serve."

Detrains at Sanford and Motors to Chapel Hill

ACCOMPANIED BY GOVERNOR HOEY

Party Stops Briefly at Pittsboro at Home of Lieutenant Governor Horton

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt paid tribute today to Benjamin R. Tillman, South Carolina statesman of a generation ago, and recalled that one of his ancestors had been a lieutenant governor of South Carolina in pre-Revolutionary days, in a brief speech on the steps of the State House which climaxed his two-hour visit to Columbia. Earlier the President had breakfast with Governor Olin D. Johnston and other party leaders.

In spite of the rain, the President rode from the station to the Governor's mansion with the top of his car down.

The two-hour visit here, he said, was a fulfillment of a "promise I made to your governor more than a year ago that I would visit Columbia and have breakfast in the mansion with him before he went out of office."

Boarding his train at 10:30 a. m., President Roosevelt planned to detrain at Sanford, N. C., and motor with Governor Clyde R. Hoey to Chapel Hill, stopping en route briefly at the Pittsboro home of Lieut. Governor W. P. Horton.

The Chapel Hill address was to be given in Kenan Stadium unless bad weather forced a transfer of the ceremonies to the university gymnasium. Presentation of an honorary degree was on the program before the speech.

The fact that arrangements were made to re-broadcast the address shortly after 4:30 p. m., to Europe and South America, in addition to radio-casting it in the United States, led some of the President's associates to believe it might deal in part at least with foreign affairs.

Others felt he would press domestic questions and leave a discussion of European matters for his message to Congress next month.

Traveling northward with the President are William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France; Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress administrator; Charles A. Jones, general manager of the Home Owners Loan Corporation; and Frank C. Walker of New York, former director of the National Emergency Council.

Watches Stolen From Ayden Jewelry Store

Fourteen watches were stolen from the C. E. Spear's jewelry store in Ayden in an unusually bold robbery Saturday night, according to reports by officers on the theft.

Three men were said to have entered the store together Saturday night. One engaged the owner in conversation in the back of the store regarding the purchase of some article. The other two then got the 14 watches and walked out. Missing were Hamilton, Illinois, Elgin and South Bend watches. Three of the 14 were women's wrist watches.

Automobile Is Stolen From Garage in Pitt

The Highway Patrol today reported the theft of a 1938 Chevrolet coach from the garage of the home of E. A. Hawkfords, who lives between Bethel and Stokes, some time during last night.

The robber or robbers evidently pushed the car out of the garage into the road before starting the engine. No trace had been reported to patrol offices at noon today.

No Trace As Yet Of Local Negro Escapee

Chief of Police George Clark said today he had no trace of Clifton Williams, Negro, who allegedly admitted entering the Folger Buick company garage last Tuesday night and stealing an automobile.

Williams escaped from the city jail here. He got out of his cell by going through a drain pipe, entering a cell in which no one was held and which was not locked. It is believed that the Negro slipped out of the jail when someone was feeding other prisoners, the outside door having been unlocked for a moment.

Here Tuesday

Gov. Hoey will address the first general meeting of the annual convention of the Seaboard Medical Association being held here this week. The chief executive will address a session in the High School auditorium tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock. The general public is invited.

HOEY TO SPEAK AT MEET HERE

Public Invited to First Session of Medical Association

The first general session of the Seaboard Medical Association of Virginia and North Carolina, to be held here this week, is scheduled to convene in the High School auditorium tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock and the public is invited to hear Governor Hoey deliver the principal address of the evening.

The forty-third annual meeting of the association will be conducted here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday with a number of the most prominent personages in the medical professions in the two states scheduled for talks.

All public meetings will be conducted in the High School auditorium, while scientific sessions will be held in the Armory building. Dr. W. I. Wooten is president of the organization and, in announcing the program, declared tomorrow night's meeting would be open to the public and issued an invitation to all persons who desired to do so to hear Governor Hoey.

The program for the meeting calls for music by the High School orchestra. Dr. J. L. Winstead, president of the Pitt County Medical Society, will call the meeting to order, after which Rev. T. McMillan Grant, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, will lead in the devotional.

Mayor M. K. Blount will deliver a short address welcoming the visiting doctors to Greenville, after which Dr. Wooten, association president, will be formally presented.

Governor Hoey will share the spotlight at the initial session with Dr. P. P. McCain, superintendent of the North Carolina Sanatorium, who will discuss the tuberculosis control program.

The address by Governor Hoey will bring the evening's program to a close.

On Wednesday the first scientific meeting will be held in the Armory, beginning at 9:30 o'clock. Another meeting is scheduled for the Armory Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, to be followed Wednesday night by a reception in honor of the visiting doctors at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. I. Wooten. A dance will be given at the Greenville Country club at 10 o'clock.

The final session of the three-day meeting is scheduled to be held in the Armory Thursday morning.

The election of officers and the selection of the convention city for the next meeting are scheduled for the Wednesday afternoon session.

Mrs. Franks has spent her entire life in Ayden up until a year ago when she moved to Pollockville.

Cleaning Plant Here Robbed of Clothing

Local Police officials today reported the robbery of College Cleaners some time during Saturday night, but only the personal property of the operator, Roy Tripp, was taken.

The officers said the place was broken into and clothing of the operator which were hanging in the back taken, but none of the clothes in the establishment sent there to be cleaned and pressed bothered.

Daladier Asserts France Will Not Give Up Colonies

Premier Flatly Asserts Country Has No Such Intention

NAZI MINISTER TO VISIT PARIS

Statement by Daladier Regarded Doubly Significant View Talks Tomorrow

Paris, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Premier Daladier flatly asserted today that France had no intention of giving up any part of her territory, personally answering Italian clamor for French Corsica and Tunisia.

Daladier announced his intention of visiting the two regions shortly after the first of the year. He urged inhabitants who were demonstrating against the Italian ultimatum to remain calm.

"There is no need to state that these manifestations (in Italy) will meet strong opposition against the cession of any territory over which the national flag floats," the Premier declared.

His statement was regarded as doubly significant in view of preparations here to receive Joschim von Ribbentrop, German Foreign Minister, who is coming to Paris tomorrow to sign a French-German non-war accord.

Some observers believed that Daladier had cleared the air for the French-German discussions with a definite expression of France's position against colonial demands from either of the Fascist partners.

No hitch was expected, however to signing of the pact as Daladier apparently was determined to go through with it.

In Tunis, Tunisia, heavy police guards were thrown around the Italian consulate following angry demonstrations to the shouts of "down with Italy" yesterday.

Guards were thrown around the Italian consulate in Tunis-Susa, Tunisia, also.

An undetermined number of rioters were injured in skirmishes. Fifteen persons were arrested.

MANY CHARGES BEFORE COURT

Drunkenness, Liquor, Larceny Cases Are Tried Today

Charges of drunkenness, assault, illegal possession of whiskey, larceny and careless and reckless driving were aired in Municipal court this morning, the session having been completed before noon.

Alex Lloyd was convicted of drunkenness and taxed with the costs of court. Louis Perkins, convicted of assault with a deadly weapon, was fined $5 and taxed with the costs.

Jesse Smith was acquitted of a whiskey charge, but Nora Smith, companion defendant, was convicted of illegal possession and fined $5 and costs. Both were Negroes.

Jesse Little was taxed with the costs upon conviction of assault with a deadly weapon and in another case was convicted of engaging in riotous and disorderly conduct and taxed with half the costs. Ernest Whichard, also indicted in disorderly conduct, was ordered to pay the other half of the costs. Both defendants were Negroes.

CALL FOR BIDS ON CITY HALL

Contract for $125,000 Structure to be Let December 20

Bids on the $125,000 Municipal building will be received by the Board of Aldermen at the present City Hall until 2 o'clock Tuesday, December 20, at which time and place the proposals will be published December 20, at which time and place the contract will be awarded.

The contract for the new central fire station already has been let and work has started on the project. Herman Sipe of Conover was awarded the general construction contract. C. L. Russ the heating and Bagwell Plumbing company of Durham the plumbing contract. The total cost, excluding architect's fees legal fees and contingencies, was figured at $47,58 and ran about $5,000 in excess of expectations. The possibility of eliminating the fire drill tower is being considered as one means of keeping the cost down to original estimates.

The two new buildings will be located on the James property on Fifth, Greene and Washington streets, recently purchased by the city for the purpose.

The City Hall building is to be constructed of concrete foundation, exterior walls of brick, stone and concrete tile; interior steel frame, and open truss floor joists with concrete floor slab, gypsum and clay (Continued on page six)

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Swartz and family have gone to Cleveland, Tenn., where they were called by the death of Mrs. Sarah E. Swartz, mother of the local superintendent of the Water and Light Commission.

Mrs. Swartz, who was 93 years old on August 18, died yesterday. She is survived by two sons and one daughter.

NAZI CAMPAIGN AGAINST JEWS TO BE WIDENED

Reported Women Of Polish Origin To Be Expelled

JEWS AWAITING MORE DECREES

Relief Committee Estimates that at Least 14,000 already Been Expelled

Berlin, Dec. 5.—(AP)—A report that Jewish women of Polish origin had been ordered to leave Germany by January 1 was the latest indication today that the anti-Semitic campaign would be widened.

The report originated in Warsaw and could not be confirmed here, but a government spokesman said "it was not impossible."

It was understood in Warsaw that those who had been ordered to leave were wives of Polish Jewish citizens expelled from Germany in October when the Nazi government headed new Polish passport regulations might deprive them of citizenship and leave them as German charges.

The Jewish relief committee in Warsaw has estimated the number already expelled at 14,000.

German Jews themselves awaited more decrees restricting their participation in German life. Decrees become effective tomorrow barring them from certain streets and public places.

Norman E. Warren Also Heard From

After this paper had convinced people once and for all that Norman E. Warren was not the Norman Warren in police court last week as a result of a traffic accident, Norman E. Warren feels that the finger of guilt points to him and he, too, wants people to understand that he was not the Warren in question.

Asked if he could provide more identification so the matter could be settled for good, Chief of Police George Clark said that he did not know of any. "Anyway," he said, "I tell them that there are several George Clarks from here who have been sent to the penitentiary, and it doesn't bother me at all."

Dale Carnegie Here Wednesday.

Having taught more than 30,000 men and women the art of effective speaking and personality development in the last 26 years, Dale Carnegie, the business and professional men's favorite speaker, should be an authority on his topic "How to Win Friends and Influence People." He will lecture at East Carolina Teachers College Wednesday night, December 7, at 8:30.

So valuable have his courses proved themselves in business relationships that such conservative organizations as the New York Telephone Company, Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and McGraw-Hill Publishing Co., have had Mr. Carnegie's course given on their premises for their own employees.

One of Dale Carnegie's books, "Public Speaking and Influencing Men in Business," is the official text of a number of study courses conducted by national organizations, among them the Y.M.C.A., the American Bankers Association and the National Credit Men's Association. And, of course, everyone has heard of his book "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

It covers the topic Mr. Carnegie will discuss in his lecture Wednesday night.

Vesper Services.

The Rev. T. M. Grant, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, in a thought-provoking talk to the Y.W.C.A. vesper group on Sunday night at the college, attempted to answer the question "What is religion?"

"Suppose I ask you a question or two to begin with," said Mr. Grant. "Can you define for men the meaning of religion? What is religion?" He said that this answer may be found in one's attitude to life—that religion is a relationship.

Why is religion not popular with some people? He answered this question with a story of some young people who had come to him for advice about joining the church. They wanted to know what they would have to give up if they became members of the church, which is the popular area of religion—to give up something.

Many persons believe, also, that people have to be snared into the church. "If this is what we have to do, I don't think we have religion," declared Mr. Grant.

He continued by saying that one should get fun out of living, joy out of religion, and not, as many people do, have such a bad case of religion that one cannot be agreeable in relations with others.

"Religion is something to make people happy, and it's the secret of getting fun out of life," he said. "Unless religion does something to us, it isn't any good—it isn't valuable."

The Vanitie Boxe "The Cutest Clothes—and the Loveliest Gifts in Town"

In preparing the family genealogy described in a Reflector item on Thursday, the compilers used a very rare historic document "A Brief and True Report of the New Found Land of Virginia, by Thomas Hariot. A Facsimile Reproduction of the 1588 Quarto, with an introductory essay by Randolph G. Adams, director of the William L. Clements Library, Ann Arbor, Mich. Collectors of rare English books always speak reverently and even mysteriously of the Quarto Hariot. This book, No. 296, Sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Aldermen of the Town of Greenville, N. C., at the Municipal Building in Greenville, N. C., until 2 p. m. o'clock, December 20th, 1938, for the erection of a Municipal Building, to be erected in the Town of Greenville, N. C., at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read.

The building to be constructed with the following materials: concrete foundation exterior walls of brick, stone, and concrete tile; interior steel frame, and open truss floor joist with concrete floor slab; gypsum and clay tile partition. To contain offices, utilities department, Police department, toilet facilities, heating plant, electrical wiring and fixtures, telephone, detectaphone, detention cell work and electric elevator.

Plans and specifications and contract documents are open to public inspection at the City Clerk's Office, Town of Greenville, N. C., A. G. C. office, Raleigh, N. C., or may be obtained from the Architect at Wilson, N. C., upon deposit of $25.00. The full amount of the deposit for one set of documents will be returned to each actual bidder, and all other deposits will be refunded (with deductions not exceeding the actual cost of reproduction of the documents) upon return of all documents in good condition within 10 days after the date of opening of bids, otherwise the deposit will be retained for plans and specifications.

The Proposals for Heating and Plumbing will also be received on this date, but let under separate contract.

General Contractors are notified that "An Act to Regulate the Practice of General Contracting," ratified by the General Assembly of North Carolina on March 10, 1925, and as subsequently amended, will be observed in receiving and awarding general contracts. Registration number to accompany proposal.

Each proposal shall be accompanied by a cash deposit or a certified check in an amount of 2 per cent and a bid bond for 3 per cent—a total of 5 per cent—drawn on some bank or trust company authorized to do business in North Carolina; said deposit to be retained in the event of failure of the successful bidder to execute the contract within ten days after the award, or to give satisfactory surety as required herein. (North Carolina Public Laws of 1933, Section 1, Chapter 490, and Mitchie's North Carolina Code of 1935, Section 7534 (a) 1 and 1316 (a).)

No bid may be withdrawn after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids for a period of thirty days.

The Board of Aldermen reserve the right to reject any or all bids and to waive informality.

Amounts estimated to be available to finance these contracts are as follows:

- General Contract $93,543.00
 - Plumbing Contract 6,500.00
 - Heating Contract 12,900.00
- This the 5th day of Dec., 1938.

Social Security Will Be One Legislative Problem

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Dec. 3.—Revision of the state's Social Security statutes will be among the live legislative issues of the 1939 General Assembly, although there is no clear indication at present that any drastic changes in the setup will be made.

From Mecklenburg comes word that Representative Marvin L. Ritch plans to introduce and fight for a bill making every person in North Carolina beneficiary of Old Age Assistance at the age of 65. His contention is that the present Social Security setup of North Carolina is nothing more or less than a "poor law" proposition. His contention is that need should not be made a requirement for assistance, but that every man and woman 65 and above should receive the benefits.

Ritch is not expected to have a great deal of influence in the Assembly—he has been too chameleon-like in changing his political colors—and it is not likely that his proposal will get more than passing consideration; especially in view of the fact that the state's revenues are lagging somewhat behind those of the previous fiscal year and the legislators are likely to assemble in a very "economical" frame of mind.

There may be more than a little support, however, for some plan to relieve the counties of the fourth they now pay toward the assistance and thereby secure uniform operation of the Social Security plan throughout the state, as well as relieve the hard pressed local units of the need for raising the revenue.

Statistics show that the average paid in Old Age Assistance and Aid to Dependent Children varies very widely in the various counties of the state.

Complete breakdown of statistics by counties are not available for any more recent month than December, 1937, but in that period there was a wide difference in the counties. In Old Age Assistance, for example, the average Buncombe county resident was paid $16. From that high the payments ran progressively down to the $5.20 paid in Yadkin. In four other counties the average per recipient ran less than $6.00. These were Allegheny $5.67; Hyde $5.55; Johnston $5.89, and Scotland $5.68.

At the upper end of the scale there were, beside Buncombe, sixteen counties paying an average of more than $10 per recipient. They were Alamance $12.52; Burke $11.12; Cabarrus $10.72; Cumberland $10.25; Duplin $10.08; Durham $13.29; Edgecombe $10.33; Forsyth $14.29; Gaston $10.71; Greene $10.25; Guilford $13.61; Haywood $10.45; Mecklenburg $12.31; New Hanover $12.63; Surry $10.02, and Wake $11.22.

For the entire state the 20,976 recipients received an average payment of $9.28 in December, 1937.

Since then the number of recipients has increased to almost 35,000 but the average amount is still less than $10, according to latest statistics.

At the end of 1937 North Carolina was one of six states paying less than $10 to the average recipient, with only Arkansas $9.15 and Mississippi's $4.52 below it. Among the 50 units (48 states, Alaska and the District of Columbia) the highest average per recipient payment was made in Colorado with $39.61. The average for all 50 was $18.35, almost double the North Carolina average payment.

The figures are from the Bureau Report No. 1 of the National Social Security Board Bureau of Research and Statistics.

Despite these figures, every effort to raise the amount of payments in North Carolina is likely to break down on the rock of economy and lack of revenue, though it isn't a bad bet that there will be changes made in the direction of greater uniformity throughout the state.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Dec. 5.—On the back of the November number of the "Farm publication of the North Carolina
publication of the North Carolina Reporting Service with the Statistical Division of the State Department of Agriculture and the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture cooperating, appears the caption "Did You Know That?" followed by a full page of fact and figures.

So let's go rural for the duration of this column and appropriate these "Did You Knows", lock, stock and barrel.

While North Carolina ranked third among the states in 1937 in cash income from crops, the state was first in the production of only two crops, tobacco and lespedeza seed.

North Carolina's cash income from livestock and livestock products sold in 1937 was only $26,000-000, which ranked this state as thirty-eighth in cash income from livestock.

About 879,788 acres of soil improving crops were plowed under for soil improving purposes in North Carolina last year. This is more than any crop the state produced except corn and cotton.

In 1925 cotton produced 41 per cent of the total cash income of North Carolina farmers, and tobacco about 30 per cent. Last year tobacco contributed 53 per cent and cotton only 12 per cent.

The King is dead, long live the King!

The North Carolina farm cash income from crops, livestock and livestock products in 1937 ($27,000,000) was over 4.2 per cent of the 1935 value of all farm land and buildings in the state ($623,000,000).

For the first time in history North Carolina is producing more than 1,000,000 acres of hay. In 1928, the state had 641,000 acres of hay in cultivation. The 1938 acreage is estimated to be 1,128,000 acres, or an increase of 60 per cent during the eleven year period.

In 1928 North Carolina had 971-000 hay consuming animals. In 1938 there were 1,074,000, an increase of only 10 per cent, whereas the hay crop increased in tonnage from 530,000 to 972,000.

Whereas a few years ago it was a common sight to see farmers hauling hay from town to country, it rarely is seen now, and few store handle hay, as there is little sale to farmers.

The three legume crops produced in North Carolina, soy beans, cowpeas and peanuts, contribute nearly 60 per cent of the state's tame hay production.

The number of sows farrowing in North Carolina in the spring of 1938 were estimated at 124,000 which was seven per cent more than were farrowed during the spring of 1937.

In 1870 North Carolina is estimated to have had 560,000 sheep.
On January 1, 1938, it was estimated that there were only 62,000, the smaller of any year on record except 1912 when there were but 50,000.

Porter of Simpson and G. H. Pittman of Falkland. Members of the outgoing board, besides Mr. House, who did not have opposition in the primary, are: Roy T. Cox of Winder-ville, F. M. Knapatak of Ayden, Walter Cherry of Greenville, and
B. M. Lewis of Farmville.

Several Pitt county officers who were re-elected for another term began their new terms of office today. They included: Clerk of Court
J. Frank Harrington, Treasurer J.
Vance Perkins, Coroner A. A. Eli-singer, Judge Dink James, and Sol-licitor Charles Whidbee. J. Knott Proctor also began his first elective term as sheriff. He was named to fill the unexpired term of S. A.
V. Proctor.

The resolution passed by the Board of Commissioners follows:
"We, the Board of County Commissioners of Pitt county having this day completed our term of office, and are thus gladly turning the keys of the governing power of this county over to our successors, who have been duly elected to receive them, do hereby desire to pass the following resolutions and cause them to be spread upon the minutes of this meeting:

"First: We wish to congratulate the citizens of Pitt county in their choice of the five men who are to govern Pitt county for the next two years. They are all men of good, sound judgment and are well qualified to administer the affairs of the county in a manner that will be for the best interest of all of its citizens. They are of the type who will at once recognize that their office is a sacred trust.

"Second: We would be indeed ungrateful if we should fail to thank all the elected officers and their assistants for their splendid cooperation during our tenure of office.

"Third: We desire to express our appreciation to the various departments, the Board of Education, including Supr. D. H. Conley, and his helpers; the County Welfare Board, including Supr. K. T. Furell, and his assistants; the Pitt County Board of Health, including Dr. N. T.
Emmett and his assistants; the County Agricultural Committee, including Mr. R. R. Bennett and all his assistants and helpers; the Home Demonstration department, including Miss Ethel Nice and her helpers; for their untiring efforts to make Pitt county a better place to live and to rear our children.

"Fourth: If our administration has in any degree been successful we must largely give the credit to our appointed helpers. We do sincerely thank our county auditor, Mr.
J. H. Coward, and his most efficient helpers, Miss Rosa Exum and Miss Sammye Langley, for their devotion to their duties and thus being perhaps the greatest possible help in enabling the Commissioners to strive to take care of the county's best interest.

"We also appreciate the splendid efforts put forth by our Tax Collecting department, Mr. Henry Andrews and his efficient assistant, Mr. E.
W. Braxton. Their records speak for themselves.

"We are indebted to our county attorney, Hon. F. C. Harding, for his wise counsel and his devotion to the interest of the taxpayer and the general welfare of Pitt county.

"We appreciate the assistance given us by Senator A. B. Corey in matters pertaining to disabled World War veterans.

"We thank Mr. R. W. Twine, superintendent in charge of county buildings and grounds, for his tremendous savings to the county and his devotion to the numerous tasks he has been called on to perform.

"We are proud of our County Home and the improvements that have been made there. The county owes a debt of gratitude to the genial, capable and tireless superintendent, Mr. D. C. Wilson, and Mrs.
Rosa Taylor, the matron, for the most excellent manner in which they have handled their very difficult tasks.

"We certainly cannot forget the most loyal services of Mr. Grover Leggett, our efficient jailer. There has been a great transformation in the jail problem. We must give due credit to Mr. Leggett and his cooperation with Mr. Coward and the Board for improvements in this department.

"Fifth: We especially commend Pitt county's A. B. C. Board, Chairman Chas. O. H. Horne, Mr. J. R.
Harvey and Mr. C. A. Tyson, and their helpers for the splendid spirit of cooperation they have shown to the Commissioners. There is no easier task. They have to the best of their ability given to the county what its citizens voted for, viz: "Control or sale of spirituous liquors."

"They have done a splendid job and should have the commendation of all the citizens. They make no pretense of having solved the problem but they have given to the county what an overwhelming public sentiment asked for. May they redouble their efforts to do their best to control this demon.

"Sixth: We thank all good citizens all over the county for their interest in us and their splendid cooperation at all times in helping us as we have tried to serve. May all good citizens continue to show more interest in county government to the end that democracy may live, and that it can be free from corruption and graft. Only by such intelligent interest shall we be able to pass on to posterity such a government as will assure to them the rights of liberty, property and the pursuit of happiness.

"We should thank God that we live under such a democracy. May we preserve and keep it in order that it can continue to serve us."

TEACHERS WIN 31 TO 22 TILT

Take Newport News Business College in Season Opener

Coach Gordon Gilbert's basketball contingent triumphed 31-22 over the Newport News Business College cagers in a season-opener staged at East Carolina Teachers College Saturday night.

Spectators thronged the battle ground as the local entry coasted to their verdict over 75 businessmen, who started the game as favorites. The visitors held a practice advantage over the Teachers, whose regular practice periods never got started until last Monday.

Earl Smith, forced from football because of a severe injury had recuperated enough Saturday night to turn in a fine performance for his mates. Earl, stationed in a forward berth, repeated some of the same fine playing tactics for which he was noted in the 1937-38 cage year.

Donald Brock, making his debut with the Teachers in the center division, made good most of his scoring opportunities. He was credited with 18 points for the entire game. Half of this number of points were seen in the second quarter when he got four field goals and made a gift shot count.

Bill Shelton, high scorer in North Carolina collegiate basketball competition last season, showed his same fine playing skills of last year, despite the fact that he didn't lead the scoring. If you remember, Bill never really started racking up the points last year until after the season was luke-warm.

Newport News lagging behind a 20-12 advantage held by the Teachers at intermission, outscored the locals in the third quarter. The visitors scored seven points and the Teachers garnered five. However, the Teachers never lost the lead they built up when the game got under way.

Milton Glass played hard throughout the game. Indications are, that he will prove invaluable to the Pirates later in the season. Ayers, Riddick and Mason got their biggest thrill out of the game when Coach Gilbert allowed them to play the last minute. Kelly Martin was the only other substitute.

The business men's center, Louis Perzekow, looked so much like Pittsburgh's football ace, the spectators dubbed him "Goldberg." Perhaps it was his scoring tactics that attracted the attention of the fans. Louis garnered 10 points to pace his mates. Al Miller was the cheer fellow who took the laurels in playing ways.

Chicoed high school's cagers bowed to the local outlaws 37-6 in a preliminary feature. The locals held a 22-3 advantage at the half. Pacesetter for the Greenville scrubs was Bernard Roper, who tallied 18 points—the same number garnered by his "big brother, Brash.

Miss Ramona Staples' dance pupils won the applause of the large crowd when they presented a novel dance revue during intermission.

Lineups and individual scoring: Newport News: Forwards, White Hazelwood, 4; Seward, 2; Center—Perzekow, 10; guards—Miller 3; Mitchell, 2; Chandler, 1.

Teachers: Forwards—Glass, Smith 7; Center—Brock 18; Guards—Shelton, 6; Hinton None.

Officials: Atley and Falkerson.

Prof. S. W. Seabrook, president of the State Teachers College at Fayetteville, addressed the Pitt county teachers here Saturday in their monthly meeting. He spoke on various methods of teaching and teaching for life. His address was instructive as well as interesting.

SUMMARY FOR THE FANS Here's What You Went Through During Football Season

YOU took part in pre-game and post-game celebrations, like this one wherein Carnegie Tech rejoiced over beating Pitt. Some of your revelry brought headaches to the police.

YOU may have watched powder puff pigskin pushers. Feminine football was a 1938 innovation. You may have seen these Galloping Girls at Webster Groves, Missouri.

YOU were given a pajama party by Fordham grid-ders, in a New York City station. You visited many stations to cheer your favorite teams as they left for the wars.

YOU WELCOMED the chance to get out into the fresh air, sunshine, etc. You felt sorry for those who had to stay at home and listen to the game by radio.

YOU felt sorry for sports writers who couldn't spell many players' names, and who had trouble finding enough Americans for All-America teams.

YOU saw countless publicity photographs designed to instill fear into the foe. Maybe you noticed this frightening pose of Stephenson and Watkins, West Texas.

Man About Manhattan

By George Turber

New York—The jonliest and most forlorn creature in New York is the chestnut vender. Somebody—I think it was the late O. O. McIntyre—described him once as "a scarecrow on a windswept corner, sucking at a lollipop like a lollipop." Odd was in very good form when he wrote that phrase.

For the man with the charcoal smudge is one of the unforgettable vignettes of metropolitan life. You will find him where the crowds are thickest and where the winds are chilliest, huddled over his movable charcoal stand, a smudge on his cheek, more than likely an icicle on the end of his nose, hawking a confection in a voice that is part cry, part prayer, part grunt and a groan: "Chestnuts, sir, hot chestnuts, right off the fire, right out of the red hot pan."

There used to be a lot of him but his number now is sadly diminished. Where he hides in summer you one knows, but when winter comes he emerges from hiding and takes up his position in the crowded sectors of Sixth Avenue, Times Square, or Herald Square, in subway entrances, and on icy corners. His sales are in five and ten cent lots. Oddy enough his success is greatest when the elements are against him, when the thermometer falls, when the wind whips out of the north with an icy keen, when the pavements are slippery, when each breath leaves a frosty plume in the air.

I think that when he finally disappears something will have passed from the American scene that all the ingenuity of the novelists and the movies can never replace. Like the hill-billy mountaineer and the cigar store Indian he is essentially American. Anyway he is essentially New York. But in his eye you will detect a lurking fear, a shadowy puzzlement that asks why but does not militantly reject the seeming conspiracy against him.

There is a conspiracy. The radio, the mail-order stores, the automobile took the coonskin cap off the mountaineer. It is the sack, cave, streamlined nut shopper (sometimes in his prayers he must ask God what a shoppe is and what he has done to have an avalanche of them sent against him) that is erasing him from the streets of New York.

The merchant is against him, too. In cooperation with the city, there is an ordinance against him now, forbidding him to approach within 100 feet of a store. When he passes beyond his deadline he is arrested. The merchants say he is unsightly. Itinerant peddlers find no favor in corporation men and the big store owners.

November to March is his season. He obtains chestnuts from the freighters off East River docks in small but wholesale lots. Most domestic chestnuts it seems are imported from Italy. Formerly they were American raised, but an Asiatic mark disease left its mark on the chestnut forests of the United States. Hence the daily scene of ventilated barrels being hoisted from the hold of those low-lying, black freighters off the end of 33rd street.

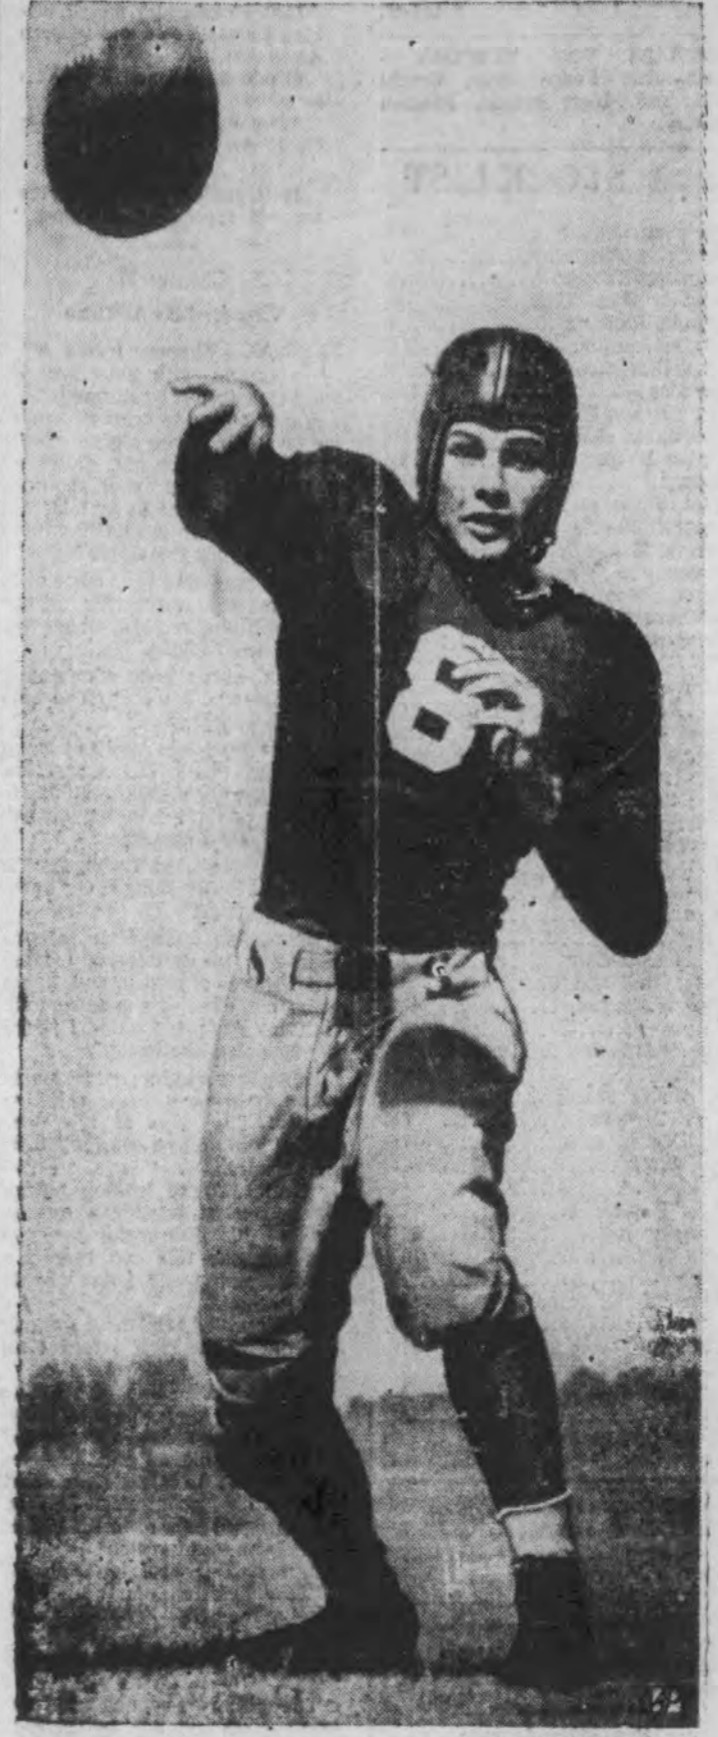

I think he is doomed. I think in a few years he will have disappeared. But it seems to me that the smell of his blazing charcoal burner and his cry of "Chestnuts, sir" will always be remembered, for they are as native as the cry of "Play ball" or "Buddy, can you spare a dime?"

1938 All-America Is Team-of-Month; Irish, Duke, T. C. U. Get Headlines

MAN-OF-THE-MONTH: Texas Christian university's Robert David O'Brien, who weighs about 150 pounds. O'Brien masterminded T.C.U. to 10 straight wins. His passes (93 of them) in 1938 gained 1,568 yards for T.C.U.; 70 were incomplete, only four were intercepted. O'Brien won Heisman trophy (most valuable U. S. gridder) and Maxwell trophy (most outstanding).

By GARDNER SOULE Sports Editor, AP Feature Service
TEAM-OF-THE-MONTH: The All-America selected by Herman W. Barker, General Sports Editor of The Associated Press. Football season ended in a blaze of glory for these men selected on Barker's team: Ends—Holland, Cornell, and Young, Oklahoma; tackles—Beiner, Notre Dame, and Wolf, Santa Clara; guards—Heikkinen, Michigan and Beck, Iowa State; center—Aldrich, TCU; backs—O'Brien, TCU; Hall, Mississippi; Pingel, Michigan State, and Goldberg of Pittsburgh.

Coach: Duke finished year unscored on, won Southern conference crown; Southern Cal and California tied for Pacific coast; Harvard, Big Three; Army, Service; Tulsa, Missouri valley; Tennessee Southeastern; Texas Christian, Southwest; Oklahoma, Big Six; Minnesota, Big Ten; Utah, Big Seven. On right side of won-loss ledger: Notre Dame, Texas Tech, Carnegie Tech, Pittsburgh, Holy Cross, Cornell, Fordham, Villanova, Michigan, Alabama, Amherst, Boston College, St. Mary's, Tulane, Northwestern, Dartmouth, Mississippi, Vanderbilt, Clemson, VMI, Rutgers, North Carolina, Georgetown, Purdue, Stanford, Iowa State, SMU.

Outburner-of-Month: Seabiscuit, which defeated War Admiral by three lengths in "race-of-the-century" at Pimlico, Md.
Election-Winners-of-Month: Notre Dame football team voted the strongest in U. S. in AP sports writer's poll; Jimmy Fox, voted most valuable player in American league for 1938; Ernie Lombardi, voted most valuable in National.

Triumph-of-Democracy-of-the-Month: Belleville (Kas.) high school gridder, chose positions they'd play in final game. Quarter-back moved to center, tackles to end, ends to backfield. Belleville beat Concordia, 40-0.
Football - Post-Winners - of - Month: Mike Phipps got 10-goal rating of a "perfect player" from U. S. Polo association.
Fisticuffs: Solly Krieger, Brooklyn won middleweight championship by taking 15-round decision from Al Hostak, titleholder, at Seattle. Henry Armstrong beat Celerino Garcia on points to keep welterweight title.
Cross-Country: Don Lash retained senior national AAU crown for fifth straight year; Manhattan won IC-4A team title; Penn State's William J. Smith won IC-4A individua crown.

Football-Score-of-Month: Forecasting basketball season: Brown 36; Columbia 27.
Surprise-of-Month: Texas U. losers of eight straight 1938 grid games, dusted off panis, beat Texas A. & M., 7-6.
Retort-of-Month: When it was reported Czechoslovakia was receiving invitation to Olympics, Edward T. Murphy, New York Sun, suggested this as Czech reply: "Will show up... what more can we lose?"
Unfortunates-of-Month: Temple cheer leaders, who had to lead individual yells for Gridders Juralewicz, Stylianas and Kovacevich. American U. Coach Gus Welch, who had only 13 gridgers on squad, put cheer leaders into grid uniforms "to make bench look better."
Confusion-of-Month: Gridder named Hobart played for freshman team at Hobart.
Patriot-of-Month: St. Mary's Coach Slip Madigan affected Pajamas in school colors—flaming red and bright blue.
Handout-of-Month: Columbia U. reported hobbies of its gridgers: pigeon racing, glass blowing, bee culture and breeding of tropical fish.
Tradition-Ending: Not since 1930 had Pitt lost a November game; had lost only two since 1923. This season Pitt lost two more—in Carnegie Tech and Duke. Rutgers beat Princeton 6-4, in first intercollegiate grid game in history in 1869. Princeton won next 33 games between the two. This year Rutgers beat Princeton, 20-18.
Resigners: Don Budge left amateur tennis for pro game and $75,000. Max Amrek, Chicago boy who upset Joe Louis to win National AAU 175-pound title in '33, quit pro boxing.
Hired: Ray Blades to manage St. Louis Cardinals.
Pan-Letter-of-Month: Was addressed to "Sid Luckman, Football, and was promptly received by Sid at Columbia U. It read: "I am five years. I saw you in the movies. You are my hero. I like you. I go to school. I have your picture. We have a game. Do you want to join it? We play football. I am Luckman, Jackie."

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

The Characters
Katherine Cornish, myself, visiting Elizabeth on a mid-western Army post.
Elizabeth, Colonel Wright's daughter.
Adam Drew, acting commanding officer.

Yesterday: Charlie says he goes my old typewriter to Anne.

Chapter 27

Crushed By A Stone

"DO YOU suppose I care what you do with your second-hand typewriter?" I stormed. "But you didn't need to keep writing to me on it. Give you a good excuse to run in and see her, didn't it? Did she lean over your shoulder and tell you what to say? Or did she take it down in shorthand and type it for your signature?"

There may have been more of it, but my concluding remark, which was a prelude to action.

"Well, here's your secondhand ring! See who you can get to take that off your hands!"

And I flung it as hard as I could at his face. He ducked instinctively and the little yellow-gold ring, its one eye winking malevolently, sailed past him.

"That," he said furiously, "is about the lowest thing I ever knew a woman to do."

Something warned me to concede him the last word. I mustered shards of control and, knees wobbling, effected a careless exit. Halfway down the stairs, I heard the door slam shatteringly.

Adam was standing in the downstairs hall, head bent, thinking deeply. The slam of the door roused him, but he overlooked its significance.

"Hallo! You're looking better. Do you mind waiting a minute longer? It's disagreeable to keep you out like this, but there's a sentry coming and I don't want to miss him."

"A sentry—Adam, there was one in front of the club. I forgot all about him!"

"That's the man—so did I. I've been cursing my feeble wits. Wonder what else I've overlooked? He's been relieved and he telephoned that he might have some information—about a cat, he said. Do you want to wait in the car or would you like to listen?"

"I'll stay if you don't mind."

"Stay, by all means. It will only take a moment—here he comes now."

He stepped forward to the open door.

The soldier was young and fresh faced—a country boy, by the look of him. He saluted snappily, stepped inside and took off his broad-brimmed campaign hat.

"It was about a car, sir," he began.

"I'd not like to make trouble for anybody," he said nervously. "Especially such a nice young lady. And I wouldn't want the major to think I was suggesting anything like that. Only it's just something I was in a way to see, and the major being in charge of the investigation and all. So when I heard about the poor young lady being killed I remembered about the car and thought the major ought to know about that."

'About That Balloon'

"CERTAINLY. It's your duty to report anything you saw that was out of the way."

"Well, sir, it wasn't out of the way, exactly. Only, coming when it did—"

"Suppose you begin at the beginning," Adam suggested patiently.

"Yes, sir."

The boy straightened, began rapidly in an official drone to relate that he had been walking his post, which included the section of road in front of the Service Club.

"Time?"

"Just after Taps, sir. I was in front of the Post Exchange at Taps, proceeding in the direction of the Service Club. I was abreast of the chapel when I saw Lieutenant Nelson draw up and take the young lady back to the dance."

"Miss Carewe."

"Yes, sir. The little one. I proceeded along past the club and down to the corner near the Officers' Club, where I turned back. I was then aware of a car approaching in a very queer manner, sort of zigzagging back and forth across the road, as you might say. As it passed in front of the club there was a loud report like a backfire."

"The car came on toward you."

"Yes, sir, and I took proper note of it as it passed. I was almost sure, you see, sir, by the driving. Sure enough, it was Miss Wright's car."

"How long was that after you saw Lieutenant Nelson and Miss Carewe enter the club?"

"Not more than five minutes. The time was right. And Mrs. Drington would swear the car was passing when she heard the shot. But how much chance was there for such a shot to find its mark—a moving target, a moving car?"

There was Adam's theory, too, that the shot had not found its mark—that it had been intended for Barney.

Adam was going over it again with the man, looking for loopholes. Was the car window down next to the curb?

The sentry couldn't be sure about that, but he thought so. He was looking more and more unhappy.

Adam said understandingly, "I won't mention this unless I have to." On the verge of dismissing the man, he put another question at random.

"You didn't notice anything else that struck you as out of the way?"

There was something. You could see him remembering, turning it over in his mind, wondering if it was worth telling.

"Well, sir, now you mention it. It was just a silly thing—it was about that balloon."

He might not have paused there, but the hat got away from him and rolled over in front of the open door. A little red in the face, he retrieved it.

"What balloon?" Adam asked sharply, his voice louder with sudden excitement.

"Why, sir, there was a balloon—"

It wasn't the end of a sentence, or even of a phrase. The voice cut off in mid-flight, like an interrupted radio program. Inter-upted, the familiar click of the switch, there was an ominous, dull crack like the shell of a hickory nut crushed by a stone.

A stone! There was a stone—round, smooth, as big as an orange. It bounced at my feet an instant before the country boy pitched on his face.

'Don't Touch It'

UNCOMPREHENDING, I stooped to pick it up.

Adam cried, "Don't touch it!" and was gone through the open door, calling something in a loud, official voice. And presently I heard heavy feet pounding nearer and quick sharp voices of men.

I forced myself to kneel down and touch the outflung hand. I tried to find the pulse, and once I thought I felt it fluttering; but I couldn't be sure, for my own veins were hammering loudly.

There was blood on the back of his head where the stone had struck. I remembered the sickening sound of the impact and realized that the skull was fractured. Even if he were still alive he would lie for days, perhaps weeks in a coma.

I rose and retreated from him until I could feel the solid, reassuring wall at my back.

Adam came in, flushed, panting, savage looking.

"Got away," he explained briefly. He dropped to his knees, loosened the collar of the khaki shirt and swung across the hall to telephone. He put in several calls pausing once to bawl for Charlie.

I heard quick steps along the upper hall, was aware of him leaning over the railing, but I did not glance up.

"Get into Nelson's rooms," Adam called. "and stay with him until you're relieved. And once more he was barking into the telephone. I heard Charlie's faint, startled whistle. Then he was gone. A door opened just overhead and a light switch clicked.

Adam turned from the telephone, sauntered past me, scanning the floor. The round stone was lying against the bottom step. He rolled it over with his foot, bent down, uttered a little exclamation of surprise.

"Look here, Kay—see what this is?"

I stepped to his side, sank down on the stairs and scrutinized it.

"Why, it's been whitewashed. It must have come from the border of some flower bed."

"Yes, unquestionably. They're around all the buildings. But that wasn't what I meant. It's been white—but it's mottled now. What do you make of that?"

One side of the stone was smudged with black.

"Like as if it had been in the fire," I ventured.

Adam did not respond. There was a faraway, speculative gleam in his eyes.

"Adam, you'd better come up here."

Charlie's voice was queer, and his face above the stair well looked scared.

"Something's the matter with Barney. He's on the floor by the window and I can't make him wake up..."

Adam swore. "All right—get down here and keep an eye on this one. The ambulance is on the way. And tell Doc I'm up here."

He was taking the steps two at a time. He leaned over the railing with a final admonition.

"And don't let anybody touch that stone."

INSPECT SEED FOR FARMERS

Coltrane Stresses Importance of Regulatory Work

Raleigh, Dec. 5.—The State Department of Agriculture is charged with enforcement and of seed, feed and fertilizer laws regulating industries which do an annual business of approximately $40,000,000 annually in North Carolina. D. S. Coltrane, assistant to the Commissioner of Agriculture, said today in emphasizing the importance of this regulatory and inspection work.

Mr. Coltrane pointed out that under the present Agriculture set-up a special effort has been made to secure the co-operation of all interested groups in this work and said that as a result of this co-operative policy changes in the laws have been made and the services improved inestimably in their value to the farmers of the state.

The Department will continue its policy of inviting farmers, manufacturers, research leaders, farm agencies and others to give their views and co-operation when the need for changes in laws is presented," he said. "It is realized that the maximum enforcement of agricultural laws cannot be realized without the support of all parties concerned."

Reviewing progress made the cited accomplishments in the 1937 session of the General Assembly which resulted from an informal conference of all concerned in Raleigh early in January, 1937. As a result the fertilizer laws were amended so as to provide (1) Guarantee as to whether fertilizer is acid or non-acid forming; (2) for the guarantee of minimum per cent magnesium oxide; (3) Optional guarantee as to the minimum per cent calcium oxide and (4) Optional guarantee as to the maximum sulphur in tobacco fertilizer.

The next general conference was held July, 1937, he said, this time by the feed people. This conference resulted from discovery that many feeds containing rice hulls were being handled in the state.

As a result feed manufacturers took steps to get the prohibited adulterant off the market.

The Department also took steps to dispel the impression that the State Feed Law is nothing more or less than a "correct labeling act". This was done, he said, by making rules and regulations and adopting feed standards for various special purpose feeds.

Specifically he cited changes in the regulations which increased the minimum protein for feed from nine to 15 per cent for dairy feeds and most poultry feeds and at 14 per cent for hog feeds. Changes were also made in the maximum fiber and minimum fat requirements.

An experienced microscopist was employed to determine (1) whether the feed contained the guaranteed ingredients and the quality of each; (2) whether the feed contained other ingredients and whether or not there were adulterants; (3) whether in quantities too small to affect the nature of the feed.

Mr. Coltrane also pointed to reduction in retail seed dealers license as a forward step. Beginning in 1918 the license was set at $25 but records revealed that only a small per cent of dealers actually paid a license fee. On the Department's advice the license was reduced to $10 and under a policy of strict enforcement and collection the revenue obtained from the sale of these licenses has made it possible for the Seed Laboratory to be self-supporting and has made it possible to give adequate inspection service and permitted the purchase of equipment to give the state one of the best test laboratories in the nation, Mr. Coltrane said.
