LID TIGHTENED ON SECRETS OF U. S. DEFENSE

Army - Navy Quietly Concealing Military Plans

GENERAL 'PURGE' DENIED HOWEVER

To Keep Map-Makers and Photographers Away from Naval Vessels, Army Posts

Washington, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The army and navy are quietly tightening the lid on military secrets in preparation for the speeding up of the administration's national defense program.

New rules to safeguard forts, warships and planes, indications of a closer tab on aliens in aircraft plants and a recent hint by President Roosevelt that more funds would be sought from Congress to combat spies gave evidence today of increased caution.

Military circles heard that regulations were nearing completion to keep unauthorized map-makers and photographers away from army posts, naval vessels and aircraft. Congress authorized the step early this year.

Some aliens on whom suspicion rested had been discharged in recent months or transferred from plants making war planes for the army and navy informed persons said. They added, however, that there has been nothing approaching a general "purge."

Since 1926 aliens have been able to work on military aircraft orders only by official permission. Now such permits are more difficult to obtain and are issued for only a few months at a time.

Plan Transfer Of Many Foreigners

Shanghai, Dec. 8.—(AP)—American and British naval authorities today were said to have negotiated a tentative arrangement with the Chinese and Japanese for removal of 33 of the 200 foreigners marooned at Kuling.

Fifteen Americans, fifteen Britons, two Swedes and one German were reported planning to leave Saturday with an escort of British and American naval officers and proceed to Kiangkiang, where they would board a Japanese transport for Shanghai.

The United States gunboat Luzon after spending the night at Nanking, steamed down the Yangtze for Shanghai this morning with another group of Americans from Hankow. The Luzon was scheduled to stop en route and arrive at Shanghai tomorrow.

Ask Contributions Aid Unfortunates

The Salvation Army, which organization is sponsoring a Christmas tree for children who otherwise would receive nothing or little at Christmas time, is asking the public to share in the movement.

Letters are coming in to the Salvation Army from boys and girls who fear they will not have any Christmas. The organization has placed kettles on the streets and anyone wishing to share in the movement can do so by making a donation through this means. The Salvation Army reported today that the kettles are not reaping such good results so far and called on the people to contribute through them.

The following letter received by the Salvation Army is typical of the hundreds from youngsters:

"Dear Santa: I am a little boy - seven years old and Mamma says I am a right good boy. Santa Claus my Daddy has got no job now so I don't guess I will get any Christmas if you don't come to see me. I would be glad to get anything for I am a poor boy. I go to school every day, but I don't go to Sunday school for I have no way of going. I sure would love to go. I am staying at my granny's. Please come to see me."

HER COMPOSURE CRACKED

The cool, aloof composure which sustained Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn of Cincinnati throughout her trial, conviction and imprisonment for the poison death of an aged gardener, finally cracked and she went to bed in a state of collapse a short while before the hour set for her electrocution in the Ohio State prison at Columbus. The prosecution contended she poisoned the old man in order to get his money. Mrs. Hahn was executed last night.

Italian Soldiers On Border Brings New French Fear

Troops Concentrating in Insurgent Spain Within Striking Distance France; Reported Germany Backing Italy's Demands

Paris, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Concern spread in France today on reports from the Spanish frontier that Italian troops were concentrating in Insurgent Spain within easy striking distance of France.

These reports, which lacked official confirmation, said the asserted Italian troop movement had begun November 22 and was still incomplete.

Reports also spread that Germany and Italy were uniting to enforce Italy's territorial demands on France.

Thousands of students demonstrating against the Italian clamor for Tunisia and Corsica battled police in Paris streets today.

President Albert LeBrun unexpectedly summoned Premier Daladier for consultations on developments in the increasing strain on French-Italian relations.

Reports of Italian troop movements in Spain originated mostly from travelers who had reached France over the Pyrenees mountains along the frontier. Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco has closed the border between France and Insurgent Spain.

Such troops could be for a new Insurgent drive against Spanish Government forces in northern Spain, but the French were concerned by reports of Italian troops so close to the French border.

The President's action in summoning the Premier was so unexpected that Daladier was forced to cancel a scheduled appearance before his Radical Socialist party.

DALE CARNEGIE BODY OPPOSES TRADE TREATY

Tells Audience How To Make Friends, Influence People Hull Reciprocal Pact Assailed by Manufacturers

New York, Dec. 8.—(AP)—A bitter "revolt" by industrialist opposed to the Hull reciprocal trade agreement to the Hull reciprocal trade agreement program developed in committee rooms today and according to leaders participating in the discussions threatened to disrupt the National Association of Manufacturers 1939 program of co-operation with the government.

While this was going on behind closed doors in the liveliest convention the association has had in years, delegates in the open session in the main ballroom of the Waldorf Astoria heard:

1. Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney urge the industrial leaders to restore confidence to the public by submitting to regulations designed for the best interest of the public as a whole, rather than a small business group.

2. Lewis Morris, white-haired Iowa dirt farmer, warn the business leaders to "keep your hands off our farm program."

3. W. W. Waymack, editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, assert that democracy depends on a large, secure middle class, the backbone of which is the individual farmer and that "capitalism as we know it is bound to be radically changed."

Vigorous lobbying behind the closed doors of the powerful resolutions committee meeting at the convention was led by the "co-operation" faction in the hope of preventing an open fight on the floor when the 1939 platform was scheduled to come up for adoption late in the day.

Japan and Russia Wage New Dispute

Moscow, Dec. 8.—(AP)—A serious dispute developed today between the Japanese and Soviet Russian government.

The dispute revolves about Japanese agitation for extended fishing rights in Siberian waters under Russian control. It was intensified by a Russian demand for payment in connection with sale of the Chinese Eastern railway in 1935 to Manchoukuo.

Tass, official Russian news agency said, Foreign Minister Litvinoff on November 25 told the Japanese Ambassador that Russia can not "begin negotiations on conclusion of a new strong-term fishery convention before the Japanese government fulfills at least its undertaking as regard the Chinese Eastern railway payments" due from Manchoukuo, the Japanese protectorate.

U. S. PROPOSAL OF SOLIDARITY GAINING FAVOR

Ban Suggested on European Propaganda in America

HULL CONDUCTS INFORMAL TALKS

Belief Increases Pan-American Conference Will Act to Halt European Invasion

Lima, Peru, Dec. 8.—(AP)—A proposal to ban European political propaganda in line with the United States' program of solidarity for the Americas may come before the Pan-American conference, which opens tomorrow, activity by the Argentina delegation indicated today.

The delegation, a conference informant said, agreed with a tentative recommendation and was to put it in more direct wording at a meeting today.

A series of informal conferences between Secretary Hull, chief of the United States delegation, and heads of the Latin-American groups demonstrated that they were taking President Roosevelt's proposals with deep seriousness.

Some among the Latin-American envoys believed the conference could enact concrete measures against political and cultural invasion from Europe, but it appeared that Secretary Hull himself, was feeling his way gradually and cautiously.

By the series of talks he began last night shortly after his arrival, the secretary was said to be sounding out the attitudes of all the other delegations before deciding to present any specific projects for a United Hemisphere.

American delegates hinted that Mr. Hull might refrain from offering any project to the conference unless he could get unanimous agreement before hand.

Selects Chairmen For TB Seal Sale

Miss Elizabeth Skinner, publicity chairman for Pitt county Christmas Seal Sale, announced today that Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, chairman of the Pitt county Christmas Seal Sale, has appointed the following persons as chairmen of their respective towns and districts:

Ayden, Mrs. J. D. Cannon, Mrs. J. C. Andrews, vice-chairman; Bell Arthur, J. W. Webster, principal of school; Belvoir, Mrs. Charlie Parker; Bethel, Mrs. Cecil Garrenton, G. N. Nobles; Chicod, Newman Lewis, principal of school; Falkland, Mrs. G. H. Pittman, Mrs. D. L. Moore; Farmville, Miss Tabitha DeVisconzi; Fountain, Miss Nell Owens; Greenville, Mrs. Lee A. Folger, Jr.; Griffon, H. C. Oglesby, school principal; Grimesland, Mrs. S. A. Porter; Paeletts, Mrs. J. Paul Davenport; Stokes, Mrs. Heber Fleming; Stokesport, Miss Ruth Gardner; Winterville, Mrs. Haywood McLamborn.

On account of the many demands on the school principals' time, the county chairman has as far as was practical, refrained from asking the principals to serve as chairmen of their respective districts.

The health officer, Dr. Ennett, said that while the control of tuberculosis is in part a medical problem, it is to a greater extent a social problem which means that in the last analysis its control depends upon the efforts of the citizens at large. And he called attention to the fact that the support of the Seal sale is one way in which the public can most effectively participate in the tuberculosis control program.

It might be well for our people to keep their sidewalk gates closed as much as possible during the convention. It would be bad if a delegate should get crippled by running over an open gate in the dark.

Greenville People To Help In Revue

Greenville will be well represented in the cast of J. Gaskill McDaniel's third annual Yuletide Revue, when the widely known benefit show makes its appearance at the Masonic Theater in New Bern on the night of December 20.

Miss Ramona Staples will offer a comedy song, as well as a tap dance specialty, while one of her local pupils, Miss Kathryn Youngblood, is to be featured in an acrobatic number.

Misses Julia, Helen and Kitty Foley, who made a hit in the 1937 edition of the Revue, are to offer harmony vocals again. Incidentally, Miss Staples and Miss Youngblood will be accompanied on the piano by Miss Edna Moore of this city.

McDaniel, who is best known in Greenville as statistician of the Coastal Plain League and author of many sports articles, promotes the show to get toys for needy children at Christmas time. Last year's Revue took care of over 350 children in New Bern and vicinity, and thousands of playthings have been provided since its organization in 1936.

During the past summer the Revue fund furnished a complete juvenile library for the recent-built Good Shepherd Hospital for colored people at New Bern. All persons connected with the show, including the promoter, donate their services.

SANTA AND THE LOST PRINCESS

BY SIGRID ARNE

The story so far: The fairies give Hulda a blueberry of forgetfulness so she won't miss her father, the King. Hulda helps an elf, and as a reward she is given a magic needle.

Chapter Three
The Toyshop
Santa was in the midst of quite a problem when Hulda rapped on the Toyland door. He had just made his first set of twin dolls. You must remember this was years ago.

He had never made twin dolls before, and although they were plump cunning dolls one of the older fairies was shaking her head and saying "I'm afraid little girls won't like them. Or rather they'll like them too well. They'll like one and then they'll like the other, and then they won't know which they like."

"Good gracious, do you think so?" said Santa. He ruffled his hair through his silky, long hair.

Just then he heard "Rap, rap" on the door. He went over to open it absentmindedly, but when he saw Hulda he gasped her hand and rushed her to his workbench shouting, "Just in time. A real little girl. Now we'll see. Do you like these twin dolls?"

Hulda was certainly surprised to be rushed like that into the Toyshop. But she obediently fixed her eyes on the twins, and then she, crowded with pleasure, "Please let me hold them."

So Cunning
Santa chuckled and plumped down into a big chair, saying, "See I told you little girls would like them."

"But why not?" said Hulda. "On one of the fairies was saying little girls would rather have one doll at a time," he explained.

"But twins are so cunning," said Hulda. "Why, the chancellor had twins—" she started and then stopped as though she couldn't think what she was going to say. "You and I know the wind fairies had given her forgetfulness but once in a while she had vague memories of her home."

"Chancellor?" repeated Santa sitting bolt upright. "Say, I declare! We've completely forgotten our manners. How in the world did you get 'way up here to the North Pole all alone?"

"That's just what I'm trying to think," said Hulda. "Can't remember?" exclaimed Santa. "That's very odd. Who was this Chancellor?"

"I can't remember that either," said Hulda, a big tear slipping down one cheek. "But—" she added timidly, "I'd like to live here forever."

"Good gracious, do you think so?" said Santa. He ruffled his hair through his silky, long hair.

Just then he heard "Rap, rap" on the door. He went over to open it absentmindedly, but when he saw Hulda he gasped her hand and rushed her to his workbench shouting, "Just in time. A real little girl. Now we'll see. Do you like these twin dolls?"

and I've brought a needle." Wink And Twink. Santa looked puzzled, but Mrs. Santa who had come into the room squeezed his hand, and said, "Oh, let her stay."

"But this is only Toyland," said Santa, "we've never had a real little girl here. Where would she sleep? The doll beds are too small."

"Oh, sir," said a very polite gnome bowing almost in two before Santa, "let us make her a bed. It will be done by bedtime." You could see the gnome thought Hulda was too pretty to send away. Santa saw that and chuckled, "Very well." So the gnomes rushed off to the carpenter-shop where Hulda could hear their hammers beating out a tune. She smiled shyly at Santa and then at the twins she was still holding.

"So you like them," said Santa. "What shall we name them?" Hulda looked down at them. They seemed such mischievous dolls, both with red curls in the middle of their foreheads. She chuckled, saying, "Let's call them: Wink and Twink, the twins."

They're double the trouble And twice the fun Because they're two And not just one."

Santa slapped his knee and said, "Well, I declare, child, Rhyming. That's fine. Certainly, we'll call them Wink and Twink."

But just then the strangest thing happened that stopped all talk. A huge crow flew out of the fireplace, circled the Toyshop and lit on the big Christmas tree in the center. He croaked, "Trouble."

"Oh, my gracious," said Santa. "Tomorrow: The witch again."

three consecutive years against control of tobacco production I propose the return of the Hoover Cart.
Many of us have forgotten the hundreds of farmers and merchants in this section that were forced into bankruptcy. And the Banks were popping like a bunch of firecrackers.
And the saddest of all was the large number of our citizens found their burden too great and blew out their

COMPLISORY CROP CONTROL
To The Editor:
I am glad to comply with my patrons wishes, because compulsory crop control is very much misunderstood by the average layman and my purpose is to enlighten my friends as to its true significance and I am sure if it were understood, red-blooded North Carolinians would never adopt it as an agricultural policy; because it is undemocratic, unconstitutional and un-American and has no place in our Representative form of government;
as expressed in our national Constitution.

Now let's see if we can't prove this: In the first place a contract is one of the most solemn things known to Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence and cannot be broken at will legally, on by mutual consent. A Jed to one's land is a contract between a citizen and the State (a sovereign power) giving the owner all the rights, privileges and appurtenances belonging to said land to have and to hold, etc. As long as he citizen pays his taxes this contract remains unbroken with the sovereign power, the State. Therefore all rights, privileges and appurtenances belonging to the land is a State right. And even the State cannot penalize the owner for growing a crop or else it would violate the contract expressed in the deed.
Neither can the National Government penalize the owner for the growing of the crop for the following reasons: Our National Government is not a sovereign power, but a delegated power. The Constitution says so; quote: "All powers not delegated to the National Constitution are reserved to the State and to the people respectively." The owers enumerated in one's deed ere never delegated to the National Constitution in the beginning. Therefore, never having had these powers delegated to it, the National Government is powerless o place penalties on something (the growing of a crop) it never had any right to in the beginning. And the position of penalties is taking one's property away without "due process of law" which violates the Bill of Rights itself, which says, quote: "No man's life, liberty or property shall be taken without due process of law" and if property is taken there must be a just compensation."

Secondly: The manner in which he compulsory control law was voted on and passed was illegal also in regard to tobacco especially. The urpose of the tobacco law, was, hey said, to raise the price (which s failed to do) but that was the main purpose or else there was no good reason for passing such a law.
Only four States, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia, were allowed to vote on the Tobacco Compulsory Crop Control
aw. This was unconstitutional also, quote: "In substance, 'No number of States can pass a law to raise the price of an article on the others without their consent.'"

And the manner of voting was illegal also. Boys, black and white, were allowed to vote who were less than 21 years old. A boy less than 21 years old is not even a legal citizen, but wards of their parents or guardian and never before were uch allowed to exercise the right of franchise in which penalties (taxation were) involved. And, furthermore, the tobacco law violated one more provision of the National Constitution than either the corn, wheat, otton, or rice law, quote: "The last paragraph of the tobacco law: "Provided, however, if a grower undertakes to ship his tobacco to parties outside the United States he shall ave remitted the penalties just as f he had sold it inside." This is clearly an export tax, therefore, unconstitutional, quote from the constitution: "No duty or export tax hall be laid upon articles shipped rom any State." Now I hope I have clearly shown that this so-called "control law is no law at all ecause it is clearly in contravention to the Constitution of the United States and therefore illegal. But here is a way to make such a law alid, namely: Amend the National Constitution to that effect—by naving two-thirds (32) States of the Union propose it as a Constitutional Amendment or two-thirds of both houses of the Congress pass it as a "constitutional amendment and then submit it to all 48 States and when three-fourths (36) States ratify it, ther in convention or through their Legislatures, then it will be

SHALL WE HAVE ANOTHER HOOVER CART PARADE?

Dear Mr. Editor:
A study made late in November, 1933, showed that among all the States only Florida led North Carolina in the default of cities, towns and other tax districts. In Florida there were 323 units in default; in North Carolina there were 264. There were more than twice as many units in default in North Carolina than in the third State in the list. These figures were read in the Senate on Monday by Senator Neely in the debate on the municipal bankruptcy bill.

These North Carolina cities and towns may look upon the municipal bankruptcy bill as a means of "rescue" from the financial situation in which they find themselves. Indeed, it may make it possible to carry on proper municipal functions in cities and towns where essential services have been sacrificed in an effort fruitless or otherwise to make the payments due on indebtedness. It may mean that bankers and bond holders will have to join school teachers and other public servants in sharing the sacrifices of hard times. In such a sharing there is an undoubted element of justice.

The above clipping from an old copy of the News & Observer speaks for itself and needs no comment. Most of us are like mules—we have thick hides and short memories. Many of us have forgotten that Parade in Ayden with over seven hundred Hoover Carts. If we vote the law of the land. And not till then will I go a step further and say that, not only four States, as was done to pass this tobacco law, but if all 48 States, every man, woman and child, had solemnly voted for the crop control law, and passed it, it would still be illegal till the Constitution provided for the same by amendment clearly setting forth its provisions because no law of whatever kind or purport, good or bad, is legal until it conforms to the constitution as now constituted. So this, crop control law is no law at all and will not stand the test before the Supreme Court of the United States.

Now as to the actual workings of this crop control law. The purpose of this law, they said, was to bring production in line with consumption, etc., and to raise the price level on a parity from 1909 to, and including 1913. The average price of cotton during these years was about 16c. The average price of tobacco was over 30c. These were the goals anticipated and promised by the advocates of compulsory crop control. Since 1934, the year control began, the average price to farmers on cotton has been less than 11-1/2c. The average price of tobacco has been less than 21c, nearer 20c. The goal promised has not been reached even after Wallace, by his own statement recently, has spent one way or another $4,500,000,000. When control began in 1934 we were growing 60 per cent of the cotton of the world. In 1937, even with our big crop, we were growing only 49 per cent—18,750,000 against their 19,000,000 bales. This year even less, probably 45 per cent, and the foreign market is lost. Every foreign country began increasing their cotton crop as we began to curtail it. Argentina in 1937 grew 500,000 bales; in 1934 practically none. Brazil increased from 500,000 to 1,500,000 bales; Mexico, Peru, Russia, India, South Africa—even China (before the present war with Japan), all added on to their cotton production just as every one but Wallace and the crop control crowd say they would, can consequently we've been shoved out of the world market—growing now (1938) 6,500,000 bales less than in 1937, and yet the price is lower.

Now As To Tobacco Control! In 1934 and '35 tobacco control under the A.A.A. was in full force and effect. Did it really control either in quantity or price? In 1935 (control in full power) we grew the biggest crop ever grown in North Carolina and the price averaged about 22-1/2c. In 1936, the Supreme Court invalidated the A. A. A. The farmers were "foot-free" to plant what they pleased; and made 595,000,000 pounds in North Carolina; and the wise ones predicted low prices. They made 100,000,000 pounds more than they did on the average in 1934 and 1935. And, lo and behold, the price averaged 24.25c per pound, 3c higher than it did on an average in 1934 and '35 under control. In 1938 we have control and the tobacco crop in North Carolina is 100,000,000 pounds less than in 1937, and the price is over 4c per pound cheaper than it was in 1937.

Now where is control and the goal looked for that would bring prices up to the level of 1909 to 1913? Gone with the waves; foreign market for cotton is lost; and our foreign market for tobacco going the same way; all because a lot of foolish politicians in Washington, misguided by their own ignorance as to the real selfish big tobacco growers, who, by their land mouth clamoring, have tied hand and foot more than 100,000 small farmers and tenants, and reduced them to a state of penance by abrogating, through illegal methods of procedure, their God-given right to till the soil and their legal rights are expressed in our National Constitution.

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Dec. 8.—Justices of North Carolina's Supreme Court must think they'll enjoy Christmas more if they've just finished the heaviest work they've attempted in years.

At least for next week's oral arguments there has been calendered the largest number of cases to be heard in any similar period in a long, long time. Attaches could not recall when the total of 41 cases has been exceeded.

Of these, 38 are regularly set from the Tenth and Eleventh districts, while four others have been specially set for the week.

Only cases from the Tenth will be called on the first day of the week's sessions (Tuesday). Commencing on Wednesday appeals will be called as docketed.

Five of the regular cases are criminal matters, one of them a capital case in which Glenn Maxwell, Alleghany county Negro, is appealing from a death sentence imposed for the shotgun slaying of a white man.

While North Carolina has 2.58 per cent of the total national population, it was found necessary to certify for the receipt of surplus commodities only 1.27 per cent of all

TO COMMISSION SCOUTS' SHIP

Exercises Set For Wednesday Afternoon, Dec. 14

Everything is set for the commissioning of the Sea Scout Ship, William Pitt, Wednesday afternoon, December 14, on the banks of the river at the foot of Cotanche street, announced First Mate Charles Whedbee, chairman of the committee on arrangements. A floating dock has been secured to facilitate getting aboard the William Pitt from the shore—heavy greenward grows right up to the shore where the dock is. Cotanche street is paved from First street down to the river.

There are over thirty-six of the colorful International Code flags, which have already arrived for the occasion and which will be used to decorate the William Pitt. Bunting and flags will be used to decorate the shore and floating dock.

The parade from the high school to the dock at the foot of Cotanche street, through the business section, will form at the high school at 3:30 Wednesday afternoon, Geo. Thomason, the Assistant Scout Executive and one in charge of the parade, announced today. The high school band will lead the parade composed of all uniformed Scouts. All other Scouts are invited to the ceremony of commissioning but are requested to come direct to the site of the occasion. Scouts from all over the district have been invited and many have indicated the intention of enjoying the occasion.

Here is an opportunity for interested people to see this new piece of Scout equipment which is expected to add so much to the Scout program in this district. It will be put through its paces on the river for the spectators and will then be made accessible to all who wish to examine her, it was announced.

Due to the grass on the banks and the floating dock, there will be no inconvenience due to mud, which is usually associated with activities along the Tar river bank.

COACH RELIES ON LOCAL BOY

Howard Hodges Star of Georgia Military Grid Team

Atlanta, Dec. 8—(Special)—When the cadets of Georgia Military Academy take the football field Friday night, December 9th, at Ponce de Leon Park, against Monroe A. & M. College to decide the G. I. A. A. championship, one of the players that the coaches will rely on heavily is Howard Hodges, of Greenville, N. C., who has developed into one of the most dependable and versatile players on the squad. Hodges weighs in at 178 pounds, stands 5 feet 11 inches and is used equally as much as end as in the backfield, although he will, in all probability start this important game in the tailback position.

The game against Monroe Aggies, coached by the famous Red Barron, who made history at Georgia Tech, promises to be one of the hardest games played by either school as both teams are capable of playing championship ball. Monroe has defeated Riverside Military Academy, and G. M. C. which in turn defeated Gordon Military College.

Georgia Military Academy has defeated several strong teams, including Tech of Atlanta.

CROP CONTROL

To the Farmers of North Carolina

You are to vote on December 10th on the question of crop control for the next crop year. This is to express the hope that you will exercise your own independent judgment in the light of your experience. Do not let politicians or office-holders or organized propaganda affect your judgment. It is your interest that is at stake and you are the judge of it.

1. As to tobacco, of course, many of the larger tobacco farmers will want control. They can afford reduction of their acreage or their poundage. They will still have an abundance left. They like to reduce the competition with themselves on the part of the smaller farmers. This letter is not addressed to them, but the family sized farmers ought to bear in mind that the crop control very largely limits their production for the present and the future. It makes it impossible for their children to grow up on the farm and have any reasonable acreage. It freezes the acreage of the family-sized farmer on a very small basis and prevents the expansion and increase of his income.

There are those who say that crop control has increased the price of tobacco. How could it increase the price of tobacco when the same plans failed to increase the price of cotton, corn and wheat? This is something to think about. If crop control brought about increased prices for tobacco, why can't crop control bring about increased prices for cotton, corn and wheat?

The truth of this matter is that tobacco is the one crop, the demand for which has constantly increased since 1932. In that year the consumption of cigarettes was only 105,000,000,000. In the present year, the consumption is 165,000,000,000. The old law of supply and demand brought about the increase in the price of tobacco and the price has increased just about in the proportion that the demand has increased.

It should be borne in mind that we are losing our foreign market and if the control principle is established, we may expect to see our acreage, and our poundage reduced year by year. Then what will become of us? Ask your County Agent if it is not a fact that foreign production of tobacco competitive with ours is constantly increasing, and ask him also if it isn't a fact that the demand for cigarette tobacco has increased, not only in this country, but throughout the world during the period of AAA operations. If he is a truthful man and well informed, he will tell you, yes.

2. Now as for cotton. Everybody knows that crop control has failed miserably with respect to cotton. Cotton is selling at less than nine cents and it is kept at that point only by the Government lending policy. This policy is not based upon control. It is based upon an independent act of Congress. Under crop control, without the lending policy, cotton would probably be selling at five cents or less, but the lending policy keeps it up. Why not vote for the lending policy instead of control?

What the farmers need is substantial benefits with a view to soil conservation which will reduce their cost of production and increase their output. They may need bounties. Many of them may need loans. If there must be a balanced agriculture, let plans be made for this balanced agriculture, for the planting of legumes and grains, and soil improving crops and rotation, and offer the farmers such cash benefits and other benefits as will justify them in falling in with such a program. This is the voluntary as opposed to the compulsory scheme of things.

3. Another matter. Under crop control, if you vote for it, you are voting to limit the production of poultry, hogs, livestock and dairy products in this state. You are tying the hands of the cotton farmers. They are not permitted to produce tobacco, and under the present law, they are not permitted to expand in the production of livestock, poultry and dairy products. The North Carolina cotton farmers must do something. They cannot live on the present basis.

What we need is a voluntary system of attractive benefits paid out on terms of a balanced production and all with a view to building up the family sized farm. The small farmer wants to grow. His family is growing. He must increase his production or see his children join the ranks of the unemployed and wind up on some sort of charity like the WPA.

This is as the undersigned sees it. It is not intended to persuade you. It is intended to cause you to think. You have the right to say on December 10th just what you want and the undersigned hopes you will think it all over and then exercise your own judgment in the light of the facts.

Yours very truly,

Wars Abroad Causes Manufacturers To Rely on U. S.

Raleigh, Dec. 8—As long as war-like conditions prevail abroad, the tendency will be for foreign manufacturers to depend more and more on the United States to supply their demands for flue-cured tobacco. W. P. Hedrick, tobacco marketing specialist of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, reports.

Expressing optimism for a further increase in flue-cured exports the tobacco authority said that continuation of the Sino-Japanese war would increase the demand for the 1939 crop.

"Latest federal estimates reveal that exports of flue-cured tobacco to all foreign countries have been boosted by 49,000,000 pounds this year compared with 1937," he said. "Approximately one billion more cigarettes were sold in the United States this year than during 1937."

Hedrick, who was a tobacco buyer and authority in China for eight years, explained that the large area in China once devoted to flue-cured tobacco "is now a war zone and British and American manufacturers who once secured a large portion of their tobacco from the Chinese will turn to the United States for their supply."

Normally, approximately 210,000,000 pounds of tobacco were produced in three flue-cured sections in China.

"Wall street authorities agree that cigarette consumption should increase next year with the return of better business conditions," he added. "However, the rate of increase during the next few years will probably be less than during the past."

DALE CARNEGIE IS HEARD HERE

ing interest in people.

Declaring that he urges people to be "intelligently selfish" because that really means thinking of the other person first, the speaker proceeded to give and illustrate a number of rules for making the other person feel kindly, rules which he had discussed at length in his best seller of the past two years.

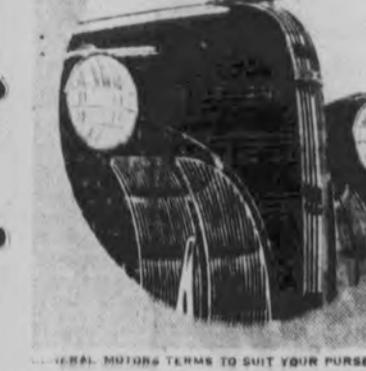

Mr. Carnegie urged the business men and students, teachers and housewives, and all others listening to him, to go out and begin at once to apply the principles if they wanted to get any value from his lecture.

Introduced by Mr. Haywood Dall, one of the men who helped turn the earth for the foundations of the first E.C.T.C. building, as like a race horse pawing the air to go, Mr. Carnegie launched into a biographical sketch in which he spoke of the great value of a teachers' college and gave a word of encouragement to the students working their way through school and afterwards took up his real topic.

Miss Lillian Parrish, Rocky Point, president of the Women's Student Government, presented Mr. Dall as the man who "turned the second spoonful of earth" for the first building program of the college. Mr. Dall declared that Governor Jarvis had "owned" the college and that he felt that he had inherited it at that leader's death, as Governor Jarvis had turned "the first spoonful" of soil and he, the second.

People had come from all the nearby towns for the program, one man and twenty-five of the employees in his concern even driving down from Raleigh to hear the man whose text they had been using in a sales course.

This closes the entertainment series for the fall term, but a number of interesting programs are already scheduled for the winter and spring.

Rebukes Jimmie R.

James Roosevelt came in for some criticism from Rev. Howard Stone Anderson, minister of the First Congregational church in Washington, who is now telling the un-American committee that the President's eldest son has not made church contributions. "In not a single year has he contributed to a church," cried the minister, who said he based his remarks on income tax reports.

in pre-school clinics and the nurses examine all school children times a year for certain contagious diseases.

The report also set forth: "The health officer examines all food-handlers, dairymen, and most market and slaughter house employees; he examines children for working permits, he examines children and mothers for mothers aid; he examines children for admission to correctional institutions; he examines clients of the state blind commission; he examines applicants for admission to the insane asylums, and he examines all the midwives of the county."

"In connection with malaria control much attention has been given to the various proposed drainage projects.

"In addition, since school opened this fall, the local health department has made malaria blood slides in all schools both with and without from the first through the sixth grade. The total number of slides made was 5,492. The blood examinations are now being made in the State Laboratory.

"In our tuberculosis control program we have been aided materially by the Burr cottages provided by our board; however, we feel that the County must eventually have a tuberculosis sanatorium since there is little prospect of the state being able to hospitalize all of the advanced cases.

"In conclusion we wish to make a few comments on the county home and the county jail.

"The county jail has materially improved in the matter of food and sanitation. It has also improved in the matter of facilities for the segregation of those with a contagious disease. The co-operation which the health department receives from those in charge of the jail is all that could be desired.

"All that has been said about the county jail is, in our opinion, true of the county home. Especially would we call attention to the improved diet available, notably garden and dairy products, types of food so essential to the health of the aged.

"We feel that the County commissioners, the Auditor, the Jail keeper and the Supt. of the county home deserve great credit for improving the health standard of both the county jail and the county home."

New York Cotton

New York, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened one to two lower under liquidation, hedge selling and owing to a slow demand. March by midday sold at 8.23 and the list was two to seven points net lower.

The government's estimate of 12,008,000 had little effect on the market.

March, which had sold up to 8.31 before the market adjourned to review the report, reopened at 8.29, with the list one to three points net higher.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Light selling switched to the stock market from the rising track today and leaders backed down fractions.

A few aircraft, rails and specialties managed to hold on to modest gains near the fourth hour. The fact that volume again dwindled appreciably on the appearance of declining tendencies seemed to impress board rooms favorably, the inference being that much of the year-end income tax adjustment had been completed.
