ROPER TO QUIT CABINET POST DURING MONTH

Roosevelt Accepts Resignation Effective Dec. 23

DESIRES RETURN TO PRIVATE LIFE

Chief Executive Talks at Ground-Breaking Exercises for Memorial to Jefferson

Washington, Dec. 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today accepted the resignation of Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper, effective December 23.

The President said in a letter, made public by the White House, that he knew the "impelling personal reasons" which prompted Roper to be asked to be released of his duties and "I accept your resignation with very sincere regret."

Roper's resignation was the second among cabinet members within recent weeks. Attorney General Cummings has resigned to resume law practice.

Rumors of other changes in the cabinet have circulated since the November 8 elections.

The White House announcement said Roper wanted to return to private life to return to personal affairs.

Meantime, President Roosevelt, speaking at ground-breaking exercises for a memorial to Thomas Jefferson, praised Jefferson for "establishing the ideal operation of the American government as a democracy and not an autocracy."

Standing on the south bank of the tidal basin, the site chosen for a $3,000,000 shrine to the third President, Mr. Roosevelt said that millions of Americans who visit the capital yearly will have in days to come a sense of gratitude that an adequate memorial to Jefferson has at last been erected.

"For more than 50 years," he said, "Thomas Jefferson, the first President of the United States, has been recognized by our country not only for the outstanding part which he took in the drafting of the Declaration of Independence itself, but also for his authorship of the Virginia statute for religious freedom, but also for the services he rendered in establishing the practical operation of the American government as a democracy and not an autocracy."

Secretary Ickes said he definitely would not be a candidate for mayor of Chicago next year on a liberal Democratic ticket.

His decision, he said, had been influenced by the White House.

Greenville Hailed As Gracious Host

That Greenville is recognized as a good convention city with the proper facilities was attested by a letter received today by W. D. Turner, manager of the Proctor Hotel, from Dr. Clarence Porter Jones, secretary-treasurer of the Seaboard Medical Association, which organization held its annual convention here last week.

A portion of the letter follows: "The 43rd annual meeting of the Seaboard Medical Association of Virginia and North Carolina, recently held in your city, was a signal success. The facilities for holding the convention were ample, including your splendid hotel. The members and visiting doctors were pleased and not one complained of anything. Especially was the food commended as being of good quality and well prepared."

"I am quite sure our association will be glad to again hold one of its annual meetings in your city."

Three Members Of Local Troops Reach Highest Rank

Three Boy Scouts reached Eagle Scout rank last night before a session of the Court of Honor held in connection with a dinner meeting of the Greenville District committee.

The regular meeting of the Greenville Kiwanis club will be held on Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock, and as this will be the last meeting before Christmas, a Christmas program will be held at this time.

Each Kiwanian is requested to bring a toy and place around the Christmas tree in the Club hall, and during the course of the meeting the toys will be turned over to a representative of the Kings Daughters, which organization will in turn see that these toys are distributed to underprivileged children in the city.

It was following the dinner that the Boy Scouts were brought in and the Court of Honor held. Several Second class and First class advancements were acknowledged and a large number of merit badges.

LIST OF OPPORTUNITIES

A number of Opportunities were added to the list today as local citizens began "taking" cases, and there still remained plenty from which to choose.

Since there is only a short time left to assign the cases, any individual group or organization desiring to help one of the Opportunities this Christmas should call the Thrift Shop or Mrs. Will Whedbee for the name and address of the number taken as soon as the decision is reached to bring happiness to some unfortunate family this holiday season.

The list of Opportunities, with those already taken so marked, follows:

No. 1—Family of five (white)—mother, father and three children, all boys, ages 15-13-7.

No. 2—Family of four (white)—mother, father and two children, one boy, age 13, one girl, age 12.

No. 3—Family of four (white)—mother and three children—one boy age 13, 2 girls ages 13 and 12.

Drives Accompanied By Heavy Artillery Bombardment

Hendaye, France, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Spanish insurgent forces launched simultaneous attacks today against Government lines in northern and western Spain, accompanied by heavy artillery bombardment.

Artillery batteries in the mountains near two places in western Catalonia began raining shells on Government fortifications in the Sea de Urgel sector.

The area is important as a source of hydro-electric power for Barcelona, chief city of Government Spain and center of its war industries.

At the same time insurgent infantry opened an offensive in the far western part of Spain near a point about 30 miles west of Pozoblanco.

Earlier reports that General Franco's offensive had been held up because insurgent officers had crossed to Government lines with complete plans of the drive caused great excitement in the border region.

Insurgent sources hotly denied the reports, declaring the drive would be launched "on schedule."

Officers in both the Chapter and the Commandery were installed by W. Hill Home, Past Grand Commander of North Carolina.

Plans were made for intensive and progressive work for 1939. The newly installed High Priest, W. J. Bundy recommended joint meetings of the Chapters in this district at stated intervals during the year for the purpose of conferring the degrees upon candidates, which recommendation was adopted by the Chapter, and efforts toward this end will begin immediately.

REAR DISCUSSES RURAL PHONES

Consider Possibility Of Survey To Determine Needs

Raleigh, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The State Rural Electrification Authority discussed today the possibility of a survey to determine whether there is a demand for a rural telephone promotion program in North Carolina similar to the electric power work already engaged in by the agency.

Dudley Bagley, authority chairman, said the 1939 General Assembly might be asked to provide an appropriation for an engineer to make a state-wide study. If a demand is found for a rural telephone program he said, the 1941 General Assembly might be asked to make an appropriation for it.

The authority approved a charter for the Halifax Electric Membership Corporation, which said it wanted to put up about 225 miles of lines in Halifax and Martin counties at a cost of $225,000.

Bagley said the Halifax corporation charter was approved on condition it furnish proper maps and data.

Greatest Arms Budget Since World War Before Parliament

CALLS FOR FUNDS OF $820,000,000

Portion Budget Earmarked for War Machine Tagged With Flat 'Do Not Touch'

Paris, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Premier Daladier's National Defense cabinet, warning Italy and Germany that France would fight to protect her empire, presented to Parliament today the greatest arms budget since the World war.

The debate on the budget, scheduled to begin immediately, was expected to provide Daladier's opposition with a new opportunity to attack his policies and to open the way for a new test of his strength in Parliament.

The portion of the budget's earmarked for arms, munitions and men for the French war machine was tagged with a flat "do not touch" sign.

A total of nearly 40,000,000,000 francs (about $820,000,000) for the nation's armed forces was distributed at various parts of the ordinary and extraordinary budgets.

Finance Minister Paul Reynaud said this sum represented 65 per cent of the estimated income for 1939.

York Rite Masons Prepare For 1939

York Rite Masons in Greenville have made preparations for a big year in 1939 by electing and installing officers of the local chapter, No. 56, Royal Arch Masons, and Bethlehem Commandery No. 29 Knights Templar.

The officers were elected and installed at a meeting held Monday night of this week and which was preceded by a sumptuous barbecue supper.

W. J. Bundy was elected High Priest to head the work of the Chapter for next year, the other chief officers elected being Nash R. Joyner, King; J. Vance Perkins, Schib; and T. L. Moore, Secretary.

In the Commandery, A. W. Harris was elected Eminent Grand Master; N. C. Brooks, Generalissimo; Nash R. Joyner, Captain General; and T. L. Moore, Recorder.

Officers in both the Chapter and the Commandery were installed by W. Hill Home, Past Grand Commander of North Carolina.

Plans were made for intensive and progressive work for 1939. The newly installed High Priest, W. J. Bundy recommended joint meetings of the Chapters in this district at stated intervals during the year for the purpose of conferring the degrees upon candidates, which recommendation was adopted by the Chapter, and efforts toward this end will begin immediately.

The same plan of joint meeting for the degree is proposed to be carried out for the work in the Commandery.

Sea Scout Ship Put Into Operation With Ceremonies

Amidst streaming pennants and the blaring of band music the Sea Scout Ship William Pitt was commissioned yesterday afternoon at the boat landing on Tar River.

He gave an outline of the history of scouting from its inception in South Africa following the Boer War down to Mr. Boyce's introduction of it to America and its spread and popularity in the United States. In conclusion he admonished the leaders of the Sea Scouts to be careful at all times and to avoid all possible accidents.

At the conclusion of his speech Dr. Henderson presented the commission of Sea Scout Ship No. 2 the William Pitt to Acting-in-Command First Mate Charles Whedbee.

Thirty Foreigners are Taken to Shanghai By Jap Transport

Shanghai, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Thirty-five foreigners, including 16 Americans, arrived at Shanghai today on a Japanese transport after months of isolation at the former health resort of Kuling in Central China.

The foreigners, some of whom had been stranded at Kuling for more than a year, had boarded the transport at Kuling, Yangtze river port below Hanhow, after special arrangements had been made for their trip through the hilly no-man's land to the river.

One hundred and sixty-five foreigners remained at Kuling.

Those arriving here said the voyage down the Yangtze was just like peace-time, with good food and comfortable cabins.

They reported that those still at Kuling had plenty of supplies for the winter.

Chinese guerrillas were said still to be moving freely about the Lichan mountains, but not bothering the refugees.

Included among those arriving here was Laura Clark of Scotland Neck, N. C.

U. S. PROPOSES PACT OF UNITY

Project Laid Before Delegates to Pan-American Parley

Lima, Peru, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The United States laid before the Pan-American conference today a project for unifying all existing Pan-American peace, conciliation and arbitration agreements into one fundamental construction of peace for the Western hemisphere.

The proposal formed a 12-page document containing 23 exhaustive articles.

It does not carry existing agreements any further and makes no fundamental changes except in regard to arbitration.

This followed disclosure by Argentine delegation leaders that Argentina had taken a dominant position in negotiations over a plan for continental solidarity and that the United States had abandoned all hopes for a pact against outside aggression in favor of a mere declaration of policy.

From the beginning of discussions before the conference of 21 nations which opened December 9, Argentina has opposed a definite non-aggression pact, while the United States, although willing to compromise on the matter, hoped for something more precise than only a statement of policy.

Talks on the continental defense issue among delegates have shown that Brazil and Argentina were in opposite camps, with Brazil generally supporting the United States.

Nearly A Million Autos Cross State Each Year

Reflector Bureau

Raleigh, Dec. 15.—During the fiscal year ended June 30, 955,205 out-of-state passenger cars, carrying 3,164,416 persons, crossed North Carolina for 154,238,780 car-miles with a cash expenditure of $9,961,248 in transit, according to the summary of a factual survey of the state's cross-state traffic made by James S. Burch and B. B. Petroff, of the Division of Statistics and Planning, North Carolina State Highway and Public Works Commission.

Also during the year 142,715 out-of-state trucks crossed the state for 23,329,340 truck-miles, with a probable cash expenditure of $696,960.

The probable total expenditure in North Carolina by out-of-state vehicles moving through the state is $10,658,208, and these vehicles contribute $704,410 in gasoline taxes to the highway fund, the survey reports.

It should be pointed out that these figures and totals represent only the trans-state or interstate movement of out-of-state vehicles, and do not include expenditures made by out-of-state visitors remaining in the state for an appreciable length of time, such as for visits or business trips. These data are not yet available; the survey said.

The Burch-Petroff survey is the first of its kind in North Carolina and gives the first completely factual estimate of tourist traffic, based on absolutely accurate figures as a basis.

Going one step further than the survey and estimating that each visitor remains in the state about six days, the survey confirms previous estimates that the tourist traffic was worth $60,000,000 to North Carolina last year.

The basis of the survey was selection of some sixteen trans-state highways and from various traffic count key stations on these routes, to determine the average daily in-

SAYS GERMANY FEARS BRITAIN

Chamberlain, Speaking to Luncheon Audience, Says Great Britain's Financial Power Serves As Curb on Nazi Statesmen

London, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain, in a new, outspoken reference to Germany, told a luncheon audience today that Britain's financial power was a curb on Nazi statesmen when they thought of war.

The Prime Minister said: "We may take it that when German statesmen—I will not say the German people—reflect on the possible consequences of a conflict, if ever a conflict should arise between our two countries, they think not only of our armaments, but our great financial resources, which in a war of long duration might well prove to be a deciding factor."

"It is this sense which is always with us and which I am sure is itself a very great influence in preserving the peace of the world."

Chamberlain's brief reference to Germany seemed to indicate a somewhat stronger line toward the Nazi leadership since the German Ambassador and other Nazi representatives boycotted his Tuesday night speech in which he rebuked the German press for its attack on Earl Baldwin, former Prime Minister.

Observers were quick to notice today that Chamberlain differentiated between German statesmen and people. In his Tuesday's speech he reiterated his belief that the German and British people never wish to go to war again.

Annual Banquet.
The End of the Century Club and their husbands were entertained at the Parish House at a banquet on Tuesday evening. Hostesses for the occasion were Mesdames L. C. Arthur, Ficklen Arthur, James S. Ficklen, Hortense Moyer and Myra Ficklen. It was a festive occasion and all did their part to make it a happy one. They gathered around the Yule-log in the reception room to greet each other and to find their partners for the evening. This was done by drawing. The gentlemen drew one part of the quotation and the lady the other part. Seated around the banquet table, covered with a white damask cloth, the centerpiece of white candles, silver bells, holly and mistletoe. At each end of the table lakes surrounded by willows, covered with new fallen snow, gave one a feeling of the nearness of Christmas with an appreciation of our many blessings and a sense of responsibility for those less fortunate. Mrs. J. H. Rose, in her most charming manner, thrilled all with a reading, "Dust of the Road." Throughout the evening music was enjoyed. Those who gave graciously of their lovely voices were Misses Bessie Brown, Helen Sawyer, Messrs. Ed Parkinson and Aubrey Tilley, accompanied at the piano by Mesdames Charles White and J. L. Fleming. Greenville 'On Tar River'
Greenville is a historic town. George Washington spent a night there in the long ago while en route to Charleston, S. C. In his diary the venerable Father wrote: "Tonight I stop in a dirty little town on the Tar River."
Whatever Greenville may have been in other days, it is certainly a busy, thriving, progressive town now. Greenville has developed into one of the best tobacco markets in this state, as Pitt county and surrounding counties are producing the finest quality of the leaf in large and growing quantities. A little steamer makes every-other-day trips to Washington.

Rev. Mr. Huffman expressed the general idea and enjoyment of all when he said he wished Greenville would extend an invitation to the convention to make that town the permanent meeting place every year. It is a good town full of old-fashioned unselfish North Carolina hospitality. May its growth be equal to its merits.—Raleigh Post.

SHORT SHOTS By HENRY AVERILL

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Dec. 15.—Whether by accident or design, seating arrangements for the 1939 House are such as to put six of the seven Republican members back on the last row, but with no more than two of them sitting together.

On the right of the aisle as you enter the hall James B. Barefoot of Sampson and W. C. Pittman of Avery will sit side by side in seats 30 and 100. Then will come a Democrat, A. Lee Penland of Clay in 101, and on his other side Republicans Clyde H. Jarrett of Cherokee and J. M. Bailey, Jr. of Madison.

On the other side of the aisle, O. P. Representatives David C. Sebastian of Wilkes and J. B. Grant of Davie will sit together.

Down about the middle of the hall, with a very desirable seat on the aisle will be Mitchell's Republican repeater Jeter C. Bursleson in seat 48.

On the Senate side the two Republicans will also be way back in the rear, in the same two chairs occupied by their fellow partymen in 1937. C. H. Cowles of the 24th will get seat 48, and J. V. Bowers of the 30th, seat 49.

It is observable that Senator J. H. Spark, who stirred a gentle disturbance in the extra session by a motion to assign seats according to seniority, gets the same 23 he occupied in 1937—which is exactly what he wanted when he made his motion.

The two 13's will have the same occupants as in 1937—Walter "Pete" Murphy in the House and Dr. T. W. M. Long in the Senate.

In all discussions of the House Speakership race, vote of the Representatives from counties of the 11th Congressional district is being given serious consideration.

Word brought to Raleigh by a keen and competent observer (many times a member of the State Senate as well as holder of other important posts) is that Victor Bryant of Durham is favored by a big majority.

The observer added, however, that his tale is based entirely on unofficial and casual reports and not on any personal canvass of the members.

Moving into the new State Office building, Lloyd Griffin, head of the School Commission, and Clyde A. Erwin, Superintendent of Public Instruction, drew offices on opposite sides of a large assembly room for the commission which will also serve as the library of the Department of Public Instruction.

"Now they can't say the school system is suffering from 'scattered administration,' can they?" cracked a reporter on being shown the new arrangement.

The recent educational commission report asked an immediate remedy for "scattered administration."

Tobacco Outlook For '39 Is Considered Favorable

A recent release by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Agricultural Economics declares the outlook for United States tobacco as a whole in 1939 is rather favorable. A summary of the statement follows, in part: "Production in 1938 and prospective stocks in 1939 for most types are fairly well in line with anticipated disappearance. Burley production in the past two years however, has been materially above disappearance, and stocks on October 1, 1938, are expected to be large. Total domestic utilization of tobacco during the next year or more is expected to expand moderately.

'BIG BILL' SEEKS COME-BACK!

Congratulatory handshakes were offered from all sides as William Hale (Big Bill) Thompson, Chica go's former stormy mayor, announced he is a candidate for the office again. A Republican, he is the first to announce officially for the race. There's been some talk that Secretary of the Interior Ickes might be a candidate also.

BLONDIE

When using apples in salads, leave the skin on to add a touch of color. Thirteen per cent of Iceland's area is covered by snowfields and glaciers.

son is due to declines in flue-cured, fire-cured and dark air-cured types of 5, 18 and 25 per cent, respectively. Material increases in production are indicated for Maryland and for some cigar types while burley production in 1938, however, is expected to be only slightly below the very large crop of 1937.

"Business activity has shown some improvement in recent months, and this improvement, accompanied by increased consumer buying power is expected to continue during the next year or more. This should result in a larger consumption of tobacco products, particularly cigarettes.

"Exports of flue-cured, which accounts for about 75 per cent of total exports of all tobaccos, in the 12 months July 1, 1937 to June 30, 1938, totaled about 362,000,000 pounds export weight or 19 per cent more than in the preceding year. Exports to the United Kingdom, the principal market, were nearly 40 per cent larger than in 1936-37. British consumption of cigarettes made from flue-cured tobacco has increased during the past few years, but the upward trend apparently has been halted, at least temporarily, by the decline in general business activity in Britain.

"Production of flue-cured tobacco in principal reporting foreign countries in 1937-38 was larger than in the preceding season and about three times as great as in 1930-31. This upward trend probably will continue in most countries. Total foreign production in 1938, however, is expected to be materially below 1937, due to the sharp decrease in the 1938 crop in China, by far the most important foreign producing country.

"The outlook for exports of dark types of tobacco continues to be favorable due to a decrease in total consumption of these types and the operation of trade barriers. There is no immediate prospect of increased exports of burley and Maryland tobaccos.

December 2 was the 115th anniversary of the proclamation of the Monroe Doctrine. A policeman is on guard at the German embassy at all hours just in case a crank might want to start something that would start an international incident. Usually also there is a cop in the vicinity of the British embassy but for more or less historic reasons, Beck in the twirling twenties trate Irishmen were forever wanting to throw bricks thru the British embassy windows. There isn't much trouble from that source anymore. You can't find the Russian embassy listed in the telephone books under the "R" division. It comes after the Smiths with a name as "Soviet" embassy. A Washington hostess has emboldened on her cocktail napkins: "You Can't Take It With You."

NEW YEAR'S LOVE

by Angela Lorden

Noel's thoughts flashed back to another Christmas, to a shabby little girl buying her mother a ten cent present.

Chapter One
No Christmas Joy

JOYOUS Noel! The silver-laden words glittered through a plate glass pane, casting their brilliant gleam on the artfully fashioned floor beneath them. Like the shadow over pristine snow in some northland with cold winter moonlight upon it.

"Very, very joyous, Noel!" a slender tall girl enveloped in dark, downy mink whispered to herself.

There was nothing of the prevalent, pre-Christmas joy in her softly spoken comment. She was standing there, wide eyes of the color of forget-me-nots fastened on the picture contriving of some master window decorator. From behind tall shining pilasters that suggested the warmth of old alabaster, an invisible fan played deftly with the ice-blue satin nightgown draped lightly on the dummy of a lovely blonde lady.

Noel Marchand's eyes were fixed on the brilliant splendor of the expensive display. But her thoughts were far back, to a shoddy five-and-ten window in a small mining town—to a shabby little girl clutching her ten-cent piece and gazing raptly at the ornate dime collar she was buying for her mother's Christmas. Some of the bitter-sweet ecstasies came back now, like a ghost playing with old toys.

Noel pulled the expensive coat more lightly about her in a shivering gesture. All Fifth Avenue with a thousand displays stretched before her. In her French bag reposed a roll of bills, but there was no one now to bring that anticipatory thrill in Christmas shopping. No one who mattered very much.

Glancing again at the exotic garment, Noel thought:

"I'll get it for Anita; it's perfect for her."

Not that Anita mattered so much either, but she was Douglas Swanson's wife and Douglas was the producer who had put the name of Noel Marchand in Broadway electric lights. Would do it again she hoped.

Shopping throngs brushed by Noel. Some stopped to glance at the window which held her attention. More than one person turned back for a second glance at the extensively dressed girl who stood there, careless of the slushy discolored snow slopping around her rimmed encaes shoes.

No one, certainly, could have guessed at the heavy dread in Noel's heart at the thought of Christmas only a few days away. Nor the painful memories of other lonely Christmases. This year there was not even work to keep her occupied. And when would the next "big part come"? Three flops in a row, with only the mink coat and a dwindling savings account to show for the two successful seasons which had preceded them.

Through the crowded shop, Noel went leisurely to the French lingerie room on an upper floor. And heard with dismay that the gown in the window cost ninety-five dollars.

"That's much more than I wanted to pay," she explained to the attentive saleswoman, who suggested instead a domestic copy of the garment in silvery gray crepe. Even the thirty-five dollars was more than she should spend. It would cover a week's rent at the smart hotel where she occupied one of the smallest single rooms.

But Anita influenced her husband's casting. Noel knew only too well, and this would be a diplomatic investment.

A Lovely Name

"I'll take it," she decided suddenly and as she gave her name and address to the sales-want when they're older." He probably has everything, Noel thought. His mother looked as though she would give him the world for his play-toy.

"I haven't any family at all to make it a real Christmas." Even as she said it Noel wondered why she should talk so to a stranger.

"Well, there's only Allan and I, now," Mrs. Marchand smiled apologetically.

When they alighted from the elevator Noel thought the encounter had ended but Mrs. Marchand put her hand lightly on the younger arm and asked impulsively:

"You wouldn't have time, I suppose, to call on a lonely old lady?"

"He Doesn't Remember"

SHE noted the surprise in Noel's eyes. "My son and I are down here for a few days of shopping and you've brightened this day so for me. I wouldn't like to feel I'd not see you again."

The tears were dangerously close to Noel's lids. Not have much time? If only she didn't. Five weeks of waiting for some producer to call her had been so long to live through. She gazed at the woman before her, whose attire whispered discreetly of conservative luxury. Wondering if it were merely conventional politeness that had evoked the invitation.

All the things she'd wanted for her own hard-worked mother, this woman probably had. Only her poor darling mother had been too tired and sick to wait for the first comforts Noel could earn. She wished that just once her mother could have had such a broadtail coat as Mrs. Marchand wore so carelessly.

"I'm at the Lancaster and perhaps you could have tea with me tomorrow," Mrs. Marchand was urging. "That's if you're not too busy then."

"May I telephone you in the morning?" Noel asked. "I may have to see my agent in the afternoon, but I'll try to arrange it."

"I do hope you can," the older woman's voice was hopefully insistent. "I'll look forward to it very much."

They had reached the front entrance and Mrs. Marchand offered her hand in a friendly goodbye. Noel smiled as she felt her own young hand taken in a firm grasp. Just then a masculine voice said with affectionate impatience:

"I thought you'd never come, Mother. Did you buy out the store?"

Noel saw Mrs. Marchand turn to a tall, red-headed man who towered above her.

"Darling, I'm sorry if I kept you waiting too long," Noel started away, but the older woman stayed her. "This is my son, Allan Collings," she said proudly to Noel, and then to the good-looking man:

"This is Noel Marchand, Allan. Isn't it nice that she has my name? And she's coming to see me."

Noel looked into laughing green eyes and her cheeks went white.

"How do you do?" she said coolly and realized as she accepted the introduction eagerly—he doesn't remember. To Mrs. Marchand she remarked with a quaver in her voice:

"Mr. Collings and I have met before, but I think he's forgotten." Her eyes turned to Allan as though seeking his face for some sign of remembrance. His frown told of effort to recall. Wide full lips parted from across strong white teeth. He broke into an embarrassed grin and said penitently:

"I'm a dud at names— But Noel interrupted his apologies. "I was Noel Martin then," she told him, "and it's a long time ago." (Copyright, 1938, Angela Lorden)

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

New York—What appears to be the most acceptable gag of the week comes from Chicago by way of curatorial radio expert, Mr. Charles Butterfield, who tarried at our desk this morning just long enough to tell all about Mr. Olan Soule, tsar of "Bachelor Childrea."

Using the European pronunciation "shee," Mr. Soule ducked into a department store and inquired: "Where can I get a pair of ski pants?"

"Lingerie, third floor," was the information girl's reply.

My favorite cab driver is one Will O'Geer. He admits that his restless nature led him to New York.

"I was with my aunt in California working on a fruit ranch, but I was so nervous that one day my aunt said:

"Will, you seem sad. You haven't been happy since we left Dublin, four years ago. Why don't you go to New York and look for a job. There's lots of places in the big city."

"So, by golly, I came to New York, because she was right. I'm the restless type. I never could be satisfied in one place. Ma, I ain't got patience."

"How long you been driving this hack, Will?"

Without cracking a smile he looked me in the eye and said, "Thirty-five years."

Later it occurred to me that I was very lucky to meet Will, because a guy as restless and impatient as he is likely to blow without a moment's notice.

Young Douglas Leigh, the sign king, has increased the cast of his Broadway show by 1,000 bulbs. The "show," which plays to an estimated audience of 1,000,000 people every night, is the electric sign near Times Square which gives continuous performances, each of which lasts five minutes.

The show virtually halts Broadway traffic, and its success has led Leigh to increase its size by adding to the number of bulbs which flashing on and off, shape themselves into the action he desires.

Leigh suggests that his shows are far easier to direct than those containing flesh and blood actors. A photo-electric cell, he points out, doesn't get temperamental like a human being.

Which leaves just time enough to relay the story that makes Lucille Manners laugh more than any other. It's about the intellectual shortcomings of the dowager who cried to her guests one night: "I just love English literature. And my favorite poets are Shakespeare and The Bard."

"Darling," said her husband gently, biting his lip, "the two are synonymous."

"Yes, I know," she prattled on, "but don't you think Shakespeare is by far the more synonymous of the two?"

Al Wax, the producer, has miniature sets of all the hit plays he has produced. The most startling of the group is that one which features a gallows.

Fredric March and his wife are now New York citizens. They have taken an apartment on East End avenue. March thinks Tabiti is the most overrated place on earth. He likes Bermuda.

THE KEY TO LOW-COST COTTON

"Yields of cotton on many soils in the southeastern Cotton Belt are determined more by the available nitrogen supply than by any other controllable soil-fertility factor. In this region, the yield of cotton may be at least doubled and sometimes tripled through the application of large quantities of commercial nitrogen with mineral fertilizers."

LESS LAND PER BALE—this is real economy in cotton production. Sufficient nitrogen, well balanced with phosphoric acid and potash, produces your yield of cotton on fewer acres at lower cost per pound. This means more land for soil-conserving crops, more chance for the soil to grow its own organic matter, less loss from erosion and more actual farm income.

The following table will help you to work out a balanced fertilizer program for your cotton:

Chapter 36 Balloon Dance

"Why did he throw in the key to Katherine?" Lou Orpington asked humbly.

"So that someone would argue as you did—that she had no alibi. He knew his trusting would not hold her indefinitely; if she should get free so much the better. Suspicion directed toward others was directed away from him."

"But how did he get away?" demanded Mrs. Flower.

"Over the railing—he was an athlete. He probably slid down a pillar to avoid the sound of a drop. It was quicker than either stairway—he would land in front of the stage; and before even Shaw could reach the library Barney was backstage calling to Elizabeth and swearing at the fuse box."

"And the girl he killed—who was she?" Mary Shaw looked as if she had been seeing ghosts. She was sitting very close to her husband on the sofa. "And why did she pick this particular time to come here?"

"She was Barney's sister. I can't prove it now, but I'll be able to. They're side by side, now—and the resemblance is clear. She came here, now of all times, because Barney had written that he was going to be married and that she must not write to him or see him any more. That is fact. They found another typewritten letter at the sanitarium and called me back this morning."

"I think she was very humble about her infirmity, and willing at all costs to shield him from the stigma. But he was her brother—and she wanted to see him once more."

"You think he meant to kill her when he told her she could come?" asked Captain Flower softly.

"I don't know, but I'm afraid he did. Writing his letters to her on a borrowed typewriter, with Anne the only one who could see he wrote them—it looks as if he'd made his plans. She was a burden to him in many ways. And there was always the chance of discovery. He was not sane on that subject—though in every other way he was as sane as you or I—sane enough, in fact, to plot an almost perfect crime."

"So that was why Anne had to die—because she knew about the typewriter?"

"I glanced quickly, suspiciously at Mrs. Flower, but she seemed very serious, very innocent. Adam, too, was looking at her, the faintest gleam of admiration in his eyes. After a moment he inclined his head slightly. It might have been taken for affirmation, and it seemed to be so accepted."

"I first began to suspect him," Adam went on smoothly, "when he passed out in his rooms. That attack on the sentry was a man's crime. Barney was a star pitcher at the Point. It was done on the spur of the moment—he had no chance to take an alibi. He happened to be there with the stones in his hand—I'll explain that later. And he overheard the sentry telling something that must not be told. I ran out almost at once, but there was no one in sight, and a near-by sentry had seen no one leave. Later, when I saw Barney under that open window, I realized that he could have put himself up onto the porch roof and been inside his rooms before I was off the porch. He had on a dark bathrobe—and the faint looked like a sham."

Not A Sham

"BUT it was not a sham, as Doc Moore demonstrated. And Barney did not seize on the alibi of the other stone, which convinced me against my will that he was innocent."

"Why didn't he?" I asked.

"One of a number of reasons. First, he may not have realized at once that he had fallen on the stone and bruised his head. Second, he knew that such a throw would have been practically impossible to execute, even for a skilled pitcher. Third, he was in the dark when Charlie found him—and sooner or later that fact would be remembered—was remembered."

"I knew that, too!" I cried. "I heard the light switch click when he went into the room."

"But if the faint wasn't a sham, what was it?" Charlie demanded.

"Incipient epilepsy, I'm afraid. Doc says it's possible. It had happened before—"

"Say, I ought to know that!" exclaimed Shaw with bulging eyes. "He had a rep at West Point for falling out of more P-rades than the rest of the corps put together. We used to ride him about it and ask for his formula."

"That faint, and the bruise on his head from the stone, were pure luck, from his viewpoint. And he must have felt that fate was helping him. Otherwise he'd never have made such a desperate, foolhardy move as the second attack on Anne."

"Attack on Anne?" I said in incredulously. "Why, I was between him and the bed the whole time."

"And lucky to be here to tell it," Adam said grimly. His eyes rested on mine, he spoke gently. "The match, child, the match. He kicked that lampplug out on purpose. I think he was going to throw the lighted match—he was in the safe spot, on the floor near the door. I stepped on his hand, match and all. I think at first he believed it was an accident."

"He looked around at our puzzled faces."

"You all know, but you've forgotten, that normally inert substances burn violently in oxygen. She was in an oxygen tent—a tent made of oiled silk, with windows that are not glass but a cellulose composition—a tent that enclosed pure oxygen."

"The faces around me reflected my horror. But Shaw, who had not been there, had not seen that small helpless figure, brought us back to the heart of the puzzle."

"But you haven't told us how he shot her," he reminded Adam stubbornly. "Maybe you know what you're talking about—maybe you've learned something you didn't tell the rest of us. If not, I say it can't be done."

"You all had the same chance I did," Adam observed amiably. "I don't claim to be very bright; I missed a lot. He was not as well covered as he thought he was."

"You saw him, Shaw, in the afternoon when he fired Elizabeth's thirty-two in the Service Club. He had taken it from her car a few minutes before during the confusion at the polo field when I suffered my ignominious mishap."

Barney's Ideas

"BARNEY fired it? But I didn't see any gun—"

"He had just time to hide it before you appeared. And he had dropped a light bulb as he fired, because he knew his sister was somewhere upstairs, and he couldn't take a chance of being caught in the act. Why he fired if you'll see later."

"That second bullet was one clue. The party itself was another. Who decided to have it at the Service Club? The committee. Who thought of a balloon dance? The committee. Who decided it should be a costume affair? The committee. You, Shaw, and Barney were the committee."

"He paused interrogatively. "They were all Barney's ideas," Shaw admitted. "But I still can't see—"

"It was on Barney's instructions, wasn't it, that you called the balloon dance at eleven o'clock, that you insisted everyone should join in, that you announced a prize as special inducement?"

"Shaw nodded, evidently at a loss."

"The refreshments were your responsibility, the balloon dance Barney's. The refreshments arrived, the balloons were provided. But the prize—where is the prize? There was no prize. Why? Because Barney slipped. He knew so well what was going to happen, knew that the balloon dance was not going to end, that no prize would be needed; knew that it was going to break up in confusion."

"Mrs. Flower's head was nodding energetically."

"Now you begin to see the framework. Eleven o'clock. Everyone inside the ballroom. Lights low, with that blinding colored wheel confusing everyone. Balloons popping."

"And Elizabeth supposed to be safely out of it, at home with Annie. I thought parenthetically."

"Did anyone notice Barney and Anne come in? They were not on the floor when the dance started."

"No one spoke."

"Did anyone see her or speak to her while they were dancing?" Several people spoke at once.

"She was dead drunk—"

"He was half carrying her—"

"She was singing that 'Tweet-tweet' thing—couldn't miss it, she has no ear."

"Adam looked at me. "Did you see a scrap of leaf mold on the sole of her shoe?"

"I nodded."

"Did you hear them singing together on the porch?"

"I nodded again, and the flesh on the back of my neck began to crawl."

NCS PLANS FOR ANNUAL EVENT

Program Engineers' Week, Jan. 25-Feb. 1, Announced

Raleigh, Dec. 15.—An elaborate program for Engineers' Week, Jan. 25 to Feb. 1, is being developed at State College through cooperation of the School of Engineering and the College Extension Service.

Engineers throughout the State are invited to participate in the activities, which will include a one-day institute emphasizing the subject of soils, the two-day annual meeting of the North Carolina Society of Engineers and a three-day institute for surveyors. Forty surveyors attended the institute last year, and twice that many are expected next month by Director Edward W. Ruzgals of the Extension Service.

Dean Blake R. Van Leer of the School of Engineering has appointed the following faculty members to the committee for Engineers' Week and the Engineers' Institute, which will be held Tuesday, January 26: Dr. A. F. Greaves-Walker, chairman; Prof. William Hand Browne, Prof. C. M. Heck, Prof. R. S. Foubaker and Prof. H. E. Satterfield. Dean Van Leer will be an ex officio member.

Registration for the institute will begin at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, Jan. 26, and Col. J. W. Harrelson, dean of administration, will welcome the engineers at 9:30. Registrants are expected to participate in classroom lectures as students. Experts will lecture and give demonstrations on latest developments in soil mechanics and stabilization. The State College engineering faculty will be assisted by A. R. Brickler of Atlanta, cement soils engineer; T. V. Fahnestock, bituminous engineer of Raleigh; and L. D. Hicks, director of the soils testing laboratory of the State Highway and Public Works Commission.

to the window behind him and fairies fluttered over his head, all of them laughing. Outside the window, from a snow drift, waved the Queen's legs in red stockings and black riding boots. All the rest of her was in the snow. But Santa is a kind man, so he rushed out and between him and Mrs. Santa they pulled the Queen out.

Below The Ground
All this while down in the big living room where the ermine lived the Papa ermine was feeling very nervous and worried. Mrs. Ermine tried to give him some nice hot acorn juice but he said his stomach was upset. He finally went up to the ground and got there just in time to see Santa pull the mean Queen from the snow.

"Good gracious," said the ermine, "that's the very Queen I've been worrying about. I remember telling you that there was such a person who wished her harm. Whatever shall I do?" He scratched his head and pulled his white whiskers and then he whisked around to the back door of the Toyshop and scratched. Hulda that there was such a person, raisin cookie so she heard him and opened the door. He knew he didn't have time to tell her the whole story so he told her a little fib. He looked so worried that he sounded very convincing when he said, "Oh, dear! My wife is sick and we need your help. Can you come along right away?"

"Why, certainly," said Hulda. She hurried into her white fur coat and cap, and rushed out after the ermine. But when they got to the door of the ermine house they both stopped short. You see, Hulda was much too big to enter. Only a little girl the size of a small doll could have entered there. But a wonderful thing happened. The Fairy Queen flew down between them and landed Hulda a tiny cookie.

"Eat this," she said. So Hulda ate and suddenly she was no bigger than the ermine. The cookie was a magic one and had made her smaller. She thanked the Fairy Queen and hopped right down into the ermine kingdom below the ground.

Tomorrow: In the ermine kingdom.

SANTA AND THE LOST PRINCESS

THE STORY SO FAR: The mean Queen and her army are marching toward Toyland. The Queen of the Fairies is going to try and stop them with pieces of all things!

EATING THE PIES

Now we'll catch up with the Fairy Queen and see what she did with all those wonderful pies, some of them that Mrs. Santa baked. She called her fairies about her, one for each of the pies, and told them to follow her. They flew into the air, each balancing one of those huge pies on the tip of her tiny fingers. You and I couldn't have done that, but then you know fairies are magic people.

They flew over snowy fields and over a forest and over a big, frozen lake and then suddenly they saw the Queen and her company of soldiers marching single file across the hills. The fairies flew up in the air so the Queen wouldn't see them, and they came down in back of the incredible men.

one of you with a blueberry pie flew up to the last man and put the pie down in front of him." So one of the fairies did just that. And what happened? Why the soldiers' eyes practically popped out of their heads. He reined in his horse. He was so hungry he was afraid the other soldiers would see the pie. So he kept very quiet and dismounted and crept up to the pie and went off behind a big oak tree to eat it.

One By One

You can see what happened, can't you? One by one the fairies chased all of the men to leave the line of march. All the soldiers felt so good about eating their big pie that they just pulled their saddle blankets down, strapped up in them and lay down for a nap in the woods. There wasn't a single soldier that followed the mean Queen. And she didn't know what was happening because she rode ahead looking so important that the never looked back. She was alone except for her little witch that rode along on top of her fur cap.

COLD STORAGE LOCKERS USED

Infant Industry Showing Growth by Leaps and Bounds

Commercial cold storage lockers are an infant industry, but the infant is no longer small. It has grown strongly and lustily. Government statistics show that in the span of a very few years the number of locker plants has increased from a few hundred to nearly 10,000 throughout the country. The South has lagged behind in the erection and use of locker plants, but the Middle West has known for quite a while their value. There they have flourished. However, the idea is gradually taking hold in the South, and we find a plant here and there. There are three in North Carolina; two in operation and one in the process of erection. Greenville has one; Goldsboro has one; and one is going up in Lenoir.

People of this section particularly need locker plants. The traditional slowness of South-erners to accept something new has militated against their rapid growth. An educational program, explaining fully the advantages of freezer lockers, is badly needed both for the sake of locker plant owners and potential users.

The idea of cold storage lockers grew from the desire to save out of an abundance without the drudgery of curing, canning or preserving. It has, of course, been known for a long time that food products can be preserved by cold, and the colder the temperature, the longer the period of preservation. However, the mere keeping of a product cold or the freezing of it was not sufficient. It is well-known that a lot of things that have simply been frozen at 32 degrees F. change taste and color on thawing out. There was discovered, however, that there is a big difference in the quality of a product when it is frozen at a low enough temperature to insure quick freezing. This quick-freezing became the backbone of the cold storage locker business. At slow-freezing temperatures, 32 degrees F. or slightly lower, large ice crystals form in the tissues of the product, being frozen which break down cell walls. This causes taste and flavor to leach out on thawing. But if the same product be frozen at a very low temperature, 10 degrees below zero, the ice crystals form rapidly, are close-packed and do not pierce the cell walls. Consequently, on thawing there is no loss of taste or flavor because the tissues have not been destroyed.

Cold storage lockers offer possibilities for enormous savings on the part of users by their being able to buy cheaply in quantity and store indefinitely. Aside from this they make it possible to enjoy delicacies long out of season, such as fresh strawberries at Christmas time. Thus, their appeal to the thrifty householder and the epicure is equally strong.

SNYDER, ON TRIAL, EYES DAUGHTER

Martin Snyder (background), former husband of singer Ruth Etting, looked at his daughter, Edith, out of the corner of his eyes as she walked away from the witness stand in court at Los Angeles after testifying against him at his trial for shooting Myrl Alderman. Edith looked straight ahead and paid no heed to her father. Shortly after she testified, Miss Etting and Alderman eloped to Las Vegas, Nev., and were married.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—The stars can move over a little this week and make room for another.

Her name is Paulette Goddard, and she's been a long time getting there—but there she is. Or should be after she has a couple more picture like "Dramatic School."

Paulette's film experience before this included a term as a Goldwyn Girl, the lead opposite Chaplin in "Modern Times," and a supporting role in "The Young in Heart," her first talkie. I thought she was pretty, but otherwise only fair. In "Dramatic School," I think she takes the cake—and practically out of academy award-winning Louise Rainer's mouth.

Co-star Rainer, as the little stage worshipping girl who works in a factory by night and attends dramatic classes by day, is mostly excellent. The tremolo note that has marred some of her recent work is restrained, and she is even gay at times, which is becoming. But Paulette (partly, in fairness, because she is newer) makes a decided hit.

The film, directed by Robert B. Sinclair, cuts an interesting cross-section, a little reminiscent of "Stage Door," through the training grounds of drama.

Louise, so imaginative that she believes her own stories, relates a romance with a marquis (Alan Marshal). When Nana (Goddard) spitefully brings the two together to confound Louise, he plays the gentleman. Inevitably, however, he becomes bored with her devotion to the theatre, and in the end—after a scene in which Nana for the first time understands Louise—it is the theatre that becomes her lasting "romance."

VETERANS GET COMPENSATION

Ex-Soldiers in Four Wars Also Receive Pensions

Raleigh, Dec. 15—Living veterans of four wars, nearly 10,000 of them, received $5,016,975 in compensation and pension benefits in North Carolina during the fiscal year 1938, according to the biennial report of Jack P. Lang, State Service Officer of the Veteran's Division Department of Labor.

In addition, dependents of 3,481 deceased veterans received $1,485,487 in pensions and compensation.

The wars in which these veterans served were the World War, Indian War, Civil War, and Spanish-American. In addition dependents of deceased Mexican War veterans are still on the rolls, while both living and dependents of deceased veterans of the regular establishment received payments. The World War, naturally, showed by far the highest total. In this category there were 6,969 living veterans who drew $3,628,678 of whom 5,663 suffered service-connected disabilities, while 1,132 were being paid for non-service connected disability. On the emergency officer's retired list were 26 veterans who drew $59,246. Dependents of 2,009 deceased vets got $721,773 for service-connected deaths, and 180 were listed as non-service connected for benefits of $69,310.

Dependents of five deceased Mexican War vets received $3,000 while five living Indian War veterans drew $3,908 and dependents of eight deceased veterans received $2,968. Civil war figures showed 21 living vets getting $25,602 and dependents of 298 drawing $139,615.

clear that Sea Scouting was one phase of Scouting. Cubbing for boys 12 to 15, Boy Scouts for boys 15 to Scouts and had passed apprentice seamanship. It was brought out that any boy scout satisfying the above qualifications who resided in ville Rotary club which organization is sponsor of the Greenville

The shore near the landing was decorated with United States flags and International Code flags. The with a set of International Code

by the Scouts by Mr. Carlos Harris.

TB Seals On Sale At Various Places

Many Uses Suggested for Seals As Widespread Appeal Made to Public to Buy Generously

An appeal for widespread use of the double-barred cross tuberculosis Seals is made this week by the local committee in an effort to secure co-operation to make a record for the community.

"Christmas Seals make a beautiful decoration. Teamed with millions of others they have made possible a life-saving campaign that has saved thousands of lives," said Dr. N. Thos. Eannett, Chairman. "Use Christmas Seals and use them early."

The committee suggests the following ways of using the Seals:

- On all greeting cards.
- On packages to foreign countries.
- On Christmas cards mailed to any place in this country.
- On bridge tables and piece cards at parties this month.
- On church calendars.
- On bills and business letters.
- On programs.
- On correspondence cards and packages to carry Christmas messages.

As Christmas tree decorations. As part of a stamp collection.

For the convenience of those who have not purchased Seals or who want extra ones for use, Christmas Seals are on sale in the following places: J. Key Brown Drug Store on the lobby of the U. S. Post Office Health Department, Proctor Hotel News stand and Hill Home Drug Store.

"After purchasing Christmas Seals, people should not forget to use them," said Dr. Eannett. "Their use immediately identifies buyers as being among those aiding in the fight against tuberculosis. The Christmas Seal is an opportunity to give health and happiness to others and to insure homes and families against this dread disease."

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Further buying vigor was present in today's stock market and leaders pushed up fractions to a point or more.

The list met much profit taking,
however, in the wake of Wednesday's fast forward sweep and many issues had difficulty in keeping on the rising track. At that, most were only moderately under best marks at the fourth hour.

Secondary rail bonds held much of the advancing plan in the longation.

UNUSUAL CASE TO BE SETTLED

An Extradition Fight Raises Prison For Debt Question

Reflector Bureau
Raleigh, Dec. 15.—Hearing for Dr.
John Dyer of High Point in Danville, Va., Friday morning on an extradition warrant from the Government of North Carolina will raise the question of imprisonment for a civil debt, although technically his return to this state is being sought on the grounds that he committed a criminal offense by "escaping" from the Guilford county jail.

Dr. Dyer's counsel, however, will endeavor to sweep aside the technical charge and get down to what they contend are the real merits of the question—which is whether or not a man can be kept in prison indefinitely for failure to pay his divorced wife alimony.

His lawyers will also argue that as a matter of fact Dr. Dyer did not "escape" from the deputy sheriff in whose custody he was, but was on the contrary the deputy "escaped" from the prisoner by gaining out voluntarily and leaving the Deer without guard.

The intimation will be that the Guilford county authorities got tired of feeding and keeping Dr. Dyer and, in effect, invited him to leave by giving him every opportunity to do so.

The Doctor's troubles began some years ago with marital difficulty.
Eventually he separated from his wife, they were divorced and he was ordered to pay alimony.
For some time, but finally he refused, contending he was unable to pay more. He was ordered to superior court and ordered to jail when the presiding judge held that he was in contempt of court for failure to pay up monthly as ordered, the judge evidently failing to believe the Dyer plea of inability to pay.

At all events, the Danville hearing will be quite an interesting one as it will decide whether or not it is possible to keep a North Carolinian in jail "from now on" because it can't or won't pay alimony—a purely civil liability.

vance on higher Liverpool cables offers light.

Shortly after the first half hour prices reacted slightly from the east under scattered realizing and March eased from 8.28 to 8.25, leaving the list two to seven points net higher.
March at noon was 8.25 and the list five to six points net higher.
