BOARD FAVORS ABOLITION OF ABSENTEE LAW

Recommendations To Be Made Late This Afternoon

ALL MEMBERS OF BODY IN ACCORD

Alternate Suggestion Would Invest Administration in Various County Boards

By HENRY AVERILL Raleigh, Dec. 30—The State Board of Elections will late this afternoon release its recommendation to the Governor and General Assembly that North Carolina's absentee ballot law be completely repealed.

At least, all signs point that way, although no official information about the report, or its contents, could be secured by your correspondent.

The report will also include an alternative to complete repeal and minor recommendations regarding election laws.

Practically complete accord of the five board members for this recommendation was secured by adding an alternative recommending an entirely new absentee law to replace the existing one if the General Assembly does not concur with the elections board that total repeal is advisable.

Vote of the State Board on complete repeal of the absentee law was without a negative, according to reliable information, but J. O. Bell, Democratic member from Hendersonville, was in the chair at the time the motion was put and did not vote.

Motion to adopt the entire report was made by Chairman Will A. Lucas, and seconded by Democrat George McNeill of Fayetteville.

The board, according to apparently authentic information, recommends as its alternative to complete and outright repeal, that a new absentee law be written concentrating all its administration in the county election board chairman.

All applications for ballots would have to be made by mail and all ballots returned to the county chairman by mail after being marked. This would mean complete elimination of "agents" as well as any chance of the hawking and peddling of absentee ballots collected after they had been marked.

In addition to repeal of the absentee law, and the alternate recommendation should this be decided against, the board will recommend that there be a complete new registration of voters in all counties where such a listing has not been had within recent years.

It will seek, too, a provision limiting the voting strength to 600 at each precinct.

Text of the report is not yet available and neither Chairman Lucas nor Secretary Raymond C. Maxwell would give any information regarding its contents. Outline of the report as made in this story is based on what appears to be completely reliable information and from expressions of views made by board members from time to time at the many sessions they have attended since the primaries.

The board has worked long and faithfully on its recommendations and every effort was made to secure a unanimous report. This was very difficult as the western Democratic member, Mr. Bell, has never favored complete absentee repeal and opinions of the others ran from that of the chairman, who personally thinks the absentee can be sufficiently safeguarded to make it workable.

Unwavering belief of Mr. McNeill and the two Republicans, Warren V. Hall of Charlotte and Adrian Mitchell of Hertford, that the absentee is just about North Carolina's public enemy No. 1.

State police said they found in the possession of the pair a complete set of tools for disassembling automobiles.

FRANCE WOULD AMEND TREATY Expected to Ask New Military Concessions

Paris, Dec. 30—(AP)—Parliamentary deputies said today France would ask military concessions from Syria in a new French-Syrian agreement, because of uncertainty created by Italian colonial agitation.

The vital road center, called the "key to Catalonia," lay under the pounding of insurgent guns from the north and west.

Pushing slowly across the bloody Balaguer bridgehead sector, the insurgent command sent another column pointing toward Artesa from the southwest.

Both high commands appeared convinced possession of the tiny industrial town meant a long stride toward victory or defeat for the insurgent drive in northern Lerida province.

The deputies said Premier Daladier decided to send a senatorial committee to suggest to the Syrians a new agreement under which they would have a large measure of independence, but with French in control of police and military functions.

INSURGENT SHIP SUNK, HOWEVER Short-Lived and One-Sided Naval Battle Waged Shortly After Craft Left Harbor

Gibraltar, Dec. 30—(AP)—A daring dash for freedom through blazing guns of Spanish insurgent warships and shore batteries ended in failure for a lone Government destroyer today, amid the crashing of shells in startled Gibraltar itself.

The Joe Luis Diaz, a prisoner here since August, attempted to sneak through a gauntlet of lurking insurgent ships in the pitch darkness of early morning. But destructive fire of her alert enemy forced her around 100 yards from the shore of Catalan bay with seven of her crew killed and 11 wounded.

Before grounding, the destroyer struck a heavy blow on her own account by ramming and sinking a 1,500-ton insurgent sloop, Jupiter.

Shortly after the darkened 1,650-ton Joe Luis slipped from the protection of the Gibraltar harbor the short-lived one-sided naval battle began.

Guns began to blaze from a 10,000-ton cruiser and other insurgent warships, long lying in wait, insurgent batteries at a point in Spanish Morocco some 15 miles across the straits also went into action.

Badly Mangled Body Found on Tracks at Rocky Mount

Rocky Mount, Dec. 30—(AP)—The body of M. K. Holden, 43, car oiler and packer on the Atlantic Coast Line railroad yards here, was found badly mangled on the main line track early today.

While railroad officials generally presumed he was accidentally run over by a train, they were unable to account for details of the tragedy. The body was found by a fellow worker.

Dr. J. G. Raby, Edgecombe county coroner, was en route here from Tarboro to conduct an investigation.

Holden, who lived near here, had been employed by the railroad for about 16 years.

SEC. WALLACE REVEALS VOTE

Washington, Dec. 30—(AP)—Secretary Wallace announced today the official vote by which growers of flue-cured tobacco rejected federal marketing quotas on next year's crop in a referendum held December 10.

The results gave 132,460 votes for quotas and 100,933 against. The crop control law, under which the referendum was held, required that quotas be operative must be approved by two-thirds of those voting.

The proposed national marketing quota was 754,000,000 pounds. The vote by states included: North Carolina—88,222 for, 65,853 against, per cent for, 57.3.

ACCUSE FRANCE BLOCKING PEACE

Assails Refusal to Allow Prime Minister Chamberlain to Mediate Dispute

Rome, Dec. 30—(AP)—France's refusal to have Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain mediate the French-Italian territorial fight brought a new barrage of Fascist attacks today.

The attitude of France toward Italy's "natural aspirations" the newspaper Il Messaggero said, was today's greatest obstacle in the path of European pacification.

The press indicated that Italy regarded Chamberlain's January 11 visit as an opportune occasion for discussions of their territorial demands and might bring the subject up regardless of the French attitude.

Il Messaggero openly discussed the possibility of a conference similar to the Munich meeting, declaring that "evidently the spectre of a new four-power conference—because Germany would take part in it—disturbs France's repose."

The paper attributed France's reluctance to have Chamberlain take up the matter to the French feeling that "the problem of relations between Italy and France no longer is a question of right, but rather a loss of prestige."

BELIEVE WARD LEADING RACE

Speakership Contest Attracts Capitol Attention

Raleigh, Dec. 30—(AP)—Rolling down the home stretch, the three-cornered fight for the speakership of the 1939 House of Representatives got more attention today than almost anything else on Capitol Hill.

The caucus will be held Tuesday night.

If reports here could be given much weight, D. L. Ward of New Bern, was either in the lead or fast gaining ground in his race against Victor Bryant of Durham and William E. Fenner of Rocky Mount.

At least two veteran legislators who said they had not previously committed themselves let it be known they intended to back Ward or Fenner and they had been regarded by observers as probable Bryant supporters.

Some observers flatly predicted Ward would win. Others continued to forecast Bryant would emerge on top. There were others who said Fenner was gaining ground and stood an excellent chance to win.

Vice-President's Ideas Differ Sharply From Those Expressed By Senator Barkley

Washington, Dec. 30—(AP)—Vice-President Garner was described authoritatively today as taking an active part in efforts to give local communities more control of expenditure of WPA funds.

Garner was understood to have told close associates that he believed the problem of keeping politics out of relief could be met, at least in part, by setting up non-partisan boards in each county. These boards would examine complaints of political misuse of relief money or discrimination against relief applicants.

He had told his friends, it was learned, that these boards should be purely county agencies, appointed by local officials entirely free from WPA control.

This view differs sharply from that of Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), who said yesterday he believed that if such boards were set up they should be appointed by the WPA.

Raleigh, Dec. 30—(AP)—Governor Hoey received a formal request today from Franklin county officials to call a special election to elect a representative to the 1939 House of Representatives to succeed Representative-elect C. T. Nicholson, who died yesterday.

The governor said he would set the election for the earliest possible date after conferring late this afternoon with Attorney General Harry McMillan on the legal requirements. The legislature will convene Wednesday.

In Gaston county a special election will be held tomorrow to name a successor to N. B. Kendrick, who died a month ago.

Name Committee For A. & N. C. R.R.

Goldensboro, Dec. 30—(AP)—Directors of the state-controlled Atlantic and North Carolina railroad appointed committees today to consider proposals submitted for leasing the line and to recommend an equitable distribution of funds received in a settlement with the Norfolk Southern railroad, former operator of the A. & N. C.

On the committee named to consider leasing proposals were appointed H. P. Crowell, president of the road; Selby Anderson of Wilson; Raymond Maxwell of New Bern; George B. Folk of Raleigh, and M. B. Siler of Durham.

This committee was called to meet this afternoon. Proposals were submitted by H. P. Edwards of Sanford and Julius Page of Aberdeen and associates. The details were not disclosed to the full meeting of directors.

The following were named to study the distribution of the settlements assets among creditors: S. A. Hicks of Sanford, Dr. J. Y. Joyner of LaGrange, and William Dunn of New Bern.

Speakership Coveted As Position Of Great Power

Reflector Bureau Raleigh, Dec. 30—As Libby Ward Victor Bryant and Bill Fenner enter the home stretch of the hottest Speakership race in several General Assembly sessions, the man in the street quite naturally wonders what all the shooting is about and why the air is being rent with fulminations, claims and protestations.

To the initiated, however, there is no mystery whatever. They are completely aware that the post packs more prestige, power, perquisites and possibilities of political prominence than any other connected with the legislature.

To begin with the Speaker appoints all the standing and special committees of the House, and it is this source that gives him his most powerful influence on legislation. The Speaker invariably knows approximately what issues are going to be paramount in the session. He knows that the committees which these issues are studied are the real law making groups—statutes are written in committee, not on the floor.

HINTS TO HOUSEWIVES

To make silver and glassware shine, dry them directly out of hot sudsy water. This treatment also helps to retard tarnishing of silver, which takes place more quickly in winter time when the furnace is on.

Use this test for deep-fat frying of onions: When a piece of bread browns in one minute, add the onions and cook them about one and a half minutes.

For something new and different spread baked ham with a half cup of molasses and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. This gives a delicious flavor and a brown top. You can include a teaspoon each of cinnamon and cloves for a spicy touch.

For a hurry-up dessert, split drop cakes in halves, cover with small portions of fresh or canned fruit or berries and diced marshmallows mixed with brown sugar. Dot with butter and bake or broil five minutes. Serve warm.

Date muffins, small ones, or very bump popovers are just the right partners for salads. With plenty of hot coffee and a light dessert you have a bright four-course luncheon ready in a short time. Very filling too for wintertime.

Jelly makes a delicious topping for drop or sheet cakes; it's sort of old-fashioned too. Beat the jelly with a fork and then spread it generously on the cake. Any kind of jelly is good, but currant, plum and grape are favorites with white or yellow cakes.

Pep up regular boiled dressing with horseradish, chili sauce and catsup and serve with baked or broiled fish. They go well together and are especially appetizing in cold weather.

To clean marble, cover it with a paste made by mixing two table-spoons of soda, one tablespoon each of salt and powdered pumice and some cold water. When the spread paste has dried, rub it off with a cloth and wash the marble well with soap and water. Repeat if stains are hard to remove.

debate (as it will, in fact, be next month) he can just about seal the facts of the attempt by his Election Law committee appointments. A hostile chairman and a hostile majority can very effectively head off every effort of even a major absentee ballot repeal.

Then there is the power of the Speaker to direct and control the trend of debate and action on the floor of the House. Anyone who saw Gregg Cherry in action last time realizes that this power is a big one and that it often decides the final action on any given measure.

In addition, the Speaker is kept constantly in the public eye. By the simple reason that he is Speaker he gets rams and reams of publicity he otherwise would never receive, and to the politically ambitious (and probably every Speaker since the year one has been in this class) publicity is the very breath of life.

The Speakership often enables the man who sits in the chair to keep well off any hot spot by reason of the fact that he is not required to vote on any measure unless he so desires. Under this rule, the gavel wielder is in position to dodge roll calls of dubious value insofar as the recording of a vote is concerned. Of course, there is a boomerang attached to this particular feature, as there is by the rule called upon to break a tie vote, if he had previously reserved his vote. This puts him directly and squarely on the spot—but it doesn't happen very often.

He has almost unlimited control when points of order arise in debate, and many measures are carried or lost on just such points. The House rules give a right of appeal from the Speaker's rulings on such points, but it takes a two-thirds majority to reverse, which is the same thing as making the Speaker

DRASTIC CHANGES TO AID RAILROADS SEEM UNLIKELY

The Mississippi and the Pacific Coast, so as to compete with ocean-going commerce connecting the east and west by means of the Panama Canal. The Rocky Mountain territory paid highest rates simply because there was no water competition. Later, this practice was denounced by the Rocky Mountain territory as an inequality and was prohibited.

Much manufacturing and farming have developed in the Rocky Mountains because of this protective rate clause and any attempt to eliminate it would unite the mountain congressmen in one solid bloc of opposition.

Midwest grain growers and southern cotton growers in turn would fight any proposal to bear down on the federal barge line on the Mississippi, as was suggested by the President's committee.

The South long has been on the short end of the freight rate deal, but northern and western manufacturers would balk at any juggling of the structure which would let products of cheap southern labor invade northern and western markets.

Moreover, not all the problems can be touched by Congress. Increased local taxation is a problem. In 1907, taxes on the country's 230,000-mile railway system totaled $73,743,000. Although tonnage increased only 10,000 miles by 1936, taxes were $324,858,000. The remedy must be sought on many fronts.

It is possible Congress may curb the booming truck industry now credited with major inroads on business once going to the railroads. This has been proposed.

Terminal consolidations are possible but abandonment of duplicating railroad lines always is fought both by local communities and members of Congress from the affected territory. The Interstate Commerce Commission and the railroads themselves have manipulated rates downward and upward and downward again without establishing which was more helpful. It is likely that if the railroads can demonstrate the need of a wider field of experimentation about consolidations, rate adjustments, and trackage abandonments Congress will be lenient. The railroads abandoned a proposed 15 per cent wage cut two months ago under circumstances which put the bee on the government to come to the rescue in every other possible way.

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 29—Appointment of a State Advisory Committee of prominent North Carolinians to assist in sponsoring the "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign was announced today by Arthur Carpenter, regional director, Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday.

Judge Aubrey L. Brooks, Greensboro attorney, is chairman of the committee of ten, which also includes:

Jonathan Daniels, Raleigh, editor of The News & Observer; Gordon Gray, Winston-Salem, publisher of The Morning Journal; George Holderness, Tarboro, business man and civic leader; Spencer Love, Greensboro, president of Burlington Mills; Reuben B. Robertson, Canton, president, Champion Fibre Co.; Hargrove Bellamy, Wilmington, wholesale drug executive and president, Astyptodyne Chemical Co.; Frank P. Graham, Chapel Hill, president, University of North Carolina; Col. John D. Langston, Goldsboro, attorney; Julian S. Miller, Charlotte, editor, The Charlotte Observer.

The committee will have the cooperation of S. Clay Williams, Winston-Salem, chairman of board, Reynolds Tobacco Co., who is a trustee of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, in sponsoring a campaign for funds during January which will culminate with celebrations throughout the State on January 30 of the birthday of President Roosevelt.

Meetings will be held soon in each district of the state by members of the State Advisory Committee to launch the drive and to acquaint county and community chairmen and all the workers with the purposes and methods of the campaign.

Sights And Sounds

Hollywood — Nomination for the most flabbergasting item seen in a pre-Christmas tour of the fawcny zoppes where some of our stars bought gifties: a valet stand, useful for carrying one's comb, brush, toilet articles and such while one is dressing one's gentleman. Price was $25 up—for the stand. The valet, presumably is extra.

But on second thought, maybe that glass wastebasket—$25—ought to take first place.

Recommended for an old fashioned movie evening: "Heart of the North" (in technicolor) which has everything—including a fight between hero and villain on cliff's edge, and a fade-out in which hero and heroine stand together on a mountain top and look off over the Technicolor Valley, holding hands. For the villain-hisses "Heart of the North" is a picnic—and it has that cute kid, Janet Chapman.

George Jenner, long faithful attendant to George Arliss, brings word from London that the actor, after 30 years, is eating meat again—and that's news. Both Mr. and Mrs. Arliss have been vegetarians since 1908—and their rule is broken now only on medical advice. Once while making a cross-country trip in the U. S., the Arlisses looked from their train window and saw a herd of drought-starved cattle. "If that's how meat is raised I'll never touch it again," said Mrs. Arliss. And the actor also took the pledge, with this amendment: "I'll never eat anything I can't pet." Which was tough on the fish.

Intentional movie boner will be noted by the observing in "Wuthering Heights." In one of Merle Oberon's speeches she refers to her hairdress and mentions "pomade." On the sound track that word came out—Merle being British—as "pomahd." They heard it once and changed it to "brilliantine"—although the latter word was not in use until 1894, said Technical Advisor Peter Shaw. That's about 50 years after the period of the film.

Edward Ellis ("A Man to Remember" and before that "The Thin Man") will play Andrew Jackson in "Wagons Westward" to Richard Dix's Sam Houston. Gail Patrick's the gal.

Another famous movie Jackson (in "The Buccaneer") is Hugh Sothern. He's in "The Oklahoma Kid" and he's from Oklahoma—from a family which went possiding with the best in the old days. And as a child he went with his father (Thomas Sutherland) through the Cherokee Land Rush of September 16, 1893. The same rush, plus beaucoup posses, are pictured in the film.

Alan Hale could retire from pictures today and still make a sizeable income from his interest in inventions. Latest gadget is a new fire-extinguisher to sell for a dollar, 60 cents of each sale going to Hale and his company. The chances are, when you go to a movie you'll be sitting in a theatre chair sponsored by the actor, whose business in chairs is booming. And he's talking now about a new idea: An elevator which stands still while the building goes up and down (heh-heh!).

PASTOR'S PREACHING PHRASES ABUNDANT IN ALLITERATION

By AP Feature Service
CHARDON, O.—Flat-Foot Floggie is a floundering failure as alliteration compared to that used by Cromwell Cook Cleveland of Chardon's Christian church.

He sprinkles sermons with an abundance of alliteration.

"Purpose precedes progress" is a simple sentence from one of the 26-year-old preacher's salty sermons.

Mr. Cleveland is a former Yale student and his talent has done much to increase church attendance. He does not consider himself a "show-off," explaining his father was a debater who always used such phrases without effort.

Some simple statements:
"Man's cravings carve upon his character and control his conduct."
"Procrastinating, putting off, is a parasite that prevents any progress."

"Many persons are . . . baffled, bothered, bewildered and made bitter by their blunderings because they are blind to the way that is best."

Mr. Cleveland's longest sentence to date:

"This, loose, lavish, lustful lad—a lazy libertine, and lost his love for the Lord and all things lofty and was living in luxury, but now at the length of his litling lark, being listless and lank, he longed for at least a little lunch, for he at least had languidly limped to the loathsome level that was amenably lousy and low."

Cleveland looks for alliteration possibilities as he prepares a sermon.

SAID WOMEN WOULD SHUN TWO-BAR STREET

Wheatland, Wyo. (AP)—When a second bar was proposed for this town's main street, businessmen signed a petition that said, "Another saloon would make it so no woman would care to walk down that side of the street."

The city council decided the business men were right; that one bar for the street was sufficient and the license for the proposed one was denied.

CLERIC HAS KIND WORDS FOR JITTEHBUGS

Chicago (AP)—There is nothing wrong with jitterbug dancing or the youngsters who swing it, believes the Rev. G. W. Clark of St. Louis University. "Jitterbug dancing isn't as bad as they say it is," he declares. "What's more, even if it were bad, youngsters wouldn't be to blame for it. We 'oldsters' created it and passed it on to them."

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

Washington—Don't be thunderstruck if the humble merchant you are sending to Congress to represent your district suddenly blossoms out as a scholar on the constitution or a speaker of unprecedented eloquence.
Generations of previous congressmen have planned it that way.

Joe Gloufus of South Bottle-borough may have spent all his spare time playing golf and reading the Groceryman's Digest but in Washington his fund of knowledge suddenly expands to the limits of the universe.

Soon after his arrival Representative Gloufus is advised of a congressional reference section in the Congressional Library specifically designed to help him dumfound his home town neighbors. A bit apologetically he writes a note to the librarian suggesting that if somebody could dig up a few facts about codling moth control the apple growers in his section would appreciate it. Within a very few days there will arrive on his desk a neatly typewritten digest of methods of codling moth control, what Congress has done about it and amounts appropriated.

May Add 'Local Color'

Joe may insert a few knowing remarks on what he will ask the government to do about codling moths, and then shove the whole thing into the Congressional Record where it will be labeled as a speech made by him in the House. Actually no part of it ever is spoken in the House. But when it is thus printed he can have extra copies made and sent without cost to a large number of his constituents.

For more earnest congressmen who like to do their own research, the library will send over a stack of books and pamphlets. But a lot of congressional energy is wasted by personal research when a staff of experts in the library would take over the task at a nod. Gloufus will learn about that.

On Washington's birthday his constituents may discover their representative has made a complete study of Washington's opposition to foreign entanglements.

Or he may speak learnedly on women's rights and what the state legislatures have done for veterans.
At the wink of an eye he can become an expert on anything from termites damage in Federal buildings to the Nazi radio invasion of South America. His statements will be studied with direct quotations from the Atlantic Monthly and the British Economist to disclose the breadth of his reading. Truly, it is wonderful.

Plenty Of Help

Whole floors of the library are staffed with research men and magazines, newspapers and governmental reports are combed for clippings on every legislative subject.

There is a serious purpose behind it all, of course. Gloufus will find on his arrival in Washington that he is expected to vote yes or no on subjects the like of which he never before heard. And it probably is no public waste if he can push a button and get himself at least a smattering of knowledge on a few topics of life-and-death importance to the country or his congressional district.

HARD-BOILED COPPERS CRINGE BEFORE MIKES

Denver (AP)—Installation of a two-way radio system for Denver police patrol cars brought such an "epidemic of 'mike fright' that a school of elocution had to be established.

"No matter how much courage some officers may have, they shrink like a violet when they face the microphone," said Detective H.
Williams, radio technician. "They became unintelligible, or they stuttered so loudly they nearly deafened the dispatchers at headquarters."
With a little training most officers overcome their difficulties, Wil-iams said.

Harry Hopkins: Even His Enemies Like Some Points About Man Who Must Win Senate's Okay Of Cabinet Job

RELIEF CHIEF Harry L. Hopkins got greatest fame for verbal scraps as he defended relief system, and as biggest employer in the U. S. (three 4,000,000 in one month). Sat with cabinet long before F. D. R. named his secretary of commerce. He's 48, has been "on relief" in Washington since 1933.

FATHER of Diane, cute daughter of the late Mrs. Hopkins, and three sons by divorced first wife, Hopkins occasionally takes time for play. Likes horse races, boxing, golf, poker, bridge, poetry and baseball, which he used to play to get money for occlige. He was born in Iowa, a harness maker's son.

INSPECTOR of public works, he frequently has gone trouble-shooting in person to get the low-down. Thirty years' social service same him deep humanitarian convictions, which some of his opponents say are "too deep" for sound economics in handling the billions of dollars in the huge relief fund.

SPENDER of billions (eight in five years—American record), lover of red galleus and hater of red tape, he's called genius of administration. Often eats (salad, rolls) on jump. Has been accused of being unsympathetic toward business, though he says he is a firm believer in private enterprise.

ILL with stomach trouble early this year, Hopkins doesn't look well but still has plenty of fire in his eye. He's colorful talker, nervous, energetic. Opponents alive often preface attacks with statement they think he is honest but that ideas on spending are wrong. Appointment must be confirmed by Senate.

SHORT SHOTS

By HENRY AVERILL

Raleigh, Dec. 30—No General Assembly in many, many sessions has had as great a volume of information gathered for its information and guidance as the one which will convene next Wednesday.

The 1937 legislature authorized the appointment of innumerable commissions to study this, that and the other question; and in practically every case the group so authorized really went to work and did its job.

The result is that the law makers will have available for them all sorts of information on almost every conceivable question.

Raleigh is already beginning to fill up with members of the Assembly. From all points of the compass they are flocking to town and the hotel lobbies are beginning to take on a decidedly political aspect.

So far, of course, the arriving solons are devoting most of their conversation to recalling pleasant and amusing incidents of previous sessions.

Two State Senators (who shall be nameless for obvious reasons) were consulted with glaze as they recalled during the 1937 days.

"Remember that night?" asked one, "when there were about twenty of us in my room at the hotel—all about half lit or better—when they called up from the Capitol to say 'Come on up to the Senate chamber, we haven't a quorum' and you fired right back 'Hell, you come down here. We have.'"

Geography is playing its usual important part in the Speaker's race—as it does in almost every statewide race in North Carolina.

Proponents of Libby Ward are pointing out that of the last half dozen House bosses, no less than four came from an area embraced within a sixty mile circle with Raleigh as its center.

Dick Fountain in 1927, Sandy Gosman in 1929, Willis Smith in 1931, and Reginald Harris in 1933 are the quartet they put in this class. They came from Rocky Hill, Raleigh and Person County, respectively.

The last two Speakers, however, were much further distant from the central city in point of residence. Robert Gray Johnson, 1935, was from Pender, and Gregg Cherry, 1937, from Gaston.

The Ward folks are also trying to argue that Durham was definitely preferred to the West by reason of Elmer Long's election as Lieutenant Governor in 1925; but the Bryant partisans retort that Elmer then lived in Alamance, which everybody concedes is western.

Anyway, it's a great battle and there's one consoling thought to those three million and some odd North Carolinians who are not candidates and who have no particular favorite among the three who are. This is that no matter whether Bill Finner, Libby Ward or Victor Bryant is elected, the House will have a capable, honest, presiding officer of whom the state need not be ashamed.

The stump stirring, though, is something terrific. The trio of candidates and all their supporting armies—horse, foot and artillery—are running around in circles so fast they meet themselves coming back as they go out each morning.

'NEW YEAR'S LOVE'

by Angela Lorden

The Characters
Noel Marchand, a beautiful young actress.
Allan Collins, the man she loves.
David Norris, the man she is going to marry.

Yesterday: Noel accepts David because Allan is lost to her.

Chapter 14 'Goodby'

"I'm going to marry David Norris."
Noel was glad she'd said that to Allan on the way home from her New Year's Eve party while her heart was beating tumultuously at his nearness to her in the cab.
At least she had saved her pride, she thought, as she read the insinuating gossip on one of the society pages this morning. "Her friends are saying that the beautiful Elaine Schuyler who recently was freed from the lun-lover Vinnie in Reno will try marriage again this time with a South American engineer who is also an old flame."
She had wanted to save him the need for explaining after the emotional contact on the darkened dance floor at the Cairo, while they created the New Year.

"I wish you happiness, Noel—you rate it," was all that Allan had said as he'd sunk back in his corner of the cab and when he left her at the hotel, he held her hand briefly.
"This has been a wonderful evening, the nicest New Year's Eve I've ever spent—" in a quick husky voice. Then he was gone.
It was the most marvelous beautiful Eve of her life, Noel knew. For a moment alone in her room she had thought perhaps the kiss in the dark had meant to Allan a little of all the beauty and ecstasy it held for her.
She laughed now, a little bitterly, at the foolishness of the notion. Allan had always loved Elaine Schuyler—at last she was deciding she wanted him.

Noel picked up the manuscript of "Susan is Waiting." Strange how true to life drama was running this year. The girl in the play lost her love, too. But she waited. That was the theme of the plot. And of course he came back to her.
"They always do on the stage," Noel said aloud cynically. "In real life it's never like that. But I've still got the play!" Only part consolation, but because it was so very important, Noel forced her thoughts away from Allan and continued reading the lines she would be saying for a first-night public several weeks ahead.

Swanstrom worked quickly. He always did, once the plans were all fixed. He called a rehearsal for Thursday and in the meantime, except for an occasional visit to David and one dinner with Mrs. Marchand when Allan was absent, Noel gave all her energies to learning her part.
David was better, sitting up in a living-room chair now.
"I know what these rehearsals will be. You'll have no time for me," he said sadly to Noel. "The doctor thinks I ought to go South to recuperate."

"The Florida sun will do wonders for you," Noel replied quickly.
"Darling," he went on, "I'm not going to say to you what's in my heart. We'll make plans after the opening."
Noel left it at that.
Then she was in the midst of the exciting prelude to a premiere. She loved the dusty, gloomy first days when the cast got together, feeling out for their parts, taking Swanstrom's abuse. The newcomers who hadn't worked with him before were in terror of his biting remarks. Gerald Foster and Noel who understood him too well, merely ignored the tirade but took his suggestions seriously. He knew his business of whipping a play into shape.

'Nick-of-Time Miracle'
"THIS comes in time to stave off the sheriff," Gerald told Noel while they stood to one side of the semi-dark stage, waiting their turn for first reading of their lines.
Gerald had a wife and young baby out on Long Island. Noel knew it had been months since his last engagement. She smiled understandingly.

"A sort of nick-of-time miracle for most of us, I suppose," she answered.
They were nerve-wracking hours, those first days spent in the rehearsal theater. Swanstrom doggedly spurred them; denouncing them in the flamboyant language peculiarly his own.
Wearily Noel went home each night but it was a satisfying sort of exhaustion.

"I miss you so much, my dearest," David reiterated on each occasion. He telephoned from Florida. He timed his calls so they came to her at the end of the tedious day. Reassuring strength, he seemed to her in her weariness. But, too, he was far away in another world that touched her vaguely.
Allan sent her flowers. There had been no meeting since the night—fateful for Noel—when he'd left her at the hotel entrance.

"I'm wishing you all the success in the world—and happiness, too," he wrote on the card he enclosed.
"You've got to let me off a few hours," Noel pleaded with Swanstrom. It was the morning of the fifteenth. At three o'clock Allan's boat would be leaving. More than anything in the world, she wanted to be there to wish him a friendly farewell.
"Well—" Swanstrom agreed reluctantly. "But be back here by two—"

"I'm seeing a dear friend off on a long trip!" Noel protested. "And the boat sails at three."
"My dear Bernard, will you get the devil out of here!" His manner softened. "Honestly, Noel, we do need you at two. But I don't have to explain to you, do I?"
Noel dashed in a taxi over to the Lancaster. Her make-up was smeared and she had on an old hat. Hastily, as the cab sped across town, she put on fresh powder and lipstick, tucked back stray hairs under her hat.

Just a few moments to say a friendly farewell. No "Goodby, my love" to Allan. Tears came into her eyes, a lump stayed in her throat. At the door of the suite she paused for a moment to rearrange her composure.

"I've only a moment I snatch from rehearsal," she explained to Mrs. Marchand. "But I had to come and see Allan. I'm so sorry I can't go to the boat."
Allan came out of one of the other rooms then.

"Noel, this is swell! I was afraid you'd forgotten us!"
Forgotten you, Noel thought. If only you knew that I'll never forget. So she smiled sweetly and her words were carefully controlled.

'I'll Always Remember'
"I've just been telling your mother, I'm a slave to my art these days. I practically had to fight my way out of the theater to get here at all. But I did want to see you."
"And I wanted to see you very badly, too, Noel. But I didn't dare invade that mysterious world. I was sure I'd be thrown out on my ear. I called your hotel this morning, but you'd already left."

"Noel must have some luncheon with us," Mrs. Marchand interrupted. "We'll have it up here a once. Allan, you phone for a waiter."
Noel protested but Allan was insistent, too—already eating down for service.
"You've got to eat, child," he said. "We can't have Noel get sick on us, can we, mother?"
Noel pulled off her toque and sat down, a tired sigh escaping her lips. Mrs. Marchand went to the pantry and came back with a glass of sherry.

"Drink this, my dear, it will make you feel better."
It did, as Noel sipped the refreshing wine. Her eyes followed Allan, moving about the room. She must remember forever the way his hair grew that look in his eyes, the sure way he walked. She would have another memory, too—a kiss in a darkened club, the feel of his arms tightly around her. It would have to last her for all of her life.
The table was set near the windows and Noel was urged to eat all her luncheon. Mrs. Marchand's lips quivered when they spoke of Allan's departure but she managed her part of the conversation well, hiding her feelings.

"One thing I've to be grateful for this time," she remarked. "It's only for three months before, it's meant a year at a time."
And when he comes back, went through Noel's mind, Elaine will be waiting, too.
"I've got to be getting back to the theater, or Swanstrom will have my life in forfeit," Noel explained when the luncheon was hurriedly finished. They got up from the table and as she reached for her hat, Mrs. Marchand told her feelingly:

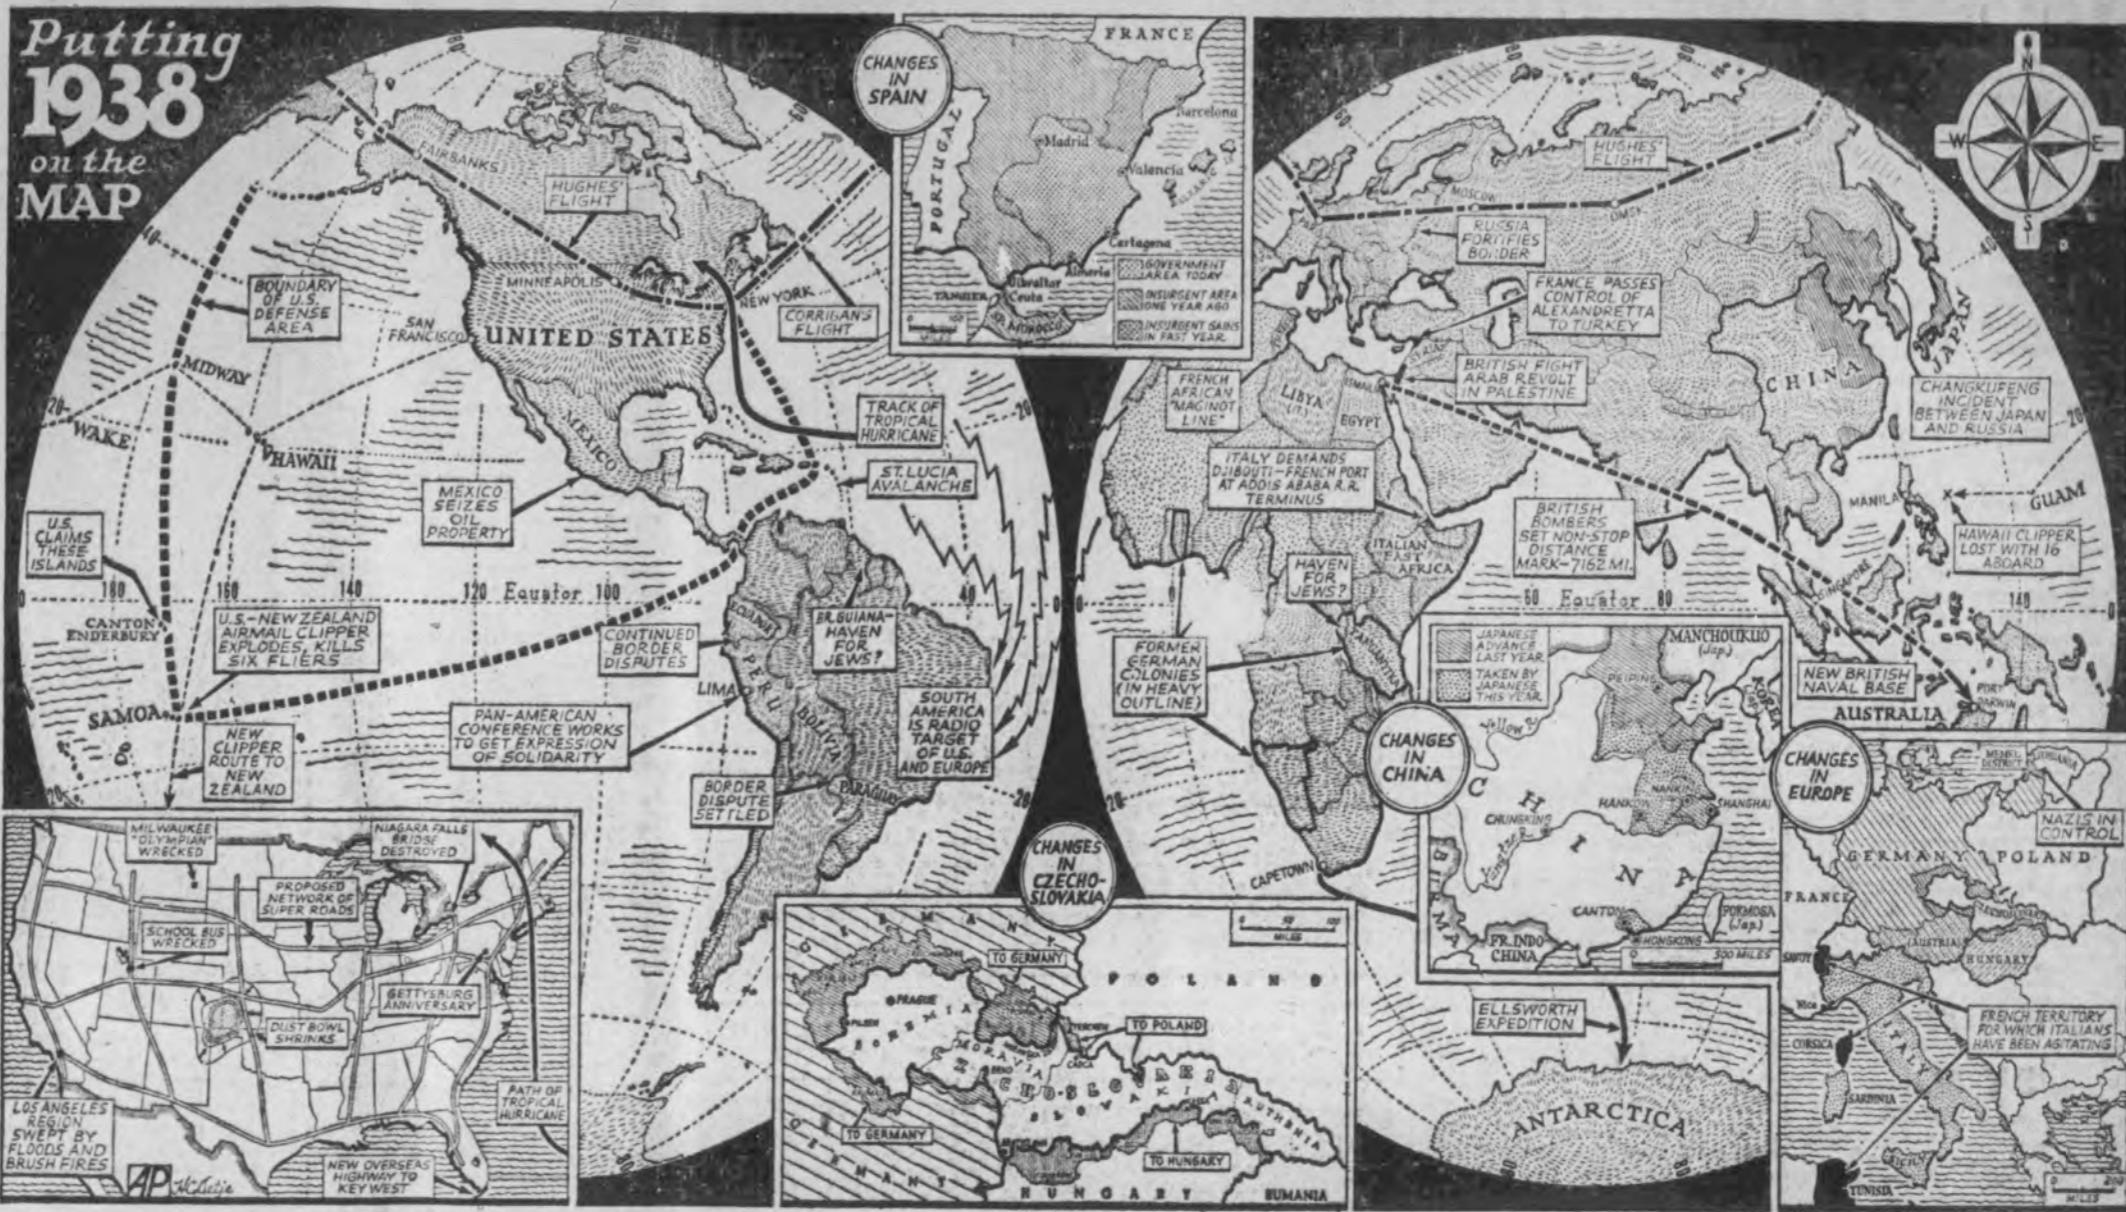

"I remember that first day I saw you, my dear; you were so lovely."
"You've been so heavenly kind—I haven't deserved it," Noel replied.
"And I'll always remember our walk through the woods, Noel," Allan interrupted. He was helping her on with her coat. He lowered his voice slightly. "And our New Year's Eve together."

Noel turned away. She wanted to cry. "I'll remember, too." Her words were a whisper.
"Will you excuse me?" Mrs. Marchand's voice broke in on the scene. "I've got a call in a hurry." As she walked to the bedroom, Noel started to leave and she called back, "Wait, Noel. I won't be a moment."
Noel stood still. She turned to Allan. "I do hope the trip down will be pleasant," she said feebly. It sounded insane.

Allan came close to her. "Will you kiss me goodbye, Noel?" he asked. His voice was so serious, his eyes seemed veiled. Or was it the mist that came into Noel's own eyes?
"Yes, Allan." A simple whisper. She didn't dare any more.

How'd You Have Liked To Be A Map-Maker In 1938?

Map-makers worked overtime this year trying to keep pace with territorial changes. Germany's Hitler kept them busiest by grabbing Austria and part of Czech-slovakia and permitting Hungary and Poland to cut into Czech territory, too. Changing boundaries in such places as China and Spain added to the map maker's work—and there were many other notable events for him to chart. These sections of the earth's map show some of the more outstanding.

'TRAINING' FOR THE ROSE BOWL

Pair Of Games Tonight; First To Start At 7:30

A couple of topnotch basketball games will be played at East Carolina Teachers College tonight, with the first contest beginning at 7:30 o'clock.
Rocky Mount's "Y" team will encounter Coach Gordon Gilbert's college varsity and Greenville's independent girls engage Winterville high's sextet.
Besides the regulars, four more players are slated to see quite a bit of action tonight. They are Tom (Parrish) Parrish, Tom Cox, Milton Glass and Kelly Martin. Parrish and Cox were former Greenville high school regulars and departures but to have lost any of their original basketball punch.
During the present nonvarsity season, the Pirate coach has been pulling his choppers through twice practice paces twice daily. He's doing this to get his boys in shape for the strong High Point varsity whom the locals next Tuesday.
When the Pirates confront the Rocky Mount boys tonight, they will be playing their tenth game of

TWO VICTORIES FOR TEACHERS

ECTC Varsity And 'B's' Defeat Martin County Cagers

East Carolina Teachers College varsity and "B" teams recorded victories over Williamston's Martins in Martin county last night.
During the first two periods it looked as if the Martins were headed for victory, in that they held the locals scoreless for the first quarter and were in front 21-12 at intermission.
Coach Gilbert's players really went into action after the half-time rest and coasted to a 41-38 verdict, producing the most surprising comeback the locals have made in a contest this year.
Floyd Hinton showed improvement in both offensive and defensive playing. His offensive pep for last night was displayed when he garnered seven of his mate's combined number of tallies.
Bill Shelton, Earl Smith and Don Brock forged to the front, for scoring honors last night. Smith is another player who has shown quite a bit of improvement in his scoring attack. His goal-shooting procedure has done much developing during the holiday season.
While on the subject of last night's game, we can't afford to eliminate what the locals "B's" did. They defeated the Martins' All Star Bees 34-18 in a game chocked with thrills.
Kelly Martin, with sixteen points, led the varsity's scoring. Tom (Parrish) Parrish with half as many points, was next best man. Last year Parrish featured on many occasions in Greenville high school's attack on leading pre-college schools of the East.

GOOD WILL between U. S. and Japan was discussed by the President and Kenuko Horimouchi (above), new Japanese ambassador, when the latter presented his credentials.

EAST COACHES ATTEND CLINIC

Coach J.D. Alexander Directing Conference Activities

The second phase of the East Carolina Basketball Clinic under way at East Carolina Teachers College flourished with activity.
Coach J. D. Alexander, athletic director at E.C.T.C. this morning outlined ways and means to plan the "season's work" at the opening session.
Dorothy Riggs, noted athlete, with the assistance of the E.C.T.C. varsity, offered demonstration of drills and plays for the benefit of the coaches in attendance at 10:30 o'clock.
Motion pictures and lantern slides of outstanding plays and players featured the opening afternoon session.

Bob Eason, coach at Rocky Mount high school, talked on "Planning the High School Defense." Eason is a graduate of East Carolina Teachers College.

The concluding afternoon session dealt with a demonstration of girls' plays and drills. Problems confronting coaches in this branch of sports were taken up at a round table discussion.

No regular activities are scheduled for tonight, except to watch two basketball games that will be played here. Winterville high's girls play Greenville Independent girls and Rocky Mount's "Y" team engages the E.C.T.C. varsity.

CHANDLER FOR DINNER TALKED

Selection of Kentucky Governor Regarded Favorably

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Selection of Governor Happy Chandler of Kentucky as principal speaker for the North Carolina Jackson Day dinner of January 7 would really be a happy one, politicians and observers of every shade of opinion readily agree.

The Kentucky executive stands high on the list of those being considered and just now appears the most likely choice of National Treasurer Matthew Quayle, with the complete approval of State Senator John D. Larkins, Jr., chairman of the N. C. dinner. The only obstacle to his coming seems to be difficulty in finding him. He is reported to be "somewhere in Kentucky" and desperate efforts are being made to get in touch with him.

Reason for general agreement on his availability lies in his political chameleon tinge. He is, at one and the same time, persona grata with both New Dealers and Anti New Dealers—and, too, he would be absolutely certain not to repeat the findings faux pas of last year.

Happy originally went into office in the Blue Grass on a ticket of 100 per cent—maybe it was even 200 or 300 per cent—loyalty to the New Deal and President Roosevelt. This year he ran against FDR's "Dear Alben" Barkley for the Senate, and took more than one mighty wallop at "politics in 'PA'" and that sort of thing. Anti New Dealers were attracted to him because he was against the President's favorite—but on a visit to Kentucky during the primary Roosevelt took particular pains to class Chandler as a genuine "liberal" even at the moment he boosted Barkley as his choice.

September, '38: Czechoslovakia Pays Bill For European Peace Party

IN ENGLAND—Chamberlain shows off German friendship agreement upon return from the four power conference. IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA—Hitler triumphantly enters the Sudeten area on the heels of his army.

By VOLTA TORREY
AP Feature Service Writer
"Out of this nettle, danger, we plucked this flower, safety." Thus Neville Chamberlain summarized September's sorry story.

Repeatedly the British Prime Minister flew to Germany. Resolutely the Nazis asked for more and more. Resignedly the old world mobilized.

Bomb shelters were dug in London parks. Civilians tried on gas masks. France's Maginot Line was manned. German ships were called home.

Politics—Maine went Republican—was shoved off Page One. Swingers—gurning "A-Tasket, A-Tasket"—were hushed for scary speeches. It took a hurricane to compete with Europe's eruption.

"Hell Hitler!"

The issue was simple: Could Reichsfuehrer Hitler help himself to a chunk of Czechoslovakia? Both sides drew their guns. Propagandists spouted atrocious stories. France and Russia had promised to help the courageous Czechs. Britain supposedly stood behind France. But Hitler could—and did—"free" the Germanic peoples of Czechoslovakia.

Twice President Roosevelt pleaded for peace. Chamberlain, Hitler, French Premier Daladier and H-

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The stock market, a bit tired from yesterday's sharp upward spring, today stubbed its toe on profit-taking and further "cash" tax selling.

A few rails, amusements and specialties managed to tack on modest advances, but some aircraft, steels and motors reversed themselves fractions to a point or so.

After a lively opening dealings dwindled appreciably. Prices were spotty near the fourth hour.

Carrier loans again were in favor in the bond department.
